Embracing the sun

By Caroline Hammat

A new home built in Millicent's town centre has created interest in the local building industry due to its 8.5 energy rating.

It is the second home that Catharina Corman has built but, as her needs changed, her newest home is quite different from the unique house on the side of Mount Muirhead built by herself and her late husband Theo in 1989.

With input from local builder, Dave Taylor, Ms Corman designed her new home before approaching KA McMillan Design and Drafting's Kimberly McMillan to draw up the plans.

"At the moment the national construction code is mandatory level six for energy efficiency rating," Ms McMillan said.

"Next year it's being raised to seven and it's going to be harder to get energy efficiency ratings passed.

"New homes are going to have double glazed windows, lots of insulation and sealing"

Ms McMillan said it was unusual for someone to come along and push out the energy rating of a new home to higher than required.

"Most people are trying to save money and do things as cheap as possible.

"Everything you do is going to cost more when the new rating comes in.

"Catharina was probably very smart doing it now, because it will be more expensive in a year."

Polished concrete floors are a beautiful feature in the living areas and practical as well.

They work as a heat bank absorbing heat from the sun through large north facing windows and releasing it at night, minimising the use of extra heating throughout the cooler months.

An outdoor attraction

By Aidan Curtis

Local tourism is on the rise, with one operator looking to capitalise on increased demand in the Coonawarra area.

Coonawarra Bush Holiday Park owner Steven Moignard is looking to add more tents to his business following a surge in demand for glamping.

Mr Moignard said he has needed to turn people away on long weekends or during holiday periods as spaces fill up very quickly.

“It’s cost-effective for us to expand,” he said.

“That means a lot more solar capacity here, a lot more waste water infrastructure, and a lot more camp kitchen and bathrooms.”

A lot of this demand has come on the back of increased tourism as people becoming more confident in travelling after Covid restrictions started easing.

Mr Moignard said he used to get a lot of international visitors and backpackers, but that has changed in recent years.

“I think we’re beginning to see a bit of a return to what 2019 was,” he said.

“After 2019, obviously all your internationals and backpackers dropped off altogether and we had a lot more South Australian visitation over the following two years.

“Overall visitation was down, or at least the growth was curbed because of all the lockdowns and restrictions.”

He said he believes the park is back on the growth trajectory with more local and Victorian visitors, but he could not predict what the coming holiday season will hold.

“Most people don’t book for glamping hugely far in advance,” he said.

“You get less notice now of what the season is going to be like.

“We’ve had such an up and down period, you count your blessings even to still be in business.”

Glamping is the camping.

Courtney’s state win

By Kathy Fennell

Courtney Higgs, a sales agronomist at E E Muir and Sons in Penola is the 2022 State Rural Ambassador.

Courtney represented the Naracoorte Show Society and the South East and Border Show Association at the recent state finals in Adelaide.

The announcement was made at a dinner at the recent royal show where she competed against eight other entrants from all over South Australia.

The award is sponsored by the Department of Primary Industries and Regions and is run by Country Shows SA.

The ambassador program is open to people aged between 20 and 30 who are committed to their local show and community.

“I was absolutely ecstatic to be announced the winner as all the other contestants were fantastic,” Courtney said.

Seeing what goes on behind the scenes at the Adelaide Royal was a real eye opener.

The group visited many areas at the show including cattle, alpacas, catering, cookery and other sections.

“I really enjoyed the public speaking sector with Annabel Homer and felt I gained alot of confidence from the session with her.

I also enjoyed a relaxing morning when contestants were able to have breakfast with the judges on judging day,” she said.

The prize for the winner was $5000 and a study tour which is to be arranged at a later date.

“I encourage young people to become involved their local show and community. This program is a wonderful experience and can open up alot of avenues,” Courtney said.

Courtney will attend the Penola show and participate in awarding prizes, sashing cattle and horses.

Call out for show entries

By Caroline Hammat

After two year's of disruption, due to Covid-19, this year's Millicent Show organisers are keen to see the indoor exhibits back without restriction.

Interested people are urged to prepare their entries early for this year's indoor categories, after a decline in entry numbers following the show's cancellation in 2020 and restrictive conditions placed on certain categories at last year's event.

Publicity officer for the organisation, Helen Cranage, said

"Due to Covid-19 restrictions last year we were unable to have cooking, jams and jellies and the produce section.

"Indoor organisers are calling for exhibitors to support these sections this year, also handicrafts, art, photography and floral art."

Three regular supporters of the indoor categories Kathy Patten, Carol Garner and Peter McRostie, recently gathered to encourage others to throw their hat in the ring.

"I've been exhibiting in the quilting and handicraft sections in the Millicent Show since 2011, it's not a competition, it's there for the community to see what other people can do.

"If one person gets inspired by something they see then we've achieved something.

"A lot of our local craft group members are now knitting and crocheting rather than the quilting, so there is a bit of a resurgence in that area.

"We would love to see more entries in those categories." Ms Patten said.

The Garner name has long been synonymous with the show and Ms Garner who is a long-term entrant likes to submit entries into floral art, cooking and cut flower categories.

"I think you should enter and have a go, it's not all about winning or losing, if you don't win at least you've had a go.

