Office blow-out

By Kathy Gandolfi

The estimated cost of Wattle Range Council's proposed new office building has increased by almost 70 per cent from its original targeted price and is set to become a highly political issue with local government elections due later this year.

With an original target of $5.5m, a report presented to council by chief executive Ben Gower on Tuesday night advised council that the cost of the new administration office was now estimated at $9.2m.

The report prompted Council to decide on Tuesday night to progress the project by authorising architects of the building, Chapman Herbert, to proceed to the detailed documentation phase which would provide sufficient information for the project to go to tender among builders.

At one point in the design process, the estimate reached as high as $11.4m which was revealed publicly for the first time in Mr Gower's report. This estimate, being more than double the original target of $5.5m, caused the project revision with the new estimate being achieved through a reduction in the size of the building by about 10 per cent to just under 1600 square metres, while some architectural elements of the build were also removed.

Despite this, no money has been allocated for the project in the current draft 2022/23 council budget, which is out for public consultation now.

With council elections to be held in November, the project's future will be in the hands of a newly elected council.

"Given that Local Government elections will be held later this year, any decision to tender for and award a contract to build the Council Service Centre will need to be made by the new Council in 2023," said the report from Mr Gower.

Mayor Des Noll at the current council office which he believes is unsuitable.

Mayor Des Noll has defended the cost of the proposed new administration building telling The South Eastern Times that a new office is required.

"As a community, we all have a responsibility to ensure that the staff that serve us have a workplace facility that is safe and fit for purpose," Mr Noll said.

"Currently this situation does not exist.

"A 90-year-old schoolhouse built in the 1930's does not provide this.

"The current Council office is not fit for purpose.

"Employees are now spread over three separate and worn-out offices within our community - this is unproductive and inefficient.

"It is no longer acceptable to expect professional employees to be asked to work in such conditions."

Rates to increase after deliberation

Wattle Range Council Mayor Des Noll said people can make a difference.

Making a difference

In today's communities, a lot can be said about making a difference.

People who believe that they can make a difference are the people who shape our society and communities of today. On my travels around the Wattle Range Council area and having conversations with residents and business owners, I constantly hear remarks about the community feeling of vibrancy and prosperity across the Council area.

Coupled with obvious growth to population and tourism, it is very exhilarating to listen to these comments. It is exciting to be continually welcoming new residents to our communities.

People from all around Australia are making their home across the Council area; from Kalangadoo, Glencoe, Millicent, and all corners of our thirteen communities.

Recently a long-term Penola local identity emailed me, congratulating the community on the development of the Coonawarra Rail Trail and the illumination of the trees at the southern end of Penola. His words were and I quote; "The concept is inspirational and its execution exceptional".

Those of us who have lived within our respective communities are not immune to this new energy spreading throughout our daily lives. Many established business owners have remarked on the confidence they are currently experiencing. Other business owners are using the economic confidence to expand and purchase new businesses. Again, its about local people making a difference.

Making a difference was just as important years ago as it is today. It is important to keep in mind that one person can and has made a difference. Take for example Rosa Parks, an African American Civil Rights Pioneer.

Rosa Parks refused to give up her bus seat to white Americans. Rosa's decision changed the racial segregation in the USA for African Americans.

We must live our lives as a model for others.

Do you have what it takes to make a difference in your community?

Of course, you do.

Every one of us is put in this world to positively contribute.

No matter age, religion, or background, we can all have an impact.

No matter how large or small, your effort makes an important difference.

You can change your community by helping one person at a time.

Simply having the desire to make a difference in our community is enough to start your journey.

Des Noll,
Mayor
Wattle Range Council

Wattle Range Council elected members delayed approval of its $31m draft annual business plan and budget last week because they didn't have the opportunity to read it before the meeting.

The minutes of the meeting state that Mayor Des Noll, with the approval of two-thirds of the members present, suspended meeting procedures for 90 minutes to informally discuss the draft budget due to the elected members "not having had the opportunity to view the report prior to the meeting".

Following the informal discussions, council decided to raise an additional 5.36 per cent in rate revenue next financial year according to its draft budget.

The draft budget indicates that .26 per cent of the increase in rate revenue consists of new rateable properties as a result of developments such as new homes and sub-divisions.

Despite the increase in rate revenue to $20.44m, council plans an operating deficit of more than $3m for 2022/23.

"The 2022/23 draft annual business plan and budget as presented forecasts a net operating deficit of $3.151m based on operating income of $28.246M and operating expenditure of $31.397m, including $6.341m in depreciation," according to the council report.

The report also states: "Council is proposing to increase general rates by 5.1 per cent plus growth (0.26 per cent) from 24 new rateable assessments.

"The increase is in line with current Consumer Price Index (CPI) amount, and given these inflationary pressures the proposed revenue increase keeps pace with the majority of proposed expenditure increases."

Council said it will continue a number of initiatives that were implemented as part of its response to the Covid-19 emergency including; "the provision for further employment opportunities to our community ..., focus on generating economic stimulus to the greater community through major infrastructure projects, provide an allocation of $100,000 to enable community groups an opportunity to access these funds for major infrastructure projects."

Rural, commercial and industrial properties will pay a lower rate-in-the-dollar than residential properties, with primary production paying 67 per cent and commercial and industrial 92 per cent of the residential rate.

According to council, property values have increased more than 22 per cent in the past 12 months.

Council has released the draft budget for public consultation and members of the public have until Friday, July 1 to provide written comment and a public meeting will be held at the Millicent Civic and Arts Centre supper room on July 5 where verbal submissions can be made.

Premier indicates support for KCA plans

By Caroline Hammat

During a tour of Kimberly-Clark Australia (KCA) Millicent Mill last Thursday Premier Peter Malinauskas was shown how investment in technology is improving productivity at the site.

Speaking to the South Eastern Times following the tour Premier Malinauskas was asked about the importance of KCA to the economy.

"Obviously it is a major employer here within the Limestone Coast but more than that it is a significant contributor to the supply chain both for consumers and also for people who produce goods that KCA require," Mr Malinauskas.

"This is a good employer, they pay good wages, they make a very significant economic contribution to the region and to the State.

"It's a demonstration how investment in technology can improve labour productivity which benefits the economy at large."

During the tour mill manager Adam Carpenter briefed the Premier on the proposal to build a new $70m hydrogen plant at the Millicent site in partnership with Adelaide based diversified renewable energy company entX (formerly known as PhosEnergy).

"The visit by the Premier and Deputy Premier gave us a great opportunity to share with them our current operations, challenges and our future vision for sustainability," Mr Carpenter said.

"These were very well received by the Premier and his team and we will continue to work with them on how government can support our Millicent Mill operations into the future."

Premier Malinauskas responded positively to the briefing saying: "What KCA understand, is what the government knows and that is that hydrogen represents a massive opportunity for industrialisation in our state.

"We've got a $596 million dollar commitment that we are making to hydrogen opportunity in South Australia and we will actively pursue opportunities with the private sector to help facilitate their investments.

"We applaud them on their examination of how hydrogen can help fuel growth at this site, and reduce costs for the business and also make a positive contribution to the environment.

"It's the exact sort of innovation that our investment is trying to spur on."

KCA uses about 5.5 terajoules of energy daily and annually this is around two thirds of the South East's total gas consumption.

This consumption makes KCA one of the three largest energy consumers in South Australia.

Reducing this reliance on natural gas through the proposed hydrogen plant would initially see the mill reduce its consumption by 10 per cent and assist their aim to achieve a carbon neutral status by 2030.

Massive museum boost

By Kathy Gandolfi

A $520,000 allocation in Wattle Range Council's draft 2022/23 budget has volunteers at the Millicent Museum planning for an exciting upgrade for the award winning attraction.

Released for public comment last week, the draft budget includes $520,000 for the "renewal or replacement of transportable buildings at the rear of the Millicent Museum".

Chairman of the Millicent National Trust, Barry Long welcomed the impending council expenditure and showed The South Eastern Times around the buildings earmarked for replacement which had been inspected by council officers about two years ago and found not worth fixing.

"It's like a tent," Mr Long said pointing to the ridge of the roof of the timber framed buildings which are owned by council but used by the museum to store some of its extensive through-the-ages clothing collection while another part is used as a workshop for rejuvenating machinery for display including its extensive array of horse drawn vehicles which is believed to be the largest public display of its kind in the southern hemisphere.

Obvious dips in the ridgeline are a hint to a bigger problem under the buildings with the timber stumped foundations rotting away and the floor uneven as a result. The buildings were erected in 1952 as additional classrooms for the former Millicent Primary School.

"These timber buildings were never meant to be permanent," Mr Long said.

While the Millicent National Trust members had not yet had an opportunity to meet to discuss the council's plans, informal discussions had already ignited exciting possibilities.

"This could help us to apply for dollar for dollar grants which could allow us to do even more," Mr Long said adding that it may enable the museum to expand its display areas while enhancing its storage and workshop areas.

"We could look at building something that is purpose built; a storage area, airconditioned and lined, and vermin proof, for the clothing collection; and double the size of the workshop.

"That would allow us to get more organised with a proper workshop area, a painting room, and a tool shed.

"This would make these areas more accessible to visitors to show people what we are doing in the workshop."

Mr Long said it would also provide an opportunity for the electrical system to the buildings to be upgraded.

"Weld in here now and the lights dip and flicker," he said.

"We're very grateful and think it is a wonderful opportunity to expand and make the museum even better than it is."

New $9.2m council office set to become election issue

Mr Noll said the timing to build the new council office was ideal.

"There has never been a better time to build them a fit for purpose service administration centre," Mr Noll said.

"Our Council is in a sound financial position to deliver this project.

"Carrying very little debt, moderate cash reserves and the ability to borrow money at incredibly competitive rates.

"The project can be financed over a long term at low interest rates with a minimal impact on your council rates.

"Twenty-five years after amalgamation, it is now time for Wattle Range Council to have a functional, safe, and fit for purpose service centre so that staff that we employ can serve the entire community to the best of their ability."

Mr Noll said the $9.2m estimated cost for the new council office may change.

"It is important to understand that Council is currently at the detailed design and development approval stage and it should be noted that the financial figures put to council are estimates," Mr Noll said.

"The actual cost to build the council service centre will not be known until council determines to run a competitive tender process."

Mr Noll said that members of the public are invited to tour the current council office.

"I invite those community members who may wish to visit the current administration office on George Street for a tour of the site to contact the chief executive officer," he said.

According to the report tabled at council's meeting on Tuesday night from chief executive Ben Gower, council has 66 administrative staff who are currently based in three locations which are planned to be amalgamated into the proposed new building.

