Voting option call

By Charlotte Varcoe

Wattle Range Council mayor Des Noll has called on the Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) to organise a pre-polling booth in both Millicent and Penola.

Currently there are just two pre-polling booths in the Limestone Coast, one being in Mount Gambier and the other in Naracoorte.

Mr Noll said he was disappointed there were no pre-polling booths in the Wattle Range Council area for the Voice to Parliament referendum.

"We have a significant population that would want to utilise that service," Mr Noll said.

"I am disappointed the AEC has taken this action and at a minimum I want a pre-polling booth in Penola and Millicent."

He said he would suggest a large number of people in the Wattle Range Council area would use the pre-poll, making it easier for the elderly who may utilise the service. "It could well make it busier on the day as well or people may not even vote which would be disappointing for their democratic right."

Property prices keep up pace

By Aidan Curtis

Housing prices are still trending upwards, according to PropTrack's September Home Price Index.

At a local level, the South East was the best performing region in terms of price growth outside of Adelaide, with an annual increase of 10.94 per cent.

That growth bought the South East's median housing value to $452,000, up from $418,000 in September last year.

The report showed prices across regional South Australia rose to a new peak in September, increasing by 0.17 per cent.

While the increase was relatively small, it capped off a 9.86 per cent lift in housing prices since September 2022.

Regional South Australia's housing prices have increased by 52.8 per cent since March 2020.

Housing prices in the South East are on an up track.

Kingston SE's Charlotte Northam will walk home from Melbourne to raise money for mental health.

Massive health trek

A South East woman is making a mammoth trek, walking from Melbourne to Kingston SE for mental health.

Charlotte Northam will walk the 1200 kilometre journey to signify that, even when mental health makes things difficult, people can still "walk confidently along the road of life".

Ms Northam said she aims to spread a message of hope and raise money for mental health services.

"I am doing this to show it's okay to talk, even when it's hard," she said.

"It's okay to share your experience, because someone, even if they don't show it, will always be listening."

Along the way, Ms Northam plans to speak to the people she meets to raise awareness on mental health.

As at midday on Tuesday, October 3, Ms Northam had raised $6,300.00, with funds going to mental health organisation SANE.

It is expected Ms Northam will arrive back in Kingston on October 14.

Community helps with history pictures

Since February the South East Family History Group (SEFHG) has shared photos from their collection with SA Today in an attempt to identify those in the pictures.

Around half of the photos which have appeared in this news paper have now been fully named with several others partially identified.

The SEFHG are thrilled with the responses received which will help preserve history for future generations and are thankful for the assistance.

These photos have previously run in the news paper, but their identification remains incomplete.

If you can assist in providing any information about these photos please contact South East Family History Group researcher Colleen Hammat at the SEFHG on Wednesday or Saturday 1-5pm on 8733 1100 (or leave a message) or via email info@sefhg.org.

It is uncertain when this photo was taken or the reason for it but it is believed to be in Millicent. The lady second from left has been identified as Jan Inglis with the rest of the woman remaining unnamed, can you help fill the gaps?

This Tantanoola Cave photograph has been identified as a mid 1980's promotional photo for the Tantanoola Caves. Several people came forward with information which has named all but one person. Tantanoola cave manager John Callaghan and his wife Jo (far right), who was a cave guide, and their children Kathryn and Andrew Callaghan seated at the front. Ern Altschwager is on the left with the lady next to him still unnamed. Previous cave manager Verd Lane is in the middle.

Shark victim recovering

By Jacob Shteyman, AAP

A woman who was mauled by a shark is in good spirits as she recovers in hospital a day after the attack.

Pamela Cook, 64, was taken to Mount Gambier Hospital in a serious condition on Monday, October 2, after a shark bit her leg at Beachport. Husband Greg said she was doing "great" despite several stitches and a long rehab ahead of her.

"Pam said the worst part of the whole thing was the drive from Beachport to Millicent," he told ABC Radio on Tuesday.

"The roads were atrocious."

Mr Cook said medical staff were trying to get her up and walking and believed she would be in hospital for four or five days.

"She'll be fine, she's tough," he said.

Police closed the beach on Monday as State Emergency Service crews searched for the offending shark, which has not been identified. The beach reopened on Tuesday, October 3, with scores of holidaymakers still in the area enjoying the school break.

Mr Cook praised the efforts of rescuers who stepped in to get his wife out of the water and administer immediate medical care.

"We've got such a vibrant and good community down here," he said. "Everything went to plan, basically. If you're going to do a training drill, that's how it happens."

Marsupial thought to be extinct found in South East

By Aidan Curtis

A marsupial once thought extinct in South Australia has surprised one Limestone Coast resident after it was found attacking poultry on his property.

Beachport resident Pao Ling Tsai initially thought a feral cat was behind a string of attacks on his chickens.