"We need more people to enter, we are trying to encourage people and don't want anyone to think their work is not good enough" Ms Garner said.

As well as the traditional handicrafts and floral displays people are encouraged to enter their produce alongside Mr McRostie who likes to enter his vegetables for display and help the show society out.

This year the entry fee for the adult indoor entries has been waived and no prize money will be paid except for the major awards and prizes.

Children's entries remain at 50c and all prizes paid for winning entries.

Indoor entries close on October 28 at 4.30pm and enquiries can be made at the Millicent A. H. & P. Society office, via email at showofficemillicent@gmail.com or phone 0459 333 560.

Members of the Kingston Early Learning & Childcare Services Working Group at the proposed site of a new childcare facility within the grounds of Kingston Community School.

Childcare plans moving forward

The Kingston District Council remains confident that the Australian Labor Government will make good its pre-election commitment of $1.8m for a new childcare facility in the upcoming federal budget, set to be handed down on 25 October 2022.

Despite a bi-partisan commitment prior to the federal election this year, in recent correspondence to the Council, Dr Anne Aly MP, Minister for Early Childhood Education has indicated that the commitment must wait for approval in the federal budget.

Chief Executive Officer Nat Traeger said she was disappointed in the delay but remained hopeful that the Labor government would not turn its back on the Kingston community at the eleventh hour.

"A promise is a promise, we were not expecting that promise to turn to a process", she said.

Despite the delay, the Council, in partnership with its Kingston Early Learning & Childcare Services Working Group (KELCS) have partnered with Department for Education (DfE) Officers (infrastructure team) to progress discussions about a new purpose-built early learning and childcare centre on the grounds of the Kingston Community School.

In an update report to Council last week, Mayor Kay Rasheed said "the partnership has yielded some significant progress with the DfE funding an architect to develop spatial plans for the purposes of cost estimates for a capital build."

"These plans are for the express purpose of defining proposed places and square metre area for costing. Also included in the planning scope is a proposed site plan, which indicates where the architect, in consultation with the working group, has determined the most appropriate site within the grounds of the Kingston Community School."

Ms Traeger, who is part of a small working group which includes the Principal of the Kingston Community School, Director Kingston Early Learning Centre, KELCS Chair (plus two KELCS representatives) have been regularly meeting with relevant DfE representatives.

"I am very appreciative of the DfE coming to the table and partnering equally with our community representatives to see significant progress".

"Whilst the letter from Dr Anne Aly does not make good the promise of $1.8m towards the capital build, Council and the community have every reason to feel confident due to the state government having a "proceed with confidence" attitude in its partnership with Council and KELCS."

Other than awaiting the announcement of the Federal Labor Government's budget, the next steps include a combined workshop to be facilitated by an independent professional regarding a governance model to be held October/November as well as the advancement of the spatial design and site plans for detailed design and costing.

Project updates and the site plan are available on Council's website. <https://www.kingstondc.sa.gov.au/our-community/community-information/kingston-se-childcare-working-group>

Igniting our imaginations

By Caroline Hammat

A collaboration between the Imagine Millicent Arts Group (IMAG) and local gym, Ignition Fitness, want people to Ignite their imagination and join them at a cocktail party with a difference.

The three hour event being held on Saturday, October 15 includes an auction of approximately 40 lots and entertainment by local music duo JB and Crowie.

IMAG member Chris Hollingsworth said "We've had lots of donated artwork and other things, including a lot of original artwork.

"Trevor Rayson is the auctioneer and that will probably start at around 8.30pm, about an hour after people arrive.

"We think it will only take about half an hour and JB and Crowie will be playing, they will have a break while the auction is going.

"All the artwork will be on display for people to have a look at."

Auction lots include an collaborative effort painted on a pair of retro chrome and leather chairs by Australian artist's David Bromley and Tom Gerrard.

Grotti Lotti prints by Victorian artist Casey Manson and a mid century candlestick by Western Australia sculptor George Kosturkov.

Local artwork donated for the auction includes work by Jill Eckermann, Kerrie Stratford, Chris Hollingsworth and Adele Cameron.

Another highlight of the evening will be the announcement of the artist chosen to paint a mural on the large wall in the Ignition Fitness outdoor gym.

Expressions of interest for the wall were sent out in June this year with four responses received.

Ignition Fitness owner's Adam Wiese and Roxanne Wallis with young Thomasin, and IMAG member Chris Hollingsworth on-site of the upcoming Ignite Your Imagination cocktail night.

"We are quite excited about the artist chosen from the recent expressions of interest and this fundraiser is for the new wall" Ms Hollingsworth said.

At this stage organisers are unsure if the final concept design will be ready to be revealed on the night.

"As part of the $25 ticket price, there is a tasting box and a free glass of wine or beer on arrival.

"There will be gazebo's around with fairy lights for atmosphere, tables and chairs and we hope to get some wine barrels.

"We can accommodate up to 200 people on the night" Ms Hollingsworth said.

Ignite Your Imagination is IMAG's biggest fundraiser of the year and is being held at the rear of Ignition Fitness with entry via Davenport Street.

Tickets are available for purchase from Ignition Fitness or Heaven on a Hanger.