The current offices include the main office at Millicent's George Street near the round-about, offices within the former Elec-Air building on Ridge Terrace, and council's engineering office on Davenport Street.

"Building rules specify that the current principal office can accommodate a maximum of 25 staff; it has significant structural and maintenance issues; it has limited expansion options; and is no longer fit for purpose," said Mr Gower's report.

The proposed site for the planned new building is on parklands off North Terrace which were previously used by the former Millicent Netball Association and, while its courts have been removed, the association's clubrooms remain but would be demolished to make way for the new council building if it proceeds.

Council's cost pressures

Wages, increases in waste management and government placing more responsibilities on local government are some of the reasons ratepayers will face an increase in rates of more than five per cent next financial year, according to Wattle Range Council.

In its draft business plan and budget document, council states that inflation - the Consumer Price Index (CPI) - was 5.1 per cent for the March quarter and the Local Government Price Index was 4.5 per cent for the same period.

Other pressures pointed at the rates increase of 5.4 per cent include an increase of costs over and above CPI such as electricity and fuel, and the increase in the compulsory superannuation guarantee payments to employees from 10 to 10.5 per cent. Council employees are also expected to receive a five per cent pay rise according to the council draft budget.

The draft budget also highlights a lack of funding provided to the Coastal Protection Board to assist with protection/rehabilitation of coastal assets and townships.

Council claims waste management costs are also set to increase by CPI after years of increases beyond CPI.

"In previous years the largest driver of the increase is the Solid Waste Levy (a levy imposed on the disposal of waste) which has had significant escalations in past years of 40 per cent in 2019/20, 15 percent in 2018/19, and 20 per cent in 2017/18," according to the draft budget.

According to the draft budget the "ongoing impact from State Government cost shifting" has placed extra cost pressures on council.

"In changes to the Local Government Act 1999, there is a new requirement for councils to have the Essential Services Commission of SA (ESCOSA) review their Long Term Financial and Asset Management Plans, in order to provide commentary in respect to council's long term financial sustainability," the document states. "The charge [by the State Government] for this review is $52,000."

In addition, in 2017/18 Housing SA's properties located within the Wattle Range

Council area were transferred in 2017/18 to Unity Housing (a private entity). This transfer resulted in a financial impact to ratepayers of $96,000 annually, as Unity Housing was deemed eligible for a 75 percent mandatory rebate of rates. While a State Government tax, council is also required to collect a Landscape Levy from property owners.

"In 2016/17 ratepayers were significantly impacted by an increase of 213 percent in South-East Natural Resources Management Levy; in 2022/23 the now Regional Landscapes Levy is set to increase by 2.5 percent," according to the draft budget.

The draft budget document was released last week for public comment until early July.

Social media sensation Granny Daffy visits Millicent mill

By Caroline Hammat

Kimberly-Clark Australia (KCA) found itself in the firing line recently as social media internet sensation Granny Daffy, from the Central West of New South Wales, blasted the company's operators online, leading to the 94 year old visiting the company's Millicent Mill last week.

After purchasing two packs of 24 roll Kleenex toilet rolls and finding every single roll was missing its 'flap', Daphne Pearl, affectionately known as Granny Daffy, and her granddaughter Melissa started a campaign to 'bring back the flap'. In the video, which has had thousands of views and comments, Daffy explains the difficulties and pitfalls of not having a flap to easily find the start of each roll.

The campaign soon attracted the attention of KCA as the company was repeatedly tagged into the viral video. KCA Millicent Mill manager Adam Carpenter responded to the video personally, extending an invitation for Daffy to visit the site, assuring her there was no conspiracy to remove the handle or 'flap' and they were conducting an investigation as to why it had happened.

"We suddenly realised that we had found a consumer that had an issue with some of our toilet paper and we really wanted to engage with Daffy and Melissa and show them what we do," Mr Carpenter said.

"We make about 1.2 million rolls a day here, our quality inspection although very regular and thorough, it's impossible to check 1.2 million rolls."

Daffy and her granddaughter Melissa decided to take up KCA's offer and three weeks after making the initial video they began their journey to the Millicent Mill site. "When Kleenex extended the invitation I said to nan it's totally up to you (if we go), she said let's do it but I can't go without you as I'm quite shy," Melissa said.

Assuring her nan, who hadn't flown for 25 years, that they would go together they drove to Canberra, caught two flights and made their way to the mill site where Daffy was welcomed for the day as official Granny Toilet Paper Tester. Daffy was impressed with the response from Kleenex and realised she'd never spent a moment wondering where her toilet paper comes from.

"I have never ever thought how toilet paper was made, it was just made that's all," she said.

With another Kleenex campaign on her mind Daffy asked if the big boss was around, finding out the managing director 'Mr Kleenex' is actually a woman, Daffy wanted to let her know: "Tell her we want flowers and butterflies on our toilet paper, bring that back too."

After a day touring the factory and exploring the site Melissa said: "We were shocked when we got a reply (from Kleenex) and think it's amazing. "There are a lot of companies out there who wouldn't do what Kleenex have done and given us the opportunity to come down and see how it happened."

Mr Carpenter agreed the opportunity was a good one: "There is the occasion where one or two rolls come through (without their flap), Daffy saw today what they check for and how that could possibly occur."

Impressed by the response from Kleenex, Melissa said: "Honestly, we've always been Kleenex supporters and will be forever and ever now."

Daffy and Melissa began the Daffy's Wise Words Facebook page in August last year and already has nearly 130,000 followers with one video nearing the 2m view mark, yet Daffy takes the viral videos in her stride.

"I'm dashed if I know why they watch me, I'm sick of all the overseas American trash like all the fake stuff, normal and truthful that's what people want," she said.

"I don't think about it I'm just Daffy, I just let it flow over, it's part of living."

After her whirlwind trip to the KCA Millicent Mill, Daffy did not think she would be going out for the next six months and said: "I'll go to bed early tonight."

In a flap: Daffy gives the toilet roll a thumbs up once she has checked for the flap, while Millicent Mill manager Adam Carpenter watches.

Moves to purchase land

By Kathy Gandolfi

Wattle Range Council is progressing with its intention to purchase vacant land along Fifth Street in Millicent after a public consultation period ended recently with seven submissions received, many of them concerned at the potential for the land to be on sold for residential development.

Earlier this year, council decided to ask the associated State Government department to revoke the community classification over the land which would enable the council to purchase the land from the government.

This would enable the community facilities on the land including the Men's Shed, Road Safety School, Craft Group, service groups and Community Garden to be combined on one land parcel to enable the lease arrangements with these bodies to be managed without the complexity of having to go through a government process each time one of the groups wished to alter something on the land.

The move would also enable a currently vacant portion of the land to be potentially used for future residential development.

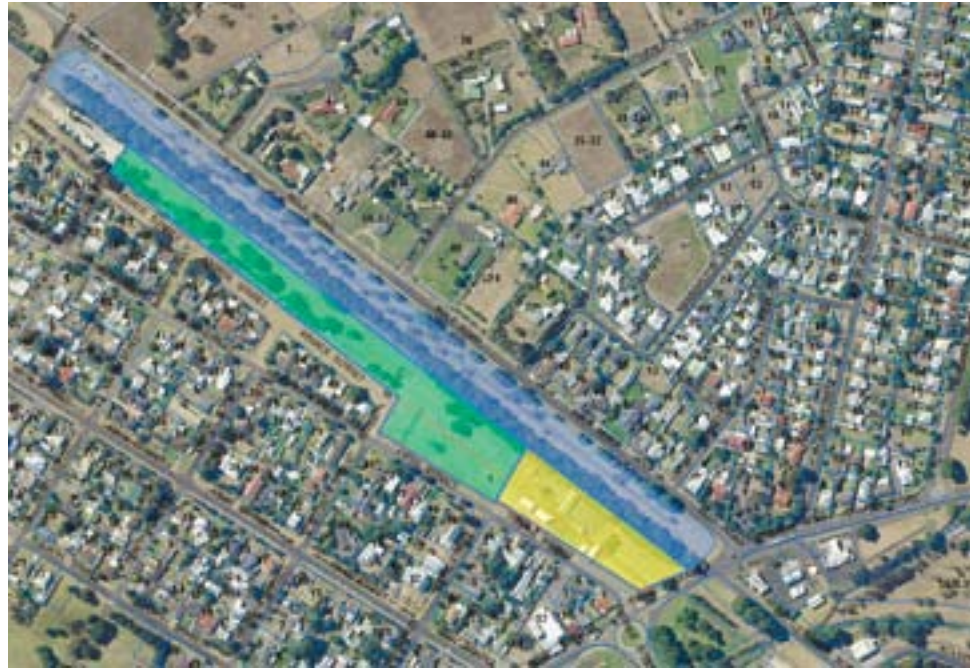

The latter was the focus of the majority of the submissions received from the public.

Tabled at the council meeting on Tuesday, the submissions from residents across the road from the vacant land wished for the land to remain vacant as it was used for recreational activities.

"The main reason we decided on this house was because there was vacant land across the road, so we still had the feel of living in town but without being closed in with neighbours on all sides," wrote Barb Rowland, a resident of Fifth Street, in her submission.

"I just don't see why this land needs to be residential ... surely there are other blocks of land for this purpose.

"This is a nice area and well used for people walking their dogs and kids riding their bikes,

An aerial map of land in Millicent's Fifth Street area which was the subject of discussions by council on Tuesday night - Yellow shows the Community Hub which will have its activities protected, purple is the Belt Road reserve which will be unaffected, and green is the area proposed for possible future residential allotments.

playing cricket, footy etc."

Another Fifth Street resident, Chris Mathias supported council's moves in relation to the community groups area but wished the remaining vacant land to be retained as parkland.

"... it is currently used frequently by the surrounding residents, and others from further afield, for outdoor recreation," he wrote.

"The availability of this open parkland is one of the attractions in this part of the town, therefore it would be beneficial to retain at least some of this area as parkland."

Mr Mathias wrote that there were other areas in the town that had been identified in the draft Wattle Range Strategic Land Use Plan for residential development.

"These include land surrounding the existing residential development around the high school, land near Teagle Excavations, and to the south of Fred Bolton Sports Park," he wrote.

"Ideally, these should be the priorities for residential development rather than popular and frequently used parklands.

"If residential development was to go ahead, it would need to include a buffer zone between housing blocks and the north-west end of the Community Hub.

"Failure to include this would result in complaints about workshop noise from neighboring residences.

"A buffer zone of at least 30 metres, preferably more to leave some area of recreational parkland, would be necessary.

"If development was to be progressed, it would be best limited to the north-west of the Aberle Street road reserve ..."