However, after coming out to check on panicked chickens first thing on Tuesday, September 26, he was surprised to find a creature he had not seen before in his 20-plus years of living in the region.

Mr Tsai managed to trap the animal in a chicken box with the intent of taking it to a vet, and took to Facebook in the meantime where his local community helped identify it as a quoll. The quoll managed to escape overnight, leaving him with concerns that his chickens could still be in danger.

According to National Parks and Wildlife Service South Australia (NPW) district ranger Ross Anderson, a quoll in the South East is an "incredible sighting" despite the unfortunate loss of chickens.

"Certainly the official records of them being here are over 100 years old, so 1880s had the last official records," Mr Anderson said.

"We had some undocumented sightings back in the 1980s, but they haven't been verified so it's an incredible sighting."

"There's potential that there may be a surviving population out there somewhere."

Quolls were considered extinct in South Australia and are nationally listed as endangered, so Mr Anderson was hopeful the attacks meant there was more than one quoll out there.

"If there's a surviving population out there, this is really incredible," he said.

A quoll was caught attacking chickens on a Limestone Coast property.

Picture: SUPPLIED

"Australia is one of the countries with the highest rates of extinction in the world, so if we've got species still existing in areas we didn't know about, that's a really good story."

"It is a turn up for the books."

Mr Anderson said NPW will be unlikely to try and capture any quolls in the area as the stress of captivity and relocation risked killing them

"If it was escaped from captivity, we would attempt to capture it and return it, but at this stage we haven't had any reports of it being an escaped animal," he said.

"We'll set up some cameras to see if we can get some better imagery of the animal and see if any others are around as well."

"We will be working with the [resident] that has had the chickens killed to see if we can help predator-proof the chicken run."

However, the quoll was later trapped on the property and taken to a vet, where it was treated for mange and subsequently released at an undisclosed location.

Community spirit shines

By Sophie Conlon

The Glencoe community is banding together to bring new life to the long standing Glencoe Public Hall.

Glencoe Hall committee secretary Rebecca Alexander said they were hosting a number of fundraisers to help bring the space back up to scratch, with the next event being a market day.

With the event still a few weeks away, Ms Alexander said they were hoping to get as many stall holders registered as possible.

"It's just a matter of getting people here to support the market day, trying to get more stallholders booked and then eventually try and get the hall hired out," she said.

Treasurer Krystal Dunn said they wanted to bring back the community spirit to the hall as, since Covid-19, it had dwindled.

"There are a lot of new families moving into town, which is a good thing, so we want to bring back functions here where younger kids get about because that's obviously where it's at," she said.

"Me and my husband, we like community spirit, the rural communities, and that's why we live out here.

"We just need everyone else to jump on it too and go, 'hey, we'll all get involved and pitch in.'"

Ms Alexander said money raised would go towards fixing up the hall so more events could be held there.

"Maintenance at the moment, from the downpipe we're getting water issues inside, salt damp, that's a major one," she said.

"Electrical is also another one that needs updating.

"That's why we're throwing bigger fundraising events trying to get more people out here."

Ms Alexander said the hall could be hired for almost any occasion and it would be great to see it come alive again as a community hub.

As the committee work to bring it back to life, Ms Alexander said they would like to see more people jump on board.

She said they had recently received a grant from Wattle Range Council to upgrade electrical in the kitchen, but the funding would not cover all the upgrades the committee wanted to accomplish.

"So whether there's any tradesman that want to volunteer their time to do some jobs, because obviously our biggest cost is the labour, we can fundraise to purchase the items, the parts, but it's the labour that then costs the same amount," she said.

Both women agreed it was important to keep community halls alive because once they were lost there was nothing to hold the community together.

"If it gets sold, the whole building can be knocked down, so then that's another old building in a rural town regional town that's gone, you can't replace it," Ms Alexander said.

Glencoe Public Hall treasurer Krystal Dunn and secretary Rebecca Alexander, and their children Ryley, Hunter, Lane, Sophie and Kaleb, are looking forward to the upcoming market day. Picture: SOPHIE CONLON

Ms Dunn said the market day would be a family friendly event with local live music, market and food stalls, and children and family entertainment.

"We're doing a make your own hobby horse, so you will purchase it and then be able to enter the race," she said.

"We're going to do a handball target competition too, we're going to try to get the footy boys involved in that."

She said there would even be a car boot sale and visit from old classic vehicles.

"There is something for everyone," she said.

The market day will also see the committee launch their Christmas raffle, which Ms Alexander said had lots of exciting prizes.

"We've got basically $1000s of prizes up for grabs," she said.

The market day will be held at the Glencoe Public Hall on Sunday, November 26, from 10am to 3pm, with a gold coin entry fee.