For catering purposes people are urged to purchase their tickets before Wednesday, October 12.

Imagine Millicent group members Sandy Melrose and Chris Hollingsworth are preparing to hold the group's largest fundraiser for the year.

The new Women's and Children's Hospital

Big plans, better care for the long term.

The State Government has announced details of the new Women's and Children's Hospital, located near the Royal Adelaide Hospital at the SAPOL Barracks site. This new location provides both hospitals with room for future expansion, when we need it.

The new Women's and Children's Hospital will be 25% bigger than the current hospital, and built on a larger site providing flexibility now and into the future.

It will be a state-of-the-art facility that will give South Australian families access to the most advanced hospital care, technology and medical research for generations to come.

The new Women's and Children's Hospital

A bigger Women's and Children's Hospital is something we all need.

I've worked as a doctor at the Women's and Children's Hospital for more than 20 years. It's been a rewarding time, and the hospital is an important asset within our state's health system. But, with our population growing and our health requirements growing too, I can see our current hospital starting to feel the pressure.

A brand-new Women's and Children's Hospital is exactly what our state needs. It will provide a state-of-the-art hospital that's better for clinicians and patients alike.

The original plan for the new Women's and Children's Hospital proposed having it co-located with the Royal Adelaide Hospital. This announcement will now see the hospital located separately, providing space for a larger, better-equipped Women's and Children's Hospital and room for both hospitals to expand in the future.

My colleagues at the Women's and Children's Hospital and I have all been working to ensure the new hospital will meet our state's needs in terms of treatment spaces and resources. I'm confident the new Women's and Children's Hospital will serve our state now, and for many years to come.

Business intelligence

Damian Morgan is a MBA qualified management consultant and company director specialising in the development of strategic sales and marketing programs for national brands and government departments.

He has rare skills in both the art and science of marketing and over the past five years he has also lead workshops for more than a thousand small businesses, making him one of Australia's most seasoned and sought after business speakers.

Born and raised on a remote cattle property in western Queensland, he proudly takes a practical, 'no-bull' approach to sales and marketing, and this refreshing approach has won fans at conferences across Australia, New Zealand and South East Asia.

The Border Watch caught up with him to find out what he can offer to Mount Gambier businesses.

Why should a Mount Gambier business go to this seminar?

Firstly, most small businesses typically are good at what they do, but one of the weaknesses is they are not as good as promoting themselves as corporations are. Being the best kept secret in town is a common problem.

The seminar provides the opportunity to stop for 45 minutes, review their current marketing and look for ways to improve it, no matter what type of marketing they're doing.

Mount Gambier has a diverse range of businesses, from those working the land through to car dealers and real estate agents.

Will this seminar help people across diverse workplaces?

Every business has a tailored program and fundamentals they need to look at. We walk them through a process to review their current model of marketing and share case studies from all different industries, from health to retail and agriculture.

Social media has grown in leaps and bounds over the past five years or so. What would you say to people who believe they have their marketing covered through avenues like Facebook and Instagram?

It's certainly part of the mix, but it's high risk to be exclusively on social media. We'll talk through why that is the case. It shouldn't be the only channel, as there's very little evidence of businesses using social media exclusively. It's not to say it's not good, but putting all eggs in that basket is dangerous.

Mr Morgan will take to the floor to share his insights in a free seminar on Tuesday, October 18 at Commodore on the Park. There will be three sessions - 9.30am, 12.30pm and 5.30pm.

The foreshore was packed as Father Sulzberger conducted the afternoon service.

Fleet blessed for season

Blue skies and sunshine welcomed hundreds of people to Beachport's foreshore on Saturday afternoon for the town's annual Blessing of the Fleet.

Beachport's local Anglican priest, Father Lyndon Sulzberger, led the service.

"Today we re-enact the tradition of asking God to bless all those involved in the fishing industry, all those that are there to help and feed us and sustain us," Fr Sulzberger said.

Readings were also undertaken by Yvonne Sargeant from the Church of St Brigid's and Hazel Watson of St Matthews Uniting Church.

Following the foreshore service around hundred people gathered on the town's jetty while skippers, deckhands and their families ventured out to their boats.

The local boats circled the bay and passed close by the jetty to mark the beginning of a safe season while being blessed by Fr Sulzberger.

Once the fleet's blessings were completed the traditional throwing of the cross into the ocean took place.

Two young girls, Matilda Lush and Rose Fry, registered to brave the cold waters of Rivoli Bay.

Swimming for a cross thrown in by Fr Sulzberger as part of the ceremony to pray for a safe year ahead for fishermen.

In a close competition Rose retrieved the cross only inches ahead of Matilda.

Maritime construction crew are currently undertaking large scale maintenance work on the jetty but worked with organisers to allow access to the public and set up a ladder for the registered swimmers.

The centuries old tradition originated in Southern Europe and was brought to Beachport by fishing families who migrated to the area.

Father Lyndon Sulzberger blesses 'Breakaway' as it passes the Beachport jetty.

Matilda Lush and Rose Fry prepare themselves to jump off the jetty to retrieve the cross.

Biosecurity passes tests

The National Farmers' Federation (NFF) welcomed the completion of a review which found Australia's biosecurity system to be strong and sound.