Tony Glowacki, President of the Men's Shed, was in support of the consolidation of the Community Hub land but recommended that the vacant land be reserved, and possibly improved, as parkland.

"If residential development were to go ahead around the Aberle Street road reserve, the additional recreational parkland would be an attraction for potential home buyers in the vicinity," Mr Glowacki wrote.

"Primarily, we are concerned with any residential development close to the Men's Shed, as the northern end of the Community Hub contains workshops which run machinery during the day, creating an element of noise that may not be welcome in houses built close by."

"In future this land may still be needed as parkland," wrote another Fifth Street resident, Rosemary Millar.

"Why not put the land adjacent to the radio station to better use and clean it up; future residential expansion could occur (there)."

Council decided at its meeting on Tuesday to provide a copy of the submissions report to the Department for Environment and Water and advise the Department of council's continued commitment to purchasing the land at an agreed price of $71,500.

The State Government first approached council to ascertain its interest in purchasing the land in 2020.

Erosion at the Southend beach east of the Lake Frome outlet.

Manager of the Southend Tourist Park, Claire Hubbard, shows the latest storm damage that has washed away the emergency sand replenishment work undertaken last summer.

Discussions on erosion

By Caroline Hammat

Shoreline erosion was the topic of discussion at the Southend Community Club last week when Wattle Range Council (WRC) presented the findings of a Rivoli Bay Data Collection and Modelling Report to residents.

Prepared for WRC by coastal engineering specialists, Baird, the report's key focus was to reduce the rate of shoreline recession and increase beach widths along the foreshore east of the Lake Frome Outlet.

Fifteen interested community members attended the presentation given by WRC's Director Engineering Services Peter Halton with Mayor Des Noll and Manager Assets and Environment Lauren Oxlade in attendance.

"We got some positive feedback and lots of discussion around the multitude of solutions, both the benefits and consequences of every option," said Mr Halton.

Mr Halton told the South Eastern Times that concerns raised by community members at the session included the idea that the community had already accepted a retreat option and their immediate concerns were with storm damage rather than seasonal changes.

"The retreat option is council's adopted position, but based on feedback provided in the meeting not the community's," he said.

"We acknowledge the feedback for an investigation into the best ways to manage erosion relating to major storms."

He went on to explain the sand works undertaken last summer in front of the caravan park.

"This was purely emergency work funded by the Coastal Protection Board and council," he said.

"It was a soft engineering strategy, with the lowest impact; an interim sacrificial treatment which has protected the Southend Caravan Park."

Manager of the Southend Tourist Park, Claire Hubbard, said their highly prized sites at the beachfront caravan park are at constant risk of erosion from storms.

"The sand replenishment was an emergency, it was never going to last long and it meant we didn't lose our main beach-view sites," she said.

"We recently went from such a long stretch of great weather and nothing much changed on this beach for 6-8 months, then we had one bad week and we lost the entire slope, one more bad week and we are nearly back to square one in the corner (of the caravan park)."

"Everyone's noticed the storm damage since the sand replenishment; it's a lot more obvious what one week of really bad storm weather can do."

Ms Hubbard is glad to see progress on the issue of erosion but is concerned that a solution still seems a long way off while the beachfront continues to erode.

"Council know something has to be done but I think the worst part is how expensive it will be to do anything," she said.

"There are no definites with erosion and that's where the main concern is, it's trying to find the right option, not just any option; we have to be careful we're not going to make something worse elsewhere."

Three options were progressed in the report for detailed assessment and included the removal of the Lake Frome outlet's eastern groyne, an offshore breakwater in front of the caravan park and lengthening and lowering of the existing three eastern groynes.

Community members on the night put forward variations on those three options which included using T-bar groynes and leaving gaps in the offshore breakwater.

With Ms Hubbard hopeful that council will explore these suggestions, she said: "I think the community were concerned there wasn't enough options, it was just three or four that had been decided in previous years that may work."

In response to the retreat option Ms Hubbard said: "Council's preferred option is to retreat but we don't know what that looks like, where does it begin or end, what is sacrificed and what is saved?"

There were several apologies for the meeting and the decision was made to present another information session in September with Mr Halton saying the second meeting gives council the opportunity to re-present the current options and prepare a response to comments raised at the June meeting.

Southend beach access is currently closed due to erosion from recent storm damage.

with the terrain providing challenging obstacles for the player.

The tournament is being held in Rotary Centenary Park with the course described as a modestly sized wooded venue with nine basket dual tees suitable for both beginner and advanced players.

A decade of ukelele fun

By Kathy Fennell

Members of the Penola Ukelele Group have been plucking strings for the past ten years and celebrated this milestone with an evening of fun at the Royal Oak Hotel in Penola on Monday.

Instigator of the group's formation, Annie Kilsby said: "We had a great get together on Monday night with the cutting of a 10th anniversary cake and lots of reminiscing.

"In April 2012, I made enquiries to see if anyone would be interested in learning the ukelele. I was overwhelmed with the response when 35 people contacted me.

"From then on our ukelele group, named the PUG'S [Penola Ukelele Group], was formed."

Mrs Kilsby said: "It was quite hilarious as I spent most of the first night tuning in the instruments."

The group first met at the Royal Oak Hotel and now meet each Monday at 4.30pm at the Penola Croquet Club.

Mrs Kilsby said: "We were the first ukelele group to form in the Limestone Coast."

PUG's has 10 regular members that play base, baritone, banjo, and ukelele.

"We have played at many venues and events including combining with the pipe band, the Lion's Club dinner, 60's and 70's nights at the RSL, senior citizens functions, Pinchunga, open gardens and several ukelele picnics in Adelaide," she said.

The group has also hosted picnics in the Penola Park. PUG's was selected to lead the Christmas play-along in Mount Gambier at the Cave Gardens last year.

Mrs Kilsby has conducted workshops for beginners at past Coonawarra-Penola Arts Festivals and has also helped teach ukelele at Mary MacKillop Memorial School.

"We have lots of fun and laughs and I would welcome anyone that would like to learn ukelele to come along," she said.

"If I can get enough new people I will hold a beginners class."

In October the group will hold a 50's song night at the RSL Hall.

Ladies show support for Ronald McDonald House

By Kathy Fennell

In October last year, a small group of five Penola women decided to reach out to Ronald McDonald House in Adelaide.

Local resident, Anne-Marie Williams had a personal family experience at Ronald McDonald House in Adelaide after her grandson was born prematurely and, along with his mother Kelly, spent three months there.

One of the women that helped form the group, Anne Johnson, said: "I had a conversation with Anne-Marie and we thought we could do something to support Ronald McDonald House.

"We decided to join 'Meals from the Heart' which is a program where volunteers can cook and share a dinner with children and families that are staying at Ronald McDonald House," she said.

The group, including Anne Johnson, Diana Clayfield, Anne-Marie Williams, Angela Winter and Jenny Tocaciu, participated in the cooking of a meal in October last year and it was a great success.

"We had so many people comment on what a beautiful meal it was, so this year we will do it all again in October and the theme for the meal will be 'Christmas in July'.

Last year all the produce was donated along with $600 from fundraising which was used to purchase items from a wish list including linen, breast feeding pillows and games.

For the cook up this year, all the produce has again been donated and there are donation tins at Windara Bakery and Penola Foodland and any monetary donations would be greatly appreciated.

The money raised will also go towards purchasing items on the wish list.

Anne said: "There are lots of families from down this way that use Ronald McDonald House and we want to keep supporting them as they rely on donations.

"We will continue to do this each year."

The ladies are decked out in special aprons made by Diana Clayfield.

Council employee numbers increase

Wattle Range Council intends to employ eight additional staff next financial year according to its draft 2022/23 budget document, and the wages bill is set to increase by $2.955m to $13.952m.

This is further to the nine additional employees approved by council this year outside of the budget process.

The draft budget document reported: "During the 2021/22 financial year council approved employment of staffing numbers over and above the changes detailed in the original budget.

"Council supported the employment of these staff members to partly provide employment opportunities in the council area but also to address resource deficiencies in a range of sectors within Council such as administration," the draft budget document stated.

"These changes also provided capacity building opportunities for Council to expand services particularly in the areas of parks and gardens and road maintenance and construction."

The draft budget document outlines the further increase in council employees and their proposed roles.

"The employment changes in 2022/23 is the second stage in a range of staffing changes," reads the draft budget document.

"The proposed changes... are focussed on addressing administration resource deficiencies that have occurred as a consequence of growth in both capital and operating projects over a number of years.

Wattle Range Council intends to increase its workforce by another eight full-time-equivalent staff next financial year.

"The changes also further support the proposed expansion of service delivery by Council in the areas of parks and gardens and CWMS [Community Wastewater Management Schemes] and pool maintenance."

The draft budget document stated that the eight full-time equivalents proposed to be added next financial year include new positions of governance officer, manager financial services, information technology officer, senior planning officer, general inspector, maintenance officer, parks and gardens operator, and asset management officer.

At the beginning of the current financial year, council employed 125 full time equivalents.

Following budget variations for additional staff this financial year, and the planned increase in staff next financial year, the total full time equivalent staff will be 143.

Council's draft budget was released for public comment last week.

School based apprenticeships popular

By Kathy Fennell

Some students from Penola High School have taken up the opportunity to participate in school based apprenticeships.

The apprenticeships are similar to other apprenticeships or traineeships and they are started part time as part of secondary schooling.

Students who take part earn a wage, work with an employer, and train towards an accredited qualification while undertaking their high school certificate.

Vocational Education and Training (VET) Co-ordinator at Penola High School, Kathleen Phillips said: "This is a wonderful scheme especially if they know what they want to do.

"It gives them the opportunity to complete their secondary schooling and participate in on site experiences.

"I receive information from Group Training Employment (GTE) and MEGT Apprentice Brokers regularly offering upcoming apprenticeships and make them available to interested students.

"I also have businesses approach the school offering the same," she said.

There is also the opportunity for students to take on full time apprenticeships.

Mrs Phillips said: "I am more than happy to speak with interested students, pass on relevant information and support them if they decide to go down this track.

"It is also an advantage if students do some work experience in their chosen field."

Currently there are two local boys participating in the scheme.

Ozzy Morton, a 17 year old Year 11 student is combining his apprenticeship at Ottelia at Coonawarra with his secondary studies and plans to be a chef.

"I started at Ottelia in January," he said.

"I am currently preparing and cooking wood fired pizzas and when I get good at that I will move onto another type of food preparation and cooking.

"I love learning new skills.

"To have the opportunity to complete my SACE, go to TAFE and work on site is absolutely fantastic," he said.

Master Morton also works on weekends to earn some extra cash.

School based apprentices Ozzy Morton and Wade Stone.