Small win for interstate staff as negotiations continue

By Charlotte Varcoe

A Change in the Department for Education's policy allowing interstate entitlements to be transferred to South Australia has been celebrated by a local Australian Education Union (AEU) representative.

AEU presidential candidate and South East resident Matthew Key congratulated the state government on the change.

Previously, teachers looking to transfer from other states would not be able to have their worker entitlements - such as annual or sick leave - transferred over.

Mr Key said this was a really good step in the right direction, with the union continuing to work alongside the state government for better working conditions.

"We will be able to have a lot more people work, especially as a cross-border community," Mr Key said.

"To know leave can now accrue on either side of the border is great but there is still a vast disparity in South Australia and Victoria."

He said although it was a good start, the policy change "would not go far enough" to bring South Australian teachers in line with other states.

"We are still the worst paid teachers in the country," he said.

"Negotiations are all in progress at the moment and we are pleased after the industrial action the government has come to the table.

"We are now actively negotiating with them in order to get a better deal."

He said the state government still had to ensure teachers looking to transfer into South Australia were well supported in understanding the state's systems as well as ensuring the mentoring programs were improved.

Within South Australia, student teachers in their late stages of university were able to gain "special authority" to teach in regional schools.

Mr Key said although this was a positive initiative, a lot of the student teachers were placed in some of the "hardest classrooms".

"We do have a teacher shortage and we need to fill that gap but it is not done right at the moment," he said.

"We need better mentoring coming in and creating experienced teachers in those spots and having student teachers in more settled classrooms."

He said there had been conversations around the topics and it continued to be raised.

"The government keeps saying there is not enough money, but there is plenty of money for other things," Mr Key said.

"It is important that parliamentarians continue to talk about regional teachers as anything we can do to create more equity is a positive."

Member for MacKillop Nick McBride also spoke on the change of policy, labelling it as a "huge win" for teachers wishing to move to South Australia.

"This is a change in policy that will allow teachers who may have accrued many thousands of hours - and therefore dollars - in sick leave or annual leave to move to South Australia and to not lose those hard-earned entitlements," Mr McBride said.

"This gives an added incentive to come to our state and take up teaching positions, and we know there are many available."

Mr McBride also noted there was a "growing number of unqualified teachers" who were given special permissions to teach in regional areas to fill vacancies in the MacKillop electorate.

"This is not good for students or these student teachers," he said.

"These young teachers are having to sink or swim and they do not have the mentors to help them deal with the behavioural issues of some students which takes them away from doing what they are, ironically, not quite trained to do, which is teaching."

Mayor calls for options

By Charlotte Varcoe

Wattle Range Council mayor Des Noll has called on the Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) to organise a pre-polling booth in both Millicent and Penola.

Currently there are just two pre-polling booths in the Limestone Coast, one being in Mount Gambier and the other in Naracoorte.

Mr Noll said he was disappointed there were no pre-polling booths in the Wattle Range Council area for the Voice to Parliament referendum.

"We have a significant population that would want to utilise that service," Mr Noll said.

"I am disappointed the AEC has taken this action and at a minimum I want a pre-polling booth in Penola and Millicent."

He said he would suggest a large number of people in the Wattle Range Council area would use the pre-poll, making it easier for the elderly who may utilise the service.

"It could well make it busier on the day as well or people may not even vote which would be disappointing for their democratic right," Mr Noll said.

"There has always been pre-polling in the Wattle Range Council area in state elections so I am calling on the AEC to make an adjustment on that and make sure the community do have access."

An Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) spokesperson said during the federal election last year, the Limestone Coast was also serviced by a similar number of pre-polling centres prior to election day.

"It is also important to keep in mind that we cannot always secure centrally located premises for all voters during the pre-poll period in an operation of this size and with five weeks' notice, where we want them," the spokesperson said.

"As always, it is important for people to plan their vote with the majority of people voting on the day itself.

"However, for those that cannot vote on the day, the pre-poll centres are open for those who need it."

They said if needed, voters could also apply for a postal vote to be delivered to their home.

"Postal voting applications are still open and will be up until 6pm on Wednesday, October 11," the spokesperson said.

"All of these options means that people have a choice about when and where and how they can vote with just a little bit of planning and flexibility - similar to federal elections."

They said Australia has "some of the best access of all electoral processes" around the globe.

"It is a system envied by so many and citizen expectations in the digital age don't always accord with a manual process like elections or referendums," the spokesperson said.

"It does require some planning to see where and when people will vote."

The pre-polling stations will be open on a range of days leading up to the referendum on October 14. On the day of the referendum, a number of other polling booths will be open from 8am until 6pm that day.

Music buffs back station

By Caroline Hammat

Almost 300 hundred trivia buffs filled the Millicent Civic and Arts Centre on Friday night for 5THE FM's first major fundraiser in several years.