However, the organisation also stated they want no time wasted to address the 14 previously identified recommendations.

In the four-week project, the Joint Inter-agency Taskforce: Exotic Animal Disease (EAD) Preparedness stress tested the complex biosecurity system through a cross jurisdiction and industry lens to ensure a coordinated national approach in the event of a Foot and Mouth or Lumpy Skin Disease incursion.

NFF President Fiona Simson said ensuring farmers, industry bodies and all jurisdictions were working from the same set guidelines was imperative in the face of a biosecurity incident.

"We don't want a messy situation like we had through the COVID-19 pandemic with people stuck at borders and unsure what rules apply from state to state," Ms Simson said.

"Borders don't matter when it comes to feeding people in Australia.

For example, our farmers in Western Australia are feeding people on the east coast and vice versa, so a seamless and well communicated approach is important, not only to protect our animals and environment, but to ensure if a situation arises, the impact to our food supply chain is minimised."

While the Taskforce responsible for the test confirmed Australia's strength in biosecurity, it also pointed out improvements which could be made including strengthening communications and cross-border cooperation and ensuring the system is up to date with technology.

"While it's critical to have the best plans in place, we have recently seen with Varroa Mite how incursions put extreme strain on our resources," Ms Simson said.

"The 14 recommendations must be urgently actioned, funding remains farmers' primary concern and they are expecting the government to deliver on its pre-election commitment for sustainable, long-term biosecurity funding in next month's Federal Budget."

The NFF welcomed the Taskforce's continued work on the country's biosecurity system, including a live simulation of an FMD scenario sometime next year.

The NFF was one of eight industry partners involved in the Taskforce's National Livestock Stand Still Discussion Exercise as part of the review.

Kona N covers new ground

By Derek Ogden, Marque Motoring

Following the performance upgrade to the i30 and i20, the most recent model to get a booster is the most unlikely – the Kona sports utility vehicle.

Lifted from the underpinnings of the Hyundai i30 hatchback, it's hard to fit it into the pantheon.

For a start, there's no all-wheel drive, so it is a high-riding hot hatch rather than an SUV.

Front-wheel drive only has helped keep the weight down, enabling a claim by the maker of a zero-to-100km/h figure of 5.5 seconds, just a tenth slower than the i30 N hatch.

Two models have come to Australia – Kona N and Kona N Premium – priced from $48,000 and $51,000, plus on-road costs respectively.

Metallic paint adds $595 and matte paint $1000.

Both are powered by a 2.0-litre turbo-petrol four-cylinder engine, mated with an eight-speed dual-clutch transmission, serving up 206 kW and 392 Nm through the front wheels.

The standard Atlas White Kona N test car turned heads more than once.

The front followed the Hyundai N tradition with the black grille, following the rally team, being based on a chequered flag.

The Hyundai 'H' and performance 'N' were in there for good measure.

Below is another grille, less of a stand-out, while an LED headlamp set-up features on either side capped by strips of LED daytime running lights.

The rear roofline incorporates a discrete spoiler, while the dominating features are twin trumpet-tipped exhausts totally in keeping with the brassy note emanating from them when the engine is fired up.

In profile, the features probably responsible for the onlooker interest mentioned above, are unique 19-inch alloy wheels shod with Pirelli P Zero HN tyres, playing host to bright red brake callipers.

All these captivating aspects of the standard Atlas White Kona N test car exterior were linked by a fine red line skirting the lower body.

The Kona N inside is far from basic.

Sports seats, with a nice line in fabric and contrasting stitching, are bucket-style up front, while the second row can take three grown-ups.

Leg room there is average to skinny depending on the position of the front occupants.

Fancy suede/leather coverings are left to the Premium model.

The steering wheel is the exception, with leather wrapping giving the driver a touch of luxury.

The Kona N Premium also weighs in with auto-dimming rear-view mirror, head-up display, front parking sensors, powered, heated and ventilated front seats, heated steering wheel, glass sunroof and ambient lighting.

The driver has the benefit of a new 10.25-inch digital instrument cluster, while another 10.25-inch display screen in the central dashboard supplies information on vehicle systems and wired Apple CarPlay and Android Auto, plus factory fitted satellite navigation.

Quality audio is served up with DAB+ digital radio being blessed with an eight-speaker harman/kardon sound system.

Wireless phone charging caps off the line-up.

Power is provided by a 2.0-litre turbo-petrol four-cylinder engine putting power to ground, via an eight-speed double clutch automatic transmission, to ground through the front wheels.

Standard equipment includes autonomous emergency braking with detection of the presence of pedestrian or cyclist, adaptive cruise control, blind spot warning, lane keep and lane follow assist, rear cross-traffic alert and auto high beam.

NEW DIRECTION: The Hyundai Kona: It's 'N' for a new direction in looks and performance.

Driving the Kona N was full of ups and downs.

The stiff suspension picking up every blemish in the road, even in Normal drive mode.

The racetrack would be more welcoming.

Peak power is on tap between 5500 and 6000 rpm, with torque chiming in from 2100 to 4700 revs.

Gear changes are some of the smoothest, with just a slight nudge between cogs.