"I didn't always want to be a chef, but after experiencing a few other jobs, I found this is what I want to be," he said.

"One day I would like to spread my wings and travel to other countries to work and bring back some new skills."

The other participant is 16 year old Year 11 student, Wade Stone.

Master Stone has taken on an apprenticeship as a butcher in Penola, and is working under his grandfather, David Meek's, guidance.

Mr Meek, started his apprenticeship in 1975, and still owns and works in the business.

Master Stone began his apprenticeship in January.

"I really enjoy the work which includes making sausages, cutting up pigs, beef and sheep," he said.

"There are many different cuts of meat and I love learning about each cut."

Master Stone attends school for three days a week and is at the butcher shop for two days.

"I have a very good teacher and being a family business I want to do the best I can," he said.

"This is a great scheme as I can complete my secondary schooling, complete my apprenticeship and earn some money at the same time.

"I would encourage any student who wants to go down this school based apprenticeship path to seriously consider it.

"It is a wonderful opportunity."

Mrs Phillips is available at the high school for any information and advice to students and parents.

Georgia wins youth award

By Kathy Fennell

Penola's Georgia Winter was the recipient of the 2022 Wattle Range Council's Youth Award for the category 'Inspiration by Innovation'.

The annual awards were presented in Millicent recently where Ms Winter received a glass plaque and $200.

"I was wrapped to win this award, it was a big surprise," Georgia said.

The awards recognise the important and valuable contribution made by youth to the community.

Ms Winter's award recognises a young individual who has shown excellence in their field through research, study or improvement in their community.

The award highlights accomplishments made by youth in innovation in their chosen field, technology ventures or environmental advocacy projects.

Ms Winter's SA Certificate of Education (SACE) research project focused on the benefits of animals to mental health.

A Year 12 student at Penola High school, Ms Winter hopes to become a Vet Tech.

She was involved in obtaining the school therapy dog, Franky, whose presence at the school has provided many benefits to the students.

"I baked biscuits for every student in the school to celebrate 'Dolly's Day' and handed them out to continue the anti bullying message of spreading kindness," Ms Winter said.

She also organised the school formal, turning it into a fundraiser and awareness night for 'Dolly's Dream', an anti bullying platform, and it was a huge success raising $1000.

She is co-president of the school's Student Representative Council (SRC) and plans to organise another fundraiser later in the year.

Not only is Ms Winter involved in the community, she is also a talented sportswoman including as a member of the Mount Gambier Women's Pioneers basketball team.

"My passion is basketball and have played in the Millicent competition for the past 10 years and this is my first year with the Pioneers," she said.

"I started in the junior competition at Millicent and it has gone from there."

Georgia has also been a successful netballer for Penola and has assisted with helping in the NetSetGo junior netball program and lends a hand with the juniors at Little Athletics.

Wine 'young gun'

By Kathy Fennell

Coonawarra winemaker Luke Tocaciu has taken out the 2022 Young Guns of Wine Award in the Danger Zone category.

This is the only trophy in the winemaker awards that goes to a wine product, and it recognises a wine that successfully pushes the boundaries.

The Young Gun of Wine Awards started in 2007 and are open to young wine labels as well as winemakers on the rise within established wineries.

Other categories in the awards are the People's Choice, the Winemaker's Choice, the Best New Act and the Vigneron.

The top trophy, the Young Gun of Wine Award, goes to an emerging producer that is not only making outstanding wine but also demonstrates vision and leadership while nailing the entire pitch, packaging and presentation of their product.

Entries came from all over Australia, with half being South Australia based and the rest from other wine regions.

"This was the first time I had entered the event and it was a lot of fun," Mr Tocaciu said.

The winning wine is the 2021 Patrick Of Coonawarra Methode Eucalypt Cabernet Sauvignon. Mr Tocaciu said: "It's great to be recognised for this fun, experimental wine that pushes boundaries in Coonawarra and Cabernet Sauvignon."

"It's a wine that speaks to our unique Australian grape growing landscape."

The fruit for this wine was mechanically harvested and grown within 50 metres of red gums on the Patrick Home Block in a medium depth terra rossa soil which is dotted with red gum trees.

Mr Tocaciu said: "The resultant wine showed significantly increased eucalyptus aroma and flavour which developed into a blackberry, raspberry character being very balanced on the palate."

"This matured into a distinctly Australian Cabernet Sauvignon that expresses the environment in which it was grown."

These grapes were harvested into bins separate from the main harvest and a total of 1.7 tonnes was then crushed without destemming and allowed to spontaneously ferment with natural yeast.

The ferment was then plunged daily for seven days before being basket pressed and transferred to two oak puncheons.

The wine was then allowed to completely malolactic ferment and aged for 12 months before bottling.

"We bottled 2500 bottles, which is quite a small amount, and it went last very long," he said.

Mr Tocaciu said: "It has been well documented that eucalyptus trees in close proximity to vineyards have an influence on the resultant wine flavour."

He was presented with a trophy at a presentation dinner in Melbourne where Ryan Ponsford from Entropy Wines in the Gippsland was announced as the top award winner.

"I would encourage all young winemakers to enter this fun event," Mr Tocaciu said.

"I really enjoyed mixing with a great group of young winemakers from all over Australia," he said.

Rise and fall of council waste charges

The service charge of bin collections in Wattle Range Council will be reduced by three per cent but sewer fees will increase according to council's recently released draft budget for 2022/23.

The draft budget states that the annual waste collection service charge for the three-bin service will decrease to $334 from $346 while the two bin service will be $261 down from $270 due to "cost savings" on waste collection costs.

Council will also continue to offer a discretionary pensioner concession rebate to eligible ratepayers of $120 for those who have a three-bin service and a $90 fixed discretionary pensioner concession for pensioners who have a two-bin service.

Council provides two bin and three bin kerbside collection and recycling services in defined collection areas within the council area.

The two-bin service is provided to properties in residential rural living areas and commercial CBD areas, utilising a 140-litre bin for the collection and disposal of putrescible (non-recyclable) waste and a 240-litre bin for the collection and disposal of recyclable waste.

The three-bin service is provided to properties in defined township areas, utilising the same putrescible and recyclable bins as the two-bin service, plus a 240-litre bin for the collection and disposal of putrescible organic waste.

While a decrease has been flagged for bin services, council run community wastewater management scheme charges will increase by the consumer price index (CPI) which is currently 5.1 per cent.

The waste water charge will increase to $667 for occupied properties located in Southend, Kalangadoo and Penola.

In Beachport, which has a full sewer scheme, occupied property owners will be charged $757.

Committee disbanded

A Wattle Range Council committee, aimed at providing community advice, care and management of Kalangadoo's Riddoch Institute Memorial Hall, has been disbanded.

At council's meeting last month, councillors made the decision on the basis of a report from staff that included advice that the committee had not met for more than two years and that two committee members, including Chairman Nick Hunt had resigned.

Established in 2004, the committee did not have enough members to make a quorum.

"In lieu of these membership issues and resultant complications in obtaining a quorum and on the back of declining volunteerism across the whole of sector, the likelihood of the committee reforming and attracting the required membership is questionable," the council staff report said.

"Based on this situation and in consideration of council's evolution and maturity in Asset Management particularly in buildings assets over the past five years, Council is well placed to better oversee asset condition, building maintenance and renewal of building assets such as the Kalangadoo Riddoch Institute Memorial Hall."

The report said council now had the ability to undertake the duties of the committee through the employment of an asset management officer, using asset management computer software, regular independent condition assessments of buildings, and the employment of three tradespeople within council.

"These changes have put council in a more proactive position to undertake planned maintenance and schedule renewals of buildings when required," the report said.

"With council's development in asset management over the past five years, the requirement to have a section 41 Committee to oversee the care, management, protection and operation of this asset has now been superseded."

In light of this, council agreed to the staff recommendation with Cr Deb Agnew moving and Cr Dale Price seconding the motion to discontinue the operation of the Kalangadoo Riddoch Institute Memorial Hall Management Committee.

Council has written to Mr Hunt and other committee members to thank them for their years of service.

It will also place a notice on the door of the hall advising the public of how the hall can be booked.

The Tantanoola Hall committee was also recently disbanded for similar reasons.

Enjoying a day at the Millicent Domain playground

By Caroline Hammat

Millicent's Domain playground had a steady stream of visitors on Sunday with families dropping in to explore the area while the sun was shining.

Visitors to the area took advantage of the sunny autumn day to explore the playground and other sites around the region while locals caught up with family and friends at the popular site.

In town for the Lake Bonney Sporting Clays event are Kirsten and Damien Cameron from Christie Downs.

Sister-in-laws Lara and Sam McCallum arrive at the Domain for some fun with Elkie and Rory McCallum and Ruby and Levi Hutton.

Restoration continues: The historic site is undercover in black plastic and scaffolding waiting for next year's planned reveal.

Gaol renos locked away

By Caroline Hammat

The historic former lock-up behind the Millicent Police Station is currently receiving extensive work expected to be completed next year with plans for the Police Commissioner to attend the official opening of the restored building.

Work includes replacement of the roof and gutters along with restoration of the stonework but at this stage the full scope of works remains unconfirmed.

The humble stone building constructed in 1874 is Millicent's only confirmed State Heritage Place in the SA Heritage Register within the town centre and is described as a finely designed and constructed stone building.

After working at the Millicent Police Station for 10 years, Senior Sergeant officer in charge of the Millicent police station Rick Errington told the South Eastern Times he is pleased about the project.

"We are very excited about the progress of the project and the unveiling to follow in due course," Sgt Errington said.

"The works are tracking according to the guidelines and timeframes.

"It's a long burning project, it's going to take a while to sort it all out but we are very excited to showcase this wonderful structure that's in our backyard, it's a wonderful project for the community of Millicent."

Originally built along with a police station and stables when the first resident Police

Trooper was appointed to the town, the lock-up is the only building on the site remaining from this era.

The historic law-enforcement structure is listed on the heritage database site as having rare, uncommon or endangered qualities of cultural significance, and an outstanding representative of a particular class of place of cultural significance.

The building stands as a reminder of early police-work in an isolated rural community.

Brooke shines in capital

By Caroline Hammat

Former South Eastern Times journalist, Brooke Littlewood, had the honour of asking the opening question at a recent National Press Club address in Canberra.

The televised appearance was part of Ms Littlewood's award for winning the Caroline Jones Women in Media Young Journalist's Award for 2021.

Named in honour of Caroline Jones AO who paved the way for women in media during her long and successful career, the highly regarded award seeks to highlight outstanding reporting by female journalists working across the regions.

First applying for the award in 2020, Ms Littlewood's application was 'highly commended'; reluctant to enter again she made a last minute decision that proved successful.