Hyundai puts the combined urban/high-way fuel (premium unleaded) consumption at 9 litres per 100 kilometres.

The test car came up with more than 11 litres per 100 kilometres in town and 5.9

on the motorway.

Everything worked a treat while going forward but in reverse, the vehicle tended to stutter when setting off on an incline.

Not the best when backing out of the driveway.

Exhaust performance ranges from producing from a peaceful background noise when cruising to a gravelly chorus when called on to get a move on.

'Grin Shift' is hard to take seriously.

Brought into action by the press of a red button on the steering wheel, the throttle response and gear shifts are speeded up for 20 seconds with an accompanying crackle and pop of the engine.

The same sound is on tap all the time in the programmable N Sport+ mode.

The claim to SUV status of the Kona N was put to rest by the lack of luggage room in the back.

Boot space is piddling at 361 litres with rear seatbacks raised.

A reasonably flat floor, taking 1143 litres, is released when they are folded.

Finally, a trap for the unwary when the tailgate is opened, doubling as shelter from hot sun or rain.

However, in the wet a hollow where the number plate is attached fills with water, which cascades down on the owner when they close the door – a serious design fault.

Somebody said the Kona N looked like a white basketball boot.

However, the Hyundai SUV's sporting pretensions are on the other foot although there are occasions when the hot hatch(ness) sneaks through.

YOUR WEEKLY TV GUIDE

THE HANDMAID'S TALE SBS, Thursday, 9.30pm

You're either a glutton for punishment or you can't resist the twisting and often infuriating plot of The Handmaid's Tale. Steadfast fans will soon have their loyalty rewarded: after showrunner Bruce Miller originally predicted an ambitious 10-season run, there's just one more season after this before we find out the fate of death-defying protagonist June (Elisabeth Moss, pictured). Tonight, Serena (Yvonne Strahovski) tries to raise her profile in Toronto as Gilead's influence stretches its tentacles into Canada. The Emmy Award-winning series marks the halfway point of season five with another predictably fierce episode that will leave viewers pondering how the ghoullness all ends.

THE BLOCK Nine, Tuesday, 7.30pm

Surviving on The Block is a mighty feat, with days often starting before the crack of dawn. For some, breaking point is threatened by the constant pressure of choosing the perfectly coloured wall or finding the most impressive bedhead; for others, it's weathering the storm of being constantly by your partner's side for months. Now, with four days until the guest bedrooms and re-do rooms are unveiled, there are cracks in the relationship between professional renovators Rachel and Ryan (both pictured). Rachel lets loose to Sarah-Jane about how her hubby is getting on her nerves, while Ankur and Sharon's plaster is unfortunately not all it's cracked up to be.

PICK OF THE WEEK

LOST FOR WORDS SBS, Wednesday, 7.30pm

Along with tutors Jo Medlin and Adam Nobilia, this time the show also tackles numeracy. Laga'aia follows the journey as the participants – including a man who pines to write a letter to his wife – embark on a nine-week program that will transform their lives.

Getting girls into more sports

The State Government has launched a new Women in Sport Taskforce which will work to raise the profile and participation levels of girls and women in sport and to address inequality that inhibits girls and women from actively and equally participating in the sport they love.

The landscape for women's sport has changed immensely in recent years and as a result, the Taskforce has been re-established to continue to break down barriers and ensure women and girls thrive in sport in the future.

Given the rising popularity of women's sport, it is vital for girls and women to have access to the support, equipment and training they need to pursue their sporting passions.

The Taskforce will tackle the issue of girls' participation, given the Flinders University research which found South Australian girls are likely to quit sport from Years 10 to 12, as study and work are prioritised over sporting commitments.

All Taskforce members have a significant level of experience in women's and girls' sport and their insights will be crucial in informing the Taskforce's priorities going forward.

The members of the Taskforce are: Eleni Glouftsis OAM - AFL/AFLW umpire and the first female field umpire to officiate an AFL match; Dr Amber Halliday OLY - dual Olympic rower, three-time world champion, former world record holder, former cyclist and Doctor of Psychology; Paul Vandenberg - National Diversity Talent Manager for the AFL and the Indigenous Lead for Basketball Australia; Jenny Williams OAM - represented Australia in multiple sports and Principal Psychologist at Best on Ground Performance; Professor Murray Drummond - Director of Flinders University's SHAPE Research Centre; Bronny Brooks - Vice-President of the Adelaide Jaguars Football Club, South Australia's largest female-only soccer club; Craig Scott - President of the Goodwood Saints Football Club; Tony Wright - Executive Officer of the Limestone Coast Local Government Association.

The Taskforce has been re-established under the Malinauskas Government following the previous iteration of the Women in Sport Taskforce that ran from 2016 to 2018.

During this time, work carried out by the Taskforce included introducing two new funding programs - the Female Facilities and Female Participation Programs.

Dr Halliday said sport, experienced right, can be a foundation of mental health, resilience and wellbeing.

"I am passionate about helping women and girls experience sport and experience it right," she said.

"The Taskforce is exactly what we need to boost female participation in sport and take action on things like coach education, to help boost the positive experiences women and girls have in sport."