"I'll never forget when Caroline Jones phoned me to inform me I was the winner, I think I said something along the lines of: Are you bloody serious?" Ms Littlewood told the South Eastern Times recently.

"If anyone knew Caroline you would understand the humour in this, she responded with: Yes Brooke, I am serious. Are you okay?"

"It definitely was a 'Pinch me I'm dreaming' moment and it still is."

It was difficult for Ms Littlewood to choose a single highlight of her award year but she noted the honour of being personally chosen by Caroline Jones as a standout.

Devastated that Ms Jones died suddenly aged 84 only a week before they were due to meet in person, Ms Littlewood spoke highly of her mentor.

"She was a remarkable journalist, friend and human and always showed an interest in what I was doing," Ms Littlewood said.

"We kept in contact via email, so even though I didn't personally meet her I still got to know her.

"Caroline said to me: 'Remember to have confidence in your outstanding ability' and whenever I'm in doubt, I'll remind myself of her kind words.

"She paved the way for generations of women in media, a generous mentor, her legacy will live on forever."

Spending a week in Canberra as part of the award, Ms Littlewood embraced networking opportunities.

"Women In Media are an incredible organisation, they show a genuine interest in what you are doing and believe in you," she said

"I know I now have those contacts and mentorship for life and I am forever grateful for that."

Shadowing talented photographers and journalists during her time in Canberra, Ms Littlewood spent a day at ABC Canberra TV studio with Louise Willis watching the 7pm News created, a day spent with ABC Rural's Kath Sullivan and Lucy Barbour at Parliament House and spent time with Chief of Photography for The Canberra Times Karleen Minney.

Ms Littlewood was honoured to ask the first question at the National Press Club address to speaker Aminata Conteh-Biger, an author, inspirational speaker and founder and chief executive officer of the Aminata Maternal Foundation.

Ms Conteh-Biger was one of the first Sierra Leonean refugees to be settled in Australia following her kidnap, imprisonment and subsequent release by rebel soldiers during the 11-year civil war.

As part of Ms Littlewood's award a celebratory dinner was held in her honour at the National Press Club and attended by Women In Media members.

"I couldn't believe so much time and effort had gone toward organising things like this for me," Ms Littlewood said.

"I left with renewed enthusiasm and inspired for what lies ahead in my career, no dream is ever too big."

Ms Littlewood also received a $2,500 personal development grant but is still deciding where to invest it.

"I'm keen to develop skills in multi-platform storytelling, as I've always been predominantly print and I am also interested in photography and videography.

"Otherwise, there is an International Federation of Agricultural Journalists congress held each year, which I would love to attend."

Now based in Perth, Ms Littlewood has been working for Farm Weekly since March last year with livestock reporting her main news round and the role offering plenty of opportunity to travel throughout rural Western Australia.

"Livestock is such a diverse round - there's more to it than sheep and cows," she said.

"I love getting out on the road, listening to farmers discuss how and why they do certain things in their programs, changes they've made over time, what's worked, what hasn't - basically everything.

"I feel so grateful that people trust me to share their stories and always hope I can give them the justice they deserve."

Beginning her cadetship at The South Eastern Times aged 17 in 2010, Ms Littlewood acknowledged the support received played an important role in her journey.

"The South Eastern Times was the best training ground for someone starting out in the industry, I covered everything from crime to council and events," she said.

"Regional and rural newspapers play such an important role in keeping communities informed of what is happening locally, it is important we continue to support them.

"Growing up, I have fond memories of The South Eastern Times.

"Nanna (Margaret Gordon) would save copies of the paper for me to read when I visited.

"As a kid in primary school, I dreamed of one day seeing my by-line on a page in the local rag."

Ms Littlewood completed her cadetship in 2013 and left the industry choosing to work in hospitality instead, firstly at Eucla Roadhouse in outback Australia then internationally in both England and Ireland.

On returning to Australia she secured a second stint reporting at The South Eastern Times for two years before moving to Mildura and reporting for the Sunraysia Daily eventually finding her way to her current job at Farm Weekly in Perth where she now lives with her sister Jess.

Reflecting on winning the Caroline Jones Award, Ms Littlewood said: "I can't explain how much it means to me or how grateful and thankful I am to have been chosen and for the opportunities that lie ahead.

"The readers and people who have supported me along the way - including everyone in Millicent - played a part in me receiving this award.

"The award goes far beyond recognition; it has given me validation and boosted my confidence, something I've always struggled with."

YOUR WEEKLY TV GUIDE

PICK OF THE WEEK

WHY DIDN'T THEY ASK EVANS?
ABC TV, Sunday, 9.15pm

Actor Hugh Laurie (House, The Night Manager) has adapted this compelling Agatha Christie tale with aplomb. He even stars in it, too boot. It's a sumptuous experience lacquered with humour and intrigue and, if you have yet to enjoy the first two instalments before tonight's conclusion, what are you waiting for? Starring the charismatic Will Poulter – in a role nothing like his turn on We're The Millers – and a bewitching Lucy Boynton (Bohemian Rhapsody), along with Emma Thompson, Jim Broadbent and our own Maeve Dermody, it's a slick, fun, entertaining murder-mystery that delights in aesthetics and the simple-yet-rewarding intrigue of a case begging to be solved.

WHAT'S ON THE BOX?

On the case:
Lucy Boynton and Will Poulter step back in time for Why Didn't They Ask Evans?

LAW & ORDER: SVU 10, Thursday, 8.40pm

Never far behind the headlines, America's longest-running crime drama churns out reliably up-to-date storylines with a regular pace for Captain Olivia Benson (Mariska Hargitay) and her team to solve. This episode, titled "Sorry If It Got Weird For You", focuses on the corporate side of dating apps and the shady shenanigans of founder Jackson Wright (guest star Jon Glaser). As a fellow user of Wright's app, Detective Velasco (Octavio Pisano, pictured) soon becomes embroiled in his accuser's problems, leading the SVU crew to defend him as more details emerge.

CELEBRITY APPRENTICE AUSTRALIA Nine, Monday, 7.30pm

There's no hiding behind the facade of a song, TV drama, sports game or even Instagram in this cut-throat competition which sees celebrities and well-known personalities fighting to reign supreme in the business world. It's often a matter of pride, and there's no hiding for the competitors when they stuff up. It's fascinating to witness the cracks – and fortitude – surfacing in their personalities. Tonight, Lord Alan Sugar (pictured) has the final four pitch a story about their lives to executives from the streaming service Stan.

THIS IS US 10, Wednesday, 10.40pm

Often mocked for leaning heavily on sentimentality, this drama – or tragedy – bows out tonight with a masterful flourish. Creator Dan Fogelman obviously had a clear vision for the multigenerational story of the Pearson family, which might have been hazy to some as it rummaged around in the past as far back as the '40s, all the way to 2040. Prepare for tissues, three words and a deceptively simple conclusion as Kevin (Justin Hartley), Kate (Chrissy Metz), and Randall (Sterling K Brown, pictured, left, with Metz and Hartley) bow out.

Motoring

Polestar's Swedish twin

By Ewan Kennedy, Marque Motoring

Sweden is in the forefront of thinking when it comes to global warming and is working hard on reducing emissions from its vehicles.

Polestar is a sub brand of Volvo and shares some components with the Volvo XC40 Recharge which was tested recently.

The Swedish Polestar 2 is a pure EV, running on batteries without any internal combustion engine to back it up.

Three variants are offered: Standard Range single motor, Long Range single motor, and Long Range dual motor.

Polestar quotes expected range of 474km, 542km and 482km respectively.

It's a five-door hatchback and, in the Swedish style, is neat without being designed to impress.

The front has a sort of radiator grille, perhaps to suit potential buyers who aren't keen on a car which looks different from the norm.

At each side of the grille are the famed 'Hammer of Thor' shaped lights as used in all Volvos.

The seats are large and comfortable.

However, the foot space in the front isn't as wide as expected, probably due to the fact that it's based on the similar platform as the smaller Volvo XC40.

The panoramic roof is huge, there's even an illuminated Polestar logo reflection, but you can only see it from the back seat.

The roof is tinted, but there's no blind or electro-chromatic setting to lessen the amount of light and heat that can come through on a sunny day.

This wasn't a problem as we tested the Polestar 2 in winter here on the Gold Coast.

We will try to get another one in summer and see how it feels.

There's a real look and feel of upmarket luxury inside, the soft-touch fabrics and other materials around the cabin are that well-mated and blend of high-quality minimalism.

The Polestar uses a Google-sourced Android Automotive infotainment software.

The Hey Google voice assistant and control some of the car's functions as well as the infotainment and navigation features.

If you log in with a Google account, you can search for things on your phone and have them available in the car seamlessly.

Polestar 2 is offered with in three models; single motor and standard range, single motor with long-range and dual-motor with a long-range battery pack.

The Polestar 2 we tested is the "big gun model" had dual electric motors and long-range batteries.

Its official range is 480km.

Polestar is closely related to Volvo and the company has had safety built into its vehicles for many decades.

It has a five-star safety rating.

Dual frontal, side chest-protecting and side head-protecting (curtain) airbags are standard.

A centre airbag which provides added protection to front seat occupants in side impact crashes is standard on all variants.

Autonomous emergency braking (Car-to-Car, Vulnerable Road User and Junction Assist) as well as a lane support system with lane keep assist (LKA), lane departure warning (LDW) and emergency lane keeping (ELK), and an advanced speed assistance system (SAS) are standard on all variants.

When we got into the car we looked in vain for a Start-Stop button.

Only to find it doesn't have one. Put your foot on the brake pedal and select either Drive or Reverse and the Polestar is ready to go.

It's a bit spooky at first because there's no noise, but you soon adapt the brain to it.

Handling is generally neutral as the centre of gravity is lower than in a petrol- or diesel-powered vehicle.

It's a fairly heavy vehicle because batteries have a lot of mass and it weighs in at 1.9 tonnes.

This does give it a slight reluctant to change direction.

Country running on twisty roads is good but you wouldn't put it in the sports coupe category.

The excellent instant acceleration that we love in all pure electric vehicles is a major feature.

It will beat anything off the line that's powered by a V8 or hot six-cylinder petrol engine.

Around town and in the suburbs there's little noise inside the Polestar 2.

On the motorway section of our road testing the noise did penetrate more and disturbed the serenity.

There's some tyre bump thump when crossing bridges.

Energy consumption is officially rated at 19.4 kWh per 100 kilometres.

We averaged 16.8 kWh during our road testing of the Polestar 2 as we did a fair bit of suburban running and the vehicle charges itself when slowing down.

Indeed, on our run over the high Gateway Bridge it's indicated range increased when we freewheeled in on the down slope.

Polestar 2 gives us a strong insight as to what motoring will be like in the future.

Its low running costs and strong performance are impressive.

Polestar investing in fast charging future technology

By Ewan Kennedy, Marque Motoring

Swedish car maker Polestar has made its first financial investment as a company, investing in extreme fast-charging battery technology innovator, StoreDot.

StoreDot is pioneering the development of silicon-dominant extreme fast-charging batteries for electric vehicles.

The Israel-based company aims to produce batteries for EVs capable of charging up to 160 km of range in just five minutes by 2024.

StoreDot's advanced battery technology aligns with Polestar's strategy of leveraging broader innovative industry partners to drive advancements in electric mobility.

Polestar CEO Thomas Ingenlath said Polestar can help shape the development of new battery technology for the automotive industry while providing invaluable insights from the perspective of a brand focused on performance and sustainability.

As part of the strategic deal, Polestar is collaborating with StoreDot to explore adapting and applying their technology to proof-of-concept Polestar cars.

Test cases already being explored include customising StoreDot's cell technology for Polestar cars, to enable faster charging and improved circularity.

"Charging and range anxiety are common concerns holding owners of combustion engine cars back from making the switch to EVs. StoreDot's advanced battery technology potentially provides real solutions to these obstacles," Mr Ingenlath said.

"If our current pilot projects with StoreDot are successful, we could see these solutions being implemented in Polestar cars by 2026."

StoreDot CEO Dr Doron Myersdorf, added they were extremely excited to be entering into an agreement with Polestar, both as an investor and collaborator.

"Like us, Polestar is an extremely ambitious, innovative brand and is already proving to be pivotal in the mass adoption of electric vehicles, helping us move to a cleaner, zero-emissions world," Dr Mysendorf said.

"We are looking forward to working together and we know that our technologies have huge potential to eradicate charging and range anxieties for future Polestar owners."

Fast charge: The new Polestar charging stations are in collaboration with Israel-based technology innovator, StoreDot.

Teams set for second go

Glencoe v Kalangadoo

Mid South East netball teams prepare to face each other for the second time this year when Round 10 kicks off on Saturday.

First up, Glencoe hosts Kalangadoo in what is expected to be the match of the round.

Kalangadoo's line up has changed since the last time the two teams met back in Round 1 when Glencoe won by 27 goals.

Abbey Duncan is combining well with youngster Kori Collins in the goal circle and is fed well by Jayde Peacock and Kirsty Egan.

For Glencoe, Sarah Edwards and Chelsea Owen will need to be at the top of their defensive game as opportunities for rebound will be limited.

At the other end of the court, the Murphies have many goalie options with any of the following able to combine well - Jenna Paproth, Chantelle Cocks and Malinda Markiewicz. This game will go down to the wire and the result could go either way, with the margin sure to be much closer this time around.

Hatherleigh v Mount Burr

Hatherleigh takes on Mount Burr in what is set to be another close contest, with only three goals separating the sides in Round 1.

Hatherleigh has taken the time to settle their line up, with Maddie Pulmer and Abby Wight combining well in the goal circle and allowing Maddie Redman to play back in her more familiar role of defence.

Meg Fennell will have an interesting tussle with Chelsea Galpin, who returns to the court after sustaining an ankle injury against Kongorong.

Hatherleigh may utilise Tegan Telfer or Erin Watson in centre to curb Laura Schultz's influence on the game.

Hatherleigh also has many options in the defensive circle and utilise that to their advantage.

The team whose goalies settle first will come away with the win.

Nangwarry v Tantanoola

Nangwarry will look to reduce the margin from the last time they faced Tantanoola.

Emma Gould's confidence would be high

Hatherleigh will need to curb the influence of Mount Burr's Laura Schultz when the two sides face off on Saturday.

after selection in the 2022 Country Championships senior team of the year.

Nangwarry will need to shut her down if they are to achieve that goal.

However, with Tantanoola having one of the more settled sides in the A Grade competition, Nangwarry may struggle to do this.

For the Tigers, defenders Kate Bromley and Tayla Rowe will limit opportunities to Nangwarry's Tahlia Wilson and Ange Pratt, who are both accurate in the circle.

The Saints' Hayley Burner will have a good tussle through the centre with Casey Walker, with both players having good drive to the ball and pressure down the court.

Nangwarry will fight hard but the Tigers will come away with the win.

Port MacDonnell v Kongorong

Kongorong is on the improve and will take the game right up to Port MacDonnell down at the Bay.

With her height and accuracy, Tilah Buckingham has caused headaches for defenders across the association.

Kirby Carrison will be tasked with shutting Buckingham down.

Coming off a strong performance at the SA Country Championships, Emma Gould is sure to have an impact on Tantanoola's clash with Nangwarry on Saturday.

However Port MacDonnell is also more settled than in Round 1, with Toni Gilmore's accuracy and experience giving her team confidence.

Sarah Lucas is consistent at the defensive end for the Hawks and paired with Emily Lightbody's height, could cause upsets for Port MacDonnell's Gilmore and Brooke Williams.

Liza Mutch has been a good pick up for the Demons, with her fitness and speed through the mid court.

Port MacDonnell's experience should get them over the line.

No reason for 'dog act'

By Trevor Jackson

Kongorong Football Club has classed the Limestone Coast Regional Carnival a big success for the club itself and the wider football community in general.

However, it could have been much different, was it not for the band of volunteers who help keep the facilities up to scratch.

Club president Amanda Sealey said she arrived at the oval on Saturday morning only to find someone had driven a car on the oval on Friday night and ripped up parts of the grass.

The incident was caught on camera and the details have been handed to the police.

It was a disappointing situation for the club, with one of the biggest days on the calendar set to unfold.

The ground was meticulously prepared in readiness, then suddenly it was all hands on deck to ensure the games between the Mid South East, Western Border and Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara leagues went ahead without any disruption.

Sealey said the damage was not as bad as it could have been but left a big job for volunteers prior to the first bounce.

"Everything is done by volunteers which is the main kick in the guts," she said.

"The whole club is run by volunteers and to have someone come in and do that right before such an important day really is a let down.

"I made a couple of phone calls in the morning and rallied the troops.

"They got out there and picked all the grassy bits, then ran over it with a ute with wide tyres to flatten it out, then filled in the deeper bits.

"The day was never in jeopardy but it is just annoying it happened."

The day went ahead without any other issues but again it was the dedicated volunteers who had to change their own plans to ensure all would go to script.

"I have some committee members who are farmers and one dropped everything to come and help fix it," Sealey said.

"He was coming later in the day to help in the stubby shed but he rearranged his day at the drop of a hat to come and help.

"You always struggle to get people to put their hand up but they always seem to turn up when we need them.

"We have really good people and that makes a huge difference in any club.

"You need a strong band of volunteers to get the job done."

While the act did not affect the football on the day, Sealey was quite stern in her assessment.

"It is just a dog act really," she said.

"I don't get it.

"Whether they were disgruntled they didn't get selected or something I don't know.

"I would hate to think it was a Mid South East person but who knows.

"It could be just someone who had no ties to football and simply wanted to wreak a bit of havoc."

At the end of the day Sealey said it simply showed the dedication of the club's members and from there everything went to plan.

"It all turned out well in the end," she said.

"The rain held off and it was quite a reasonable day.

"The club did well through all the catering and it just put a dampener on the start of the day.

"It is all about making the best out of it and pushing on."

MSEFL back to the start

By Trevor Jackson

The second half of the Mid South East football season kicks off this weekend, with teams lining up for another shot at each other.

While a couple of games look almost clear-cut, as has been the case throughout the season, any side is capable on its day, which provides a real challenge for tipsters across the region.

Glencoe v Kalangadoo

Glencoe hosts the powerhouse Kalangadoo, with a tough task ahead, despite the home-ground advantage.

Back in Round 1 the two sides faced off at Kalangadoo and the Magpies were clear victors, to the tune of 113 points.

That was before the return of Michael Krieger to the Magpies' line up and since he again pulled the boots on, he has been in impressive form.

In his seven games this season Krieger has amassed 38 goals, with a bag of 10 against Nangwarry the biggest haul so far.

However, last round before the bye he was kept goal-less against Hatherleigh as the Eagles inflicted the first loss on Kalangadoo for the year.

If the Murphies are to make a statement this week they will have to put a plan in place to keep the sharp shooter quiet.

So far the Murphies sit down in eighth place on the ladder, with wins against Nangwarry and Mount Burr.

Simply going on season form it is hard to see Glencoe coming close to the ladder leaders this week, as Kalangadoo looks to bounce back from its last-round loss.

Hatherleigh v Mount Burr

Hatherleigh hosts Mount Burr in what should be another win for the Eagles.

The Eagles would be on a high after taking care of Kalangadoo last round before the bye and will look to keep that momentum rolling.

The Mozzies also come off a win, in a tough contest against Tantanoola, where just five points decided the outcome.

Looking back to their last clash in Round 1 does not bode well for the Mozzies.

Mount Burr came out hard and led at the first break but from there it was all about the Eagles as they piled on the goals in the second term and ran on from there.

Jack Dawe will play a huge role in Tantanoola's chances of defeating Nangwarry in Round 10 of Mid South East football on Saturday.

Apart from a poor performance against Port MacDonnell in Round 8, the Eagles have looked every bit a premiership challenger.

A strong forward pack provides plenty of options to score, while the Eagles also manage to defend well, as was seen last round against Kalangadoo.

As with all teams this season, Mount Burr has returned mixed results, with its win over Robe in Round 8 showing what the side can achieve.

The Mozzies will need to be at their best if they are to win against the Eagles but even then it will be a tough task.

Hatherleigh should use its home ground to good advantage and claim a strong victory.

Nangwarry v Tantanoola

Nangwarry is still chasing that elusive victory and would like its chances against Tantanoola on home turf.

When the two sides faced off in the season opener the Tigers were victorious but only just.

Scores were tied at half time, then the Tigers built a bit of a lead heading into the final term, before the Saints made a real run and almost pulled off the win.

Andrew Hyland was the key up forward for the Saints and banged on eight goals that day.

He has struggled at times to find himself in a scoring position but once in range he is certainly a danger to any opposition.

As the season has panned out the Tigers have had mixed fortunes but with coach Jak Ryan roaming around the forward line and the ruck, anything is possible.

Goals have been scarce for Ryan but against the Saints in the opening round he banged on six majors.

Jack Dawe is another the Saints need to be wary of, as he runs hard through the middle and is more than capable of finishing off.

Last round the Tigers went down to Mount Burr by just five points and would hope to chalk up another victory to remain in touch with the top four.