Women in sport will benefit from a new taskforce set up by the South Australian state government. Picture: FILE IMAGE

Sun shines on anglers

By Jamie Coates

A big weekend of fishing along the southeast was enjoyed by lots of anglers, both on the boats and land based.

The weather played the game right across the long weekend and I know of plenty of fish caught.

The offshore fishing over the weekend was arguably as good as we have seen.

It did not appear to matter if you were fishing over the shelf or in closer, the fish were on.

While the weather was near perfect, plenty of anglers made the trip to the shelf.

I have seen all the pictures and there were bigger waves in the Blue Lake and the fish certainly played the game.

I saw some nice hauls of hapuka, school shark, blue eye and a few pink ling.

The boaties who fished in a bit closer found excellent shark fishing, both gummy and school shark over 20kg, some ripper red snapper, blue morwong, flathead and snapper.

There did not seem to be any secret depth fishing better than another, but anywhere from 40 metres through to the shelf was productive.

In a bit closer along the coast we saw some lovely shark in that 5-15m zone and spread out too, from Green Point all the way through to Blackfellows Caves and Carpenter Rocks.

Graeme and Carly Ploenges managed a number of solid gummies down that way, definitely making the most of the weather.

The surf fishos made good use of their time and hit some spots that have not had much attention lately.

A big group of lads headed up to the Corong for their first run of the year and found no shortage of gummy sharks.

I am not sure on the exact location, but it was a fair way up.

I am also not sure of how many gummies were caught, but there were a few hours worth of filleting.

There has been a bit of action locally this week, with the majority salmon news and everything from salmon trout to 2kg+ jack salmon have been reeled in.

The best areas have been the Beachport salmon hole, Canunda NP and Carpenter Rocks, although there have also been plenty through back towards the river mouth.

The size down that way is generally a bit bigger than our side of the mouth, and this weekend has proved no different.

A couple of kilo was the average from the river mouth through to Bridgewater and I also saw a couple of gummies from that way too.

If the walk over the hill does not put you off, the fishing is very good.

The garfish this week have been in great numbers again.

They are spread out, they are big and they are hungry.

I have heard of some great catches from all over the place such as Livingstons, Pelican Point, Blackfellows Caves and Cape Douglas just to name a few.

There has been a good mix of boaties and waders, so whichever is your style, it will not matter because they are both working.

As per usual there is plenty of by-catch again.

I am hearing of a lot of silver trevally and mullet, and there is even the odd gents-stealing whiting about in the shallows and they are always a welcome one.

Speaking of whiting, there have been some rippers caught.

It is only early, but how good is that first feed of whiting for the season.

There are no surprises as to why they are a favourite, their fighting ability is excellent, the distribution and fact you can catch them land based or out of the boat is a big tick and finally their table quality.

I think I am still yet to meet anyone who is not a whiting fan.

They have been spread right along the coast this week.

Good catches have come from Cape Jaffa and Beachport, right through the Limestone Coast to Carpenter Rocks, Nene Valley, Hutt Bay and inside the Port MacDonnell breakwater.

Zac Currie with a pair of hapuka.

Tim Carrison boated this nice shark over the long weekend.

The fish I have seen this week have been perfect eaters, from 35cm through to 45cm, but the odd bigger 50cm+ are lurking around and don't you know it when you hook one of those.

The freshwater fishing in Rocklands Reservoir is picking up nicely and in coming years, don't be surprised when we have a monster write up in each fishing report about this place.

The stocking program that has been going on over there in the last three or four years is starting to produce some nice fish and as those fish mature, it will be a fishing destination much like Lake Eildon.

The cod are anywhere from 35cm to 70cm, the yellowbelly are up to 50cm and there are also some stonking bass, not to mention the trout, redfin and carp that call the lake home.

Boat and land-based anglers are all a good shot at landing some excellent fish, and they are getting bigger every day.

The Glenelg River, despite its very muddy and fast flowing appearance has actually been producing some top quality bream and perch.

There have been some nice bream caught up as high as Sapling Creek on whitebait and prawns and that success has flowed down as far as Sandy Waterholes.

The bulk of the news though has still been from the bridge area and down, on a mixture of baits and lures.

The baits doing the damage have been prawn, whitebait and live podworm, while the lure of choice has been the three-inch powerbait nemesis in cappuccino colour, plus the new gulp four-inch sandworms in a camo colour.

Small 35-50mm diving hardbodies have been getting the runs on the board for the perch fishos, with lots of those 35-45cm fish caught along the edges of the mud lake.

Mulloway news has been light on again, but there have been a few to 90cm caught over the weekend, just not in big numbers.

There is more rain forecast for this weekend, so no doubt more water to come down.

The forecast for the coming weekend is a bit iffy for the offshore guys, but it is likely it should be good enough for just about everything else.

Until next week, safe fishing.

Club's hard work pays off

By James Murphy

The hard work by the Millicent United Soccer Club was recognised at the recent Limestone Coast Football Association presentation night.

Millicent was named as Club of the Year for the 2022 season, a credit to its efforts on and off the field.

For joint Millicent Soccer Club president Ian Lines, the achievement came as the reward from years of dedication from the club and its members.

"The club has put in a lot of hard work in the last five or six years," he said.

"This is just another step towards building the club to the strength it used to be.