They should get the job done against the Saints but Nangwarry will certainly come out hard and look to record its first victory for many years in front of their home crowd.

Port MacDonnell v Kongorong

Port MacDonnell has experienced an up-and-down year as the Demons look to defend their 2021 premiership flag.

Darcy Bateman was impressive against Mount Burr in the opening round of Mid South East football and will look to improve on that performance when the two sides face off again in Round 10.

They host Kongorong this week and would look to use its recent good form to good effect.

A highlight for the Demons was their victory over Hatherleigh in Round 8, which they followed up with a big win over Glencoe before the league-wide bye.

A tough start to the season was compounded by the lack of a home venue but even so, in Round 1 the Demons easily accounted for the Hawks in a game which had been transferred to Kongorong.

Only a final push in the last quarter closed the margin slightly, with the Demons claiming points by a healthy 25 points.

The usual suspects stepped up in that clash, with multiple goals coming from Ned Wilke, Tim Sullivan, coach Simon Merrett and Kevin Thomson.

With the refurbished oval down at the Bay standing up well to the recent rain, all is set for the Demons to continue to find form and push a couple of games clear of fourth-placed Robe, who have a bye this round.

There should be no problems for the home side to claim the points in this one, with Kongorong sure to put up a strong challenge.

Skeer and Burdon claim victory in poor conditions

There were 24 bowlers who braved the weather to take part in a 2-4-2 game at the Millicent Bowls Club last Thursday.

The round was reduced from 20 ends, to 18, which allowed players to warm up at the end of the game with tea or coffee.

Steve Skeer and Bill Burdon claimed the overall win with a score of 32+20.

The pair took home the prize pool of $24 each.

David Reichelt and Derrick Lindh were runners-up with 31+17.

The other winning teams were Peter Dunicliff and Neil Whelan on 31+4.

Malcolm Wright and Iain Campbell with a score of 30+9.

Jim Campbell and Robert Radley finished with a score of 30+5 Denis Clifford and John Buhlmann scored 30+4.

Steve Skeer and Bill Burdon claimed the win in Thursday's round at the Millicent Bowls Club.

Players were treated to traditional Ukrainian borscht soup as well as chicken Kiev and a variety of cakes and slices.

The club held a trading table, which raised $350 for UNICEF.

Pat Boyd claimed the A Grade win in the Otelia Monthly Medal last week.

Mossop was the runner-up for A Grade, while Barb Provis was the B Grade winner ahead of Karen Hunter.

The prizes were presented by Otelia's Melissa Innes.

MSE netballers impress

The Mid South East Netball Association fell just short of Country Championships glory on the long weekend, going down to a strong Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara side in the grand final by 13 goals.

Played at the Netball SA Stadium in Adelaide, the MSE kicked off its campaign with a nail-biting 30-27 victory over Great Flinders, while the KNT claimed a huge 54-8 win over Roxby Downs.

In a similar scenario, Round 2 saw the MSE again fight right to the end against Whyalla to secure a 34-29 win.

The KNT controlled its game against Yorke Peninsula to claim a 34-20 victory.

The two sides faced off in Round 3, with the KNT securing the win in a tight battle.

In the end they claimed a 27-22 victory, which set the scene for the eventual grand final showdown.

KNT dropped its first game of the carnival in Round 4, going down to North Eastern in another nail-biter 25-23.

Meanwhile the MSE girls flexed their muscles with a dominant 46-11 victory.

The tight games continued for MSE in Round 5, as they accounted for Yorke Peninsula 28-24, while KNT dropped its second game of the weekend with a 40-22 loss to Great Southern.

MSE enjoyed the bye in the final minor round, while KNT was forced to again fight out a tight battle, this time against Eastern Eyre, with a 26-23 victory.

At the end of the minor rounds MSE sat in second place on the ladder, while the KNT was further down in fourth place.

In the first round of finals the MSE again showed its strength with a hard-fought 23-17 win over North Eastern to book its grand final berth.

As had been the case throughout the minor rounds, strong games came from Annie Hunter in the mid-court and Halle Carter, who showed her speed and accuracy in the goal circle.

The side built up a five-goal advantage in the first half to set up the win.

KNT had to fight even harder, coming away with a 28-27 win over Great Southern to earn the right to challenge MSE for the top honours.

While the Mid South East girls struggled to settle in the final, there were limited rebounding opportunities from the accurate KNT goalies.

KNT continued to apply pressure all over the court and forced MSE into errors and limited their opportunities to score.

While the game was well contested, the KNT girls were able to build a lead throughout and ran away with the honours after a tough weekend of netball.

In the wash-up, MSE players Hunter and Emma Gould were picked in the Seniors Country Championships team of the year.

In the junior ranks, the 13 and Under Mid South East girls finished their weekend in the Division 2 quarter-final, going down by just three goals to the Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara association.

The girls finished in sixth place in their pool, with four wins and six losses in the minor rounds.

The 15 and Under girls finished in seventh place in their pool, after three wins and seven losses in the minor rounds.

They then contested the Division 2 quarter-final and claimed a 22-14 victory over Northern Areas, before going down to Barossa Light and Gawler 28-21 in the Division 2 semi-final to finish their weekend.

The 17 and Under girls were impressive throughout their round games, with nine wins, one loss and a draw.

That booked a Division 1 quarter-final clash with Hills, a side which won just eight games in their pool.

However, Hills proved too strong in the quarter-final, defeating the MSE girls 25-13.

Mid South East Netball Association players Halle Carter and Emma Gould made the team of the year at the SA Netball Country Championships on the long weekend.

Championship honours Western Border netballers

By James Murphy

Western Border Netball Association's 17 and Under representative side claimed the honours with an undefeated Netball SA Country Championships campaign over the weekend.

In a big three days of netball the team competed against rival country netball associations at Adelaide's Netball SA Stadium.

Coached by Donna Denton and Michelle Skeer, the 17's progressed through the minor rounds relatively untroubled, with several big wins on their way to a finals berth.

A five-goal win over Riverland was the slimmest margin, while an eight-goal triumph over Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara was another closer clash.

With three rounds of finals, Western Border started with a 36-14 win over Barossa Light and Gawler in the quarter final, before an equally strong 36-18 result against Hills.

That set up a grand final clash with Riverland.

The decider was a game of two halves, with Western Border off to a shaky start to trail 9-11 after the first 15-minute half.

However, in an impressive turnaround Western Border upped the pressure and was able to find more space in the second to flip the game on its head.

"They (Riverland) took seven minutes to score in the second half and they only scored three goals against us in the second half," Denton said.

"It was a big turnaround - we scored nine in the first half and then we scored 20 in the second."

Denton was proud of the result and knew the team had the potential to go all the way.

"They were a beautiful bunch of girls and they just enjoyed representing Western Border," she said.

For some it was the first taste of representative netball, as Lara Munro and Ebany Jar-rad had the perfect Country Championships debut.

On the other end of the spectrum, captain Alyssa Duncan had a fitting conclusion to her junior representative career after six years in the WBNA colours.

"It was really nice for her to captain the team and get the win in her final junior year," Denton said.

Denton said there were no passengers on the weekend and the grand final in particular was a real team effort.

While the 17 and Under side was the only championship winner from Western Border, it did not hog all the success.

All five Western Border teams which attended the championships made the quarter finals.

That included the championship and development teams in both the 15 and Under and 13 and Under grades.

The 15 and Under development team was knocked out of the Division 2 quarter final, while the 13 and Under development team progressed to the Division 3 semi-final, where they lost to Southern Hills.

Both the 15 and 13 and Under sides made the Division 1 grand finals but were unable to take the final step to championship glory.

The 15 and Under team competed in Pool A and despite a fourth-place finish after the minor rounds, excelled in finals to book a Division 1 grand final berth with Port Augusta.

After a tight match Port Augusta won 31-28 to claim the championship - the same margin as their minor-round meeting which was won 25-23.

It was a valiant effort from Western Border as Port Augusta finished the event with only one loss.

The 13 and Unders finished second on the table in Pool A, with one loss to eventual champions Mid Hills.

Wins over Riverland and Yorke Peninsula in the quarter and semi-final respectively booked a place in the decider, where a close battle with Mid Hills unfolded.

At the final whistle Western Border lost by four goals to finish Division 1 runners-up.

Overall it was a successful trip for the WBNA and one Denton said would not have been possible without the valuable services of Di Gould.

"Di does a massive amount of work to get Western Border to Adelaide each year," Denton said.

She also coached the 15 and Under side in a huge contribution to the Association.

The Western Border Football League stamped its authority on Saturday's Limestone Coast Regional Carnival at Kongorong.

Competing in the Under 15 and Under 17.5 divisions, the league claimed the representative honours for both grades.

The Under 17.5 side was coached to victory by Ben Hardy and started its campaign with a strong win over the Mid South Eastern Football League.

They wasted no time setting themselves up in the 53-point triumph, where they held MSEFL to a single behind over two 22-minute halves.

Eventual Under 17.5 player of the carnival and captain of the WBFL team Kalan Shanks was in fine form to lead his side to the win.

Harry Wright was the focal point in front of goal with three for the match, while Jacob Todd also popped up with two in a strong display to start the carnival.

The win set up a finals-like clash with the Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara Football League in the last junior fixture of the day.

The KNTFL had also claimed victory over MSEFL, with a 39-11 point result.

As such a close contest was expected between the two leagues and spectators were not disappointed.

Western Border started well to open the scoring and hold the early lead.

However, KNTFL did not bow down and worked their way back into the half.

With eight minutes left KNTFL scored its third goal to bring it back to a one-point game.

Another major before the break put them in front and WBFL trailed 19-24 at the change.

It set up an exciting second half, with Hardy proud of the efforts shown by his Western Border boys.

"KNT fought it back and got in front at half time, but we just changed a few things and the boys really responded to that," he said.

"We put some emphasis on our older guys in the midfield to play a role for the whole half - and they did that."

When Jacob Todd converted from a set shot a few minutes into the second term he handed Western Border a lead it would not give up.

In fact, WBFL piled on five consecutive goals in a purple patch of football to seemingly put the game to rest.

However, KNTFL refused to back down and kicked the last three goals of the game to keep the pressure on.

It was not quite enough to push them over the line and WBFL emerged eight-point victors, 50-42.

Wright was named best-on-ground for WBFL in that clash, with his efforts in the ruck in the second half earning valuable clearances to set up the win.

Harry Fisher and Nelson Forbes bagged two goals each, while Joe Judd and Lochie Thiele also impressed.

Thiele performed consistently across the day and earned the Under 17.5 WBFL league MVP award.