"We have been trying to build with our juniors and also importantly trying to build the right culture within our club."

While the senior grades struggled to post results throughout 2022, the juniors flourished and both the Under 16 girls and Under 12 boys earned premiership glory.

"We are very proud of our Under 12 boys and Under 16 girls," Lines said.

The Under 12 boys had a dominant year and finished the home-and-away season as minor premiers, before a hard-fought 2-1 victory over Gambier Centrals in the grand final.

It was a drought-breaking performance for the team, as it claimed Millicent's first premiership in the men's competition since 1997.

In fact, coach of the team Mathew Grgetic had played in the club's last premiership himself as an Under 14.

In a fitting turn of events, his son Tait Grgetic was named best-on-ground for the game.

The two were also recognised at the LCFA presentation night, with Mathew named as junior coach of the year, while Tait finished joint best and fairest for the Under 12 boys.

Millicent's Will Dower also featured highly to be named runner-up in the grade.

It was another fairytale finish for the Under 16 girls, who finished the minor rounds in fourth place.

They then won consecutive finals to book themselves a place in the decider, where a penalty shootout was required for them to knock over minor premier Gambier Centrals in the upset of the year.

After a strong season, Millicent captain Lana Shepherd was awarded the Under 16 girls best and fairest trophy at the league presentations.

Lines now looks forward to continued success in 2023 and beyond, as the club continues to build towards regaining its former glory.

"We still have a ways to go, but these are positive steps," he said.

As a celebration of the amalgamation of the men's and women's teams, Millicent will be seen in brand new playing strips next year as the club looks to push its successes even further.

Life award

A well-deserved life membership of the Millicent Golf Club was handed out on Sunday by club president Mark Pilmore.

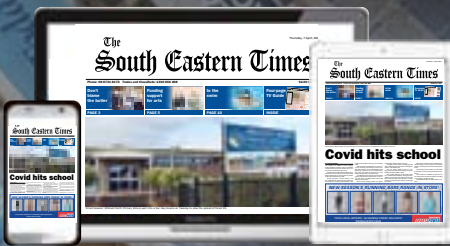

Pilmore, presented Mardi Sunderland with her life membership before a large crowd of players, friends and family. Sunderland has served the club as women's captain, on the women's committee, executive committee, finance assistant and the main online contact.

Her voluntary work has also covered cooking, catering, bar duties, golf cart hire and endless other tasks that are never quite covered by formal roles. Amongst it all she has managed to play consistent golf over many years, winning major championships and trophies.

Over the October long weekend the popular tri-tournament between Millicent, Blackwood and Loxton was held and well supported, the perfect occasion for Sunderland to be honoured. She is the longest serving member of the tri-tournament group and has attended the competition for the majority of its existence. It was fitting Sunderland received her award in front of the large gathering, with Millicent winning the tournament for the third year in a row to add the final touch to a great weekend.

Arthur Sissis claimed the Master of Mac Park on Sunday, along with the lap record for the circuit.

Sissis claims Master title

By Trevor Jackson

There was no shortage of action at McNamara Park over the weekend, with the master of Mac Park and Round 3 of the South Australian State Championship on the card.

Arthur Sissis claimed the title yet again, but could not relax, as Ted Collins and Dallas Skeer were waiting in the wings for any slight mistake.

At the pointy end of the field in the main feature race the pace was hot, with little separating the top three on the grid.

As expected, Sissis topped list after a blistering time of 1:08.615 on his 1000cc Superbike.

Collins, also on a Superbike, was close to a second behind, while Skeer filled the final place on the front row of the grid on his 600cc Yamaha with a time of 1:09.996.

A red flag stopped the race on the first lap after two back-markers tangled, then as the race progressed another red flag emerged to hold proceedings up further.

Once underway again, Sissis began to show his true pace and opened a handy margin.

In the end he greeted the chequered flag some eight seconds ahead of Collins, with Skeer a further eight seconds in arrears.

Along the way Sissis set a fastest lap of 1:08.586.

However, he had set a new lap record earlier in the day, with a time of 1:07.846 in leg four of the Superbike State Championships, the fastest anyone has been around McNamara Park.

The Master of Mac Park consolation saw a small field compete, with Sandro Malatesta claiming the honours, from Daniel Spendlove and Rob O'Brien.

Samuel Pezzetta claimed the Lightweight master of Mac Park feature, with a comfortable victory over Cooper Rowntree and Tayla Relph.

The Sidecar Master of Mac Park went to Grant Howarth and Scott Deslands just ahead of Alan Smith and Ryan D'Aniello, with Tony Shanks and Rebecca Boggiano rounding out the podium.

Ryder Gilbert claimed the honours in the Runner-up Ted Collins works his way around McNamara Park during the Master of Mac Park feature race.

Junior Master of Mac Park, with six seconds ahead of Rikki Henry, with Seth Dellow rounding out the podium.

Gilbert set his fastest lap of the race on lap four with a time of 1:24.871.

Throughout the weekend various categories provided entertainment, with the Fearless group, a bunch of Harley Davidsons, providing a symphony of sight and sound.

Sam Bennett was best of the bunch, with four wins to claim the weekend's pints.