Hardy could not have been happier with the results and was proud to put on a strong display as a league.

"Western Border junior football is in a pretty strong and healthy place so it was good to show everyone where we are as a league," he said.

With top-age players kitting up at junior level for the last time, Hardy said it was the perfect finish to their junior representative careers.

He said Shanks was a deserving recipient of the player of the carnival accolade.

"The big thing for him was he wanted to be a great leader and show his leadership and I felt like he did that," Hardy said.

"Tyler Harris stood out across the day as well playing the small forward role and Keenan Dwyer in the back half was fantastic as well."

However, with 12 players named in the Under 17.5 team of the carnival, there was no shortage of strong performances on the day.

KNTFL was best represented by Tom Anderson across their two games and he earned the MVP award for his league, while the Mid South East prize went to Robe's Flynn Peel.

Future stars showcased

By James Murphy

The future looks bright for the Western Border Football League after its Under 15 representative side claimed the annual honours at Saturday's Limestone Coast Regional Carnival.

Played at Kongorong, the WBFL matched up against the Mid South Eastern and Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara Football Leagues in two games played in 22-minute halves.

Western Border's first match opened the carnival and resulted in a dominant win over MSEFL.

They held their opponent to a single goal, while finishing with 11 of their own in a 64-point drubbing.

KNTFL also accounted for MSEFL with an equally impressive 72-19 point win.

As such it all came down to the final Under 15 fixture to decide the carnival winners.

"It was definitely a finals-like game against the KNT, which is what you want for that next level," WBFL Under 15 coach Andrew Nitschke said.

The first half was an arm wrestle and with a minute to play in the term Western Border's Will Attiwill converted to level the scores at 14-all.

Josh Jones then marked with seconds left on the clock and a goal after the siren put WBFL in front at half time.

A revitalised effort in the second half allowed WBFL out to a quick start and they piled on consecutive goals to boost their lead. A late charge from KNTFL kept the pressure on but WBFL stood strong to claim a five-point win.

Nitschke was proud of the performance from his team at representative level.

"It was good to be involved and good for the kids to have an opportunity to play at the next level," he said.

"It was nice for the boys to go undefeated through the two games."

Millicent's Kobe Gibson captained the side and his impressive efforts across the two games earned him the Under 15 player of the carnival award, as judged by Glenelg representatives on the day.

"I thought Kobe was a worthy winner of the player of the carnival and he led from the front," Nitschke said.

"He backed up both games and was really consistent over the day."

South Gambier's Dean Harten was also impressive and won the WBFL MVP award for Under 15's.

However, Nitschke said it was a team effort which resulted in the success of the day.

"I think they all played their role during the day at some stage, which was really pleasing," he said.

"Obviously you can only name so many best players, but it took the whole group to get there."

Jacob Salmon was named Western Bor-

A total of 10 WBFL players were named in the Under 15 team of the carnival, while Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara's Ned McCarthy and Mid South East's Charlie Bevan were named MVP's for their respective leagues.

Title defence resumes

By James Murphy

Fresh off a bye for the long weekend, Millicent A Grade footballers will look to resume their successful 2022 Western Border football campaign this Saturday.

The Saints sit second on the premiership table heading into this week's Round 10 home game against East Gambier.

A win of a large enough margin could boost them to the top seat, as South Gambier holds first place on percentage alone.

The Bulldogs have been left wanting this season and despite glimpses of their former glory, have failed to reap the rewards brought on by consistency.

They sit on the bottom of the table with a single win for the year and will face the challenge of visiting McLaughlin Park for a clash with the reigning premiers.

Last time the sides met was in Round 5 at McDonald Park.

On that occasion East started strongly to set up a four-goal lead by the first change, but from there Millicent took control.

The Bulldogs were held to one goal after quarter time, which did not come until the fourth term as the Saints marched to a 28-point victory.

Josh Werchon, Kade Varcoe, Frazer Bradley and Sam Willis led the way in the meeting and they have all maintained a high standard of football since.

Bradley comes off a best-on-ground performance against North Gambier in Round 9, while the likes of Varcoe, Werchon and Zac McGuinness have been consistent performers throughout the season so far.

Dylan Bromley has started to become the focal point in front of goal and could attract the attention of Nick Lock on the day.

However, the Saints' options are far from limited and the likes of Jacob Carger, Willis and Werchon have been regular goal scorers.

Hamish Nitschke's return from injury has added another avenue and his versatility has proven an asset in the last couple of rounds.

The Bulldogs will look for another strong outing from co-coach Jayden Eldridge, who put in some quality performances heading into the bye.

Lock has also been consistent for East this year, while Luke Johnston, John Forster and Carl Slape all carry form into the clash.

Mark Rumbelow has started to make his presence known in front of goal and he will join Garrett Ha as the main targets inside 50.

If they can find reliable deliveries the Bulldogs could put up a fight, but it is becoming progressively more difficult to mount a case for them against the top teams.

As such Millicent should claim the points by a comfortable margin on its home deck.

Saints play Bulldogs on home court

By James Murphy

Western Border netball action returns this weekend with McLaughlin Park to host a clash between Millicent and East Gambier.

The Round 10 meeting between last year's grand finalists will bring some intrigue, but the Saints are expected to claim the points again.

The Bulldogs have had trouble putting a settled line-up on the court in 2022 and as such they are yet to build the momentum they would have liked.

When the sides met in Round 5 Millicent claimed a seven-goal win.

After a close first half the Saints found some control in the third quarter and pushed ahead to victory.

East's Sarah Lock and Amryn Bosko were in good form under the post in that meeting, but calf issues have left Lock sidelined of late.

Whether she steps onto the court could be a deciding factor in this week's game,

Lisa Duldig's return from injury has boosted an already strong Millicent roster as the back half of the season progresses.

while the battle of the mid-court will be one to watch.

The recent return of Lisa Duldig to the centre has buoyed an already strong Millicent outfit. Her clash with East's Emily Hunter will be pivotal, while Morgan Amy and Bo Creek will have an important task in the Bulldog's defence.

They will need to deny Millicent's prolific shooting combination of Demi Verbena and Tabatha Sanderson too much ball.

The duo have been in good touch of late and both have been accurate finishers under the post, while Verbena's long-range accuracy is also dangerous.

At the other end Portia McRae and Hannah Nitschke will work hard against East's shooters, whoever they end up on the day.

Should Lock remain absent, Bosko could be joined by A Reserve's Renee Henke in attack, which would not be her first appearance in the top grade this season.

The Saints' depth has been an asset for some time and they have remained relatively settled in the opening nine rounds.

That should prove the difference this week and while the Bulldogs can not be ruled out, Millicent is likely to succeed on its home court.

KNT shows class in carnival clash

By Trevor Jackson

KNTFL 18.10 (118) d MSEFL 6.5 (41)

The Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara Football League claimed a strong A Grade victory in the 2022 Limestone Coast Regional Carnival on Saturday.

Hosted by the Mid South Eastern Football League and played at Kongorong oval, the day included an Under 15 and Under 17 round-robin style carnival, while the seniors played just one full-length game.

The senior game provided plenty of entertainment, despite the lop-sided scoreboard.

The opening half in particular saw some spirited football, with the KNTFL players able to finish off more accurately to ensure they extended their lead at every break.

It took around six minutes before a goal was kicked, with KNT11 splitting the big sticks to help put his side on track.

Late in the term another two goals were added by the KNTFL before the MSEFL could make a dent on the scoreboard, which came after the 20-minute mark.

That gave the KNTFL a handy 13-point advantage at the first break.

The second term began again with a spirited display of football, with the MSEFL applying plenty of pressure to try to close the margin.

However, the KNTFL added another goal in the opening minutes of the term, before Jak Ryan claimed an impressive mark and goaled to keep the MSEFL in touch.

Unfortunately for the host league the visitors simply continued to convert opportunities and by the long break the writing was on the wall, as the KNTFL held a strong 32-point advantage.

A relatively even third term followed, as the hosts added another two majors but the visitors put on three, plus a few behinds to extend the margin further.

By the final term the visitors held a 41-point lead and it appeared the result was just a formality.

What unfolded from there was a clinical display by the visitors as they banged on eight major scores to the hosts' two to run out emphatic 77-point victors.

Best for the KNTFL was Tom Whittlesea, while the best Under 21 was Nathan McCarthy.

For the MSEFL, Tom Wachtel received the senior honours, while best Under 21 went to Tye McManus.

For victorious coach Nick Davis it was an impressive performance by his players.

"You never know how you are going to go with a side that has trained together only a couple of times," he said.

"I thought we moved the ball very well and put on a good display."

Likewise, Davis said it was tough to decide final match-ups against an unknown quantity.

"It is really hard because you have no match-ups in your head," he said.

"We just went in thinking it would be a really contested type of game, which is what you normally face with the Mid South East.

"When we arrived and saw the warming up we thought maybe they looked a bit smaller and a bit younger than us.

"But having said that, they cracked in fairly well.

"It was probably just a bit too much class for them in the end."

That was certainly the case, with the first half a real arm wrestle but in front of goals it was a polished performance from the KNTFL.

"They were getting their hands on the ball plenty but weren't quite hurting us when they did get those opportunities to go forward," Davis said.

"They just missed that last final target going inside 50, which enabled us to get a bit of a lead, then it broke open a bit in the last half."

The last quarter was impressive, on a cold day for football and at the top level in the region, to bang on eight goals to ice the game was something which pleased Davis.

"I said to the boys at three-quarter time, on that type of day you can go one of two ways," he said.

"You can guts out a bit of a four or five goal win or we can really pile them on.

"I thought our ball movement in the last quarter was exceptional.

"We used it even better than we had in the first three quarters and piled them on."

Davis said Whittlesea was a worthy recipient of the senior best-on-ground honours, with his seven goals.

That came from good delivery into the attacking zone, which Whittlesea finished with class.

"I think he may have kicked two or three points but he came off the oval thinking if he could have delivery like that on a weekly basis it would be a fairly easy game," Davis said.

Youngster Nathan McCarthy put on an impressive display considering he was played out of his normal position.

"Normally in KNT he is a bit more of a defensive tagger," Davis said.

"We put him on and he played half-forward flank and wing and I was really impressed with the way he cracked in.

"He found plenty of the footy."

At the end of the day it was an impressive victory, with the full-game format pleasing for the KNTFL and Davis.

"The main thing for our boys was they really loved the concept of being back to a full game," Davis said.

"We have messed around with the carnival type thing and the leagues are keen to go back to that.

"But we just had so much extra buy in from the players from Adelaide.

"They wanted to travel down for a full game and are not as keen for the carnival type set up.

"They were definitely excited to be back to a full game."