Peter Costello finished runner-up on 76 points, just one ahead of third-placed Malatesta.

The Junior SA Championship honours for the weekend went to Henry with a total of 83 points, well clear of Seth Dellow with 72 and Archie Schmidt with 67.

Henry claimed just the one win for the round, but remained consistent, while the likes of Cameron Rende started off with two victories but failed to finish the round.

The Limited SA Championship was a white wash for Anthony Stephens, who claimed each of the four legs on his Husqvarna to claim the full 100 points and easily account for Pezzetta on a Yamaha with 80 points and Malatesta on a Ducati with 69.

The Naked Bikes went to Spendlove, after he claimed three second-place finishes behind Stephen Millar, who failed to finish the round.

Spendlove notched up 85 points for the round win, Millar finished second with 75, and David Ellis could only finish one race for third place.

The Pre-Modern 00 went to Malatesta from Mark Boag and Peter McDonough.

Dwayne Tosen made a clean sweep of the Pre-Modern 07 category, ahead of Jayden Plowman with 78 points and Ron Crane with 74.

In the Superbike category, Sissis controlled the weekend, with four leg wins for the full 100 points.

Collins was second in each race for his overall runner-up position, while Ben Liebig claimed four third positions to round out the podium.

In the Sidecars, after a steady start for third position in leg one, Howarth and Deslands claimed three wins to claim the round honours.

Smith and D'Aniello finished second, while Shanks and Boggiano rounded out the podium.

Unfortunately for the team of David Jones and Tim Leighton, the latter slipped out of the sidecar on their way around the final turn heading to the start/finish straight and they could not finish the final leg of the round.

It was a clean sweep for one, two and three in the Production 300 category, with Pezzetta top of the podium.

Rowntree came home in second place, while Relph finished third.

In the Supersport category Skeer showed his class, with four wins for the round honours.

He also reclaimed his lap record with a time of 1:09.688 in the opening leg on Saturday.

Declan Carberry claimed all four second places, while Plowman, Paul Van Der Heiden and Dwayne Tosen finished in that order, all on 68 points.

All positions were provisional at the time of going to press.

New record at Mac Park

By Trevor Jackson

A hot pace at the Master of Mac Park motorcycle meeting over the weekend produced fast lap times, including two new lap records.

Furner rider Dallas Skeer claimed one of those, with a new fastest lap for the 600cc category.

Skeer had previously held the record, but Tye Lynch took that away at the Easter meeting.

However, with a fast track and ideal weather, Skeer was able to dip into the one-minute nine-second mark, with a blistering 1-minute, 9.688-second run in the first of four legs of the SA state championship.

The other record came from Master of Mac Park winner Arthur Sissis, as he lowered the time to 1:07.846, an impressive effort on his 1000cc Superbike.

While Sissis claimed the feature race honour and Ted Collins greeted the chequered flag in second place – also on a 1000cc machine – Skeer was certainly on the pace on the smaller bike.

His main plan for the weekend was to reclaim his lap record, which he did, along with a class win in the Supersport category, which he also achieved with four wins from four races.

It was certainly an impressive weekend for the young racer, with his times akin to the national Australian Superbike series where he races in the Supersport class.

In the feature race the two riders ahead used the ideal conditions to ensure their bigger Superbikes were untouchable at the pointy end, which made it tough for Skeer to challenge.

But far from being disappointed, Skeer said he was happy with the performance overall, especially regaining the lap record.

“I’m pretty happy ... I did what I went there to do,” he said.

“On Friday I was off to a bit of a slow start, about two seconds off the pace.

“Saturday morning I just pushed myself to do it.

“I qualified on pole and I pushed myself to do a low 10 (1:10), then the nines came.

“I did a 9.8 and matched the lap record so I tried to go lower again and did a 9.6.

“I surprised myself – I have never into the nines and it was good to dip well into them and get my record back.”

While it was a hot pace, Skeer appeared to do it comfortably.

From the sidelines he seemed to be cruising, which is often the tell-tale sign of a fast lap.

“I felt really good and did it pretty easily,” Skeer said.

“Obviously I was pushing but I didn’t have too many moments – I had a couple of little slides but nothing major.

“It is good I can do that pace because Tye Lynch, who had the record, is second in the Australian Championship.

“It also wasn’t a one-off thing – I did a couple of nines on the weekend.”

While the weather was almost ideal for racing, Skeer still struggled to keep up with the bigger Superbikes in front.

With their extra 400cc capacity it meant a faster exit from the corners, which Skeer simply could not patch.

After the feature race was red-flagged twice due to accidents, Skeer said he was off the line well in the final restart, but again the bigger bikes had the advantage.

“The last start we did was my best start,” he said.

“I was right on them at turn one but as soon as they opened it up they pulled five bike lengths.

“I had a dip for a few laps but it wasn’t worth throwing it away.”

With the remaining ASBK rounds fast approaching, the weekend gave Skeer the confidence to push hard when he returns to racing at The Bend.

“I feel pretty good on the bike and my fitness is there,” he said.

“It is hard to tell what it will be like at another track but we get to Tailem Bend at the end of the month, so I will see how I go there.

“The weekend was another confidence booster.

“We will just keep building momentum and see where it goes.”