Quizmaster Jack Lane hosted the 'Spicks and Specks' music themed event which raised more than $4,000 during the evening.

Table three came out as winners with Chris Vearing heading to the stage to collect the prize on the team's behalf.

"Jack and his helpers did an awesome job" she said.

"It was so much fun, we had a blast.

"Bring on the next one."

5THE FM chair David Walshaw thanked the community at the end of the evening for their ongoing support.

Speaking on the challenges which the new board has faced since taking over the station late last year Mr Walshaw said the debt of nearly $200,000 had been retired.

"We didn't know how we were going to get out of this mess but we promised the community that we would," he said.

"The money from tonight will go toward renovations of the studios which have been let go for so long they are almost archaic.

"This is your radio station, we are just custodians of it and we need you to tell us what you would like us to do."

Mr Walshaw announced local Triple M radio station has donated two consoles which will bring the station in to "the 21st century".

The new consoles will allow people to dial in and appear live on air and enable the use of multiple microphones in the studio at one time.

From having a single presenter last year the station now has 18 on-air presenters working seven days a week.

Activity filled month ahead

By Caroline Hammat

Lunch and entertainment were both on the menu for 70 of the region's seniors as they attended the official launch of this year's Seniors Month on Tuesday.

Held at the Millicent Civic and Arts Centre, guests were treated to a free light luncheon with musical performances by the 'Piano Man' Dennis Edwards and country singer Anne Fraser.

Unfortunately entertainment by the Gladys Smith Early Learning Centre and Jack Harry, an Elvis Presley impersonator, were late cancellations.

Wattle Range Council mayor Des Noll officially launched the month's activities and encouraged seniors to make the most of the activities available.

"It is so important within our community to hold these events, get everybody together and have fun" he said.

Annual Seniors Month event coordinator Catarina Santos said some of October's planned events had already been booked out.

"We still have quite a few vacancies, and we encourage people to join the waiting list for those booked out events in case we have people pull out of attending.

"This year we have booking online available and quite a few have found it easy to navigate and have booked that way.

"We have kept the popular events like the walk at Lake McIntyre which has been with us since we started in 2011.

"Senior's Month is going pretty strong, every year the seniors look forward to October.

"They want to know when the program is going to be out to see what's going on, they really look forward to it."

This week's events include Glencoe Woolshed open day and morning tea on Friday, and Sunday the Lions Club of Penola are hosting a seniors lunch.

Next Monday and Tuesday cooking demonstrations are being held in both Millicent and Penola with the popular movie day being held on Wednesday.

This year's movie is Mrs Harris Goes to Paris with the Millicent Lions Club providing donuts as a movie viewing snack.

Students take to the courts for action-packed carnival

By Sophie Conlon

More than 900 students from around the Limestone Coast took part in Tennis SA's Tennis Hot Shots District School Carnival as it travelled from Mount Gambier to Keith recently.

On Wednesday, September 13, about 200 students from Millicent North, St Anthony's Catholic, Rendelsham, Kangaroo Inn and Beachport Primary Schools had a hit of the ball at the Millicent Tennis Club.

Tennis SA school and pathway manager Luke Doughty said the week touring the Limestone Coast had gone well.

"It's been really good, most days we've seen over 200 kids," he said.

Mr Doughty said the carnival was run annually and was an introduction to tennis for school aged children.

"The purpose is just to sort of get some kids out here playing and introduction to tennis," he said.

"It's pretty pretty laid back, so it's just more so again, to get to sort of understand the game of tennis, meeting new people, getting the concept of starting a match and working out how to score points."

He said the carnival was not too technical, but would give children a good jumping off point if they decided to join a local tennis club after taking part.

"Hopefully fall in love with the game and start playing the game," he said.

The carnival also offered students an opportunity to travel to Adelaide and represent the Limestone Coast in the SAPSASA state finals.

Local students Oscar, Sydnee, Leyla, Jed and Levi enjoyed learning the sport from Tennis SA school and pathway manager Luke Doughty.

Road branch worry

TWO roads within the MacKillop electorate will be investigated as to whether there needs to be more roadside vegetation clearance.

Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Tom Koutsantonis agreed to investigate roads of concern such as Old Kalangadoo Road towards Penola as well as Penola Road towards Naracoorte after it was brought to his attention.

Member for MacKillop Nick McBride spoke in parliament recently questioning whether Mr Koutsantonis would “consider updating vegetation clearance measurements” and take into account the “current maintenance schedule and the growth of vegetation” along regional roads.

“I have been contacted by a truck driver in my electorate who is extremely concerned about trees that hang dangerously close to his vehicle,” Mr McBride said.

“The constituent drives semi trailers and has explained that on numerous roads...the trees pose a safety risk.

“The constituent believes the current maintenance isn’t enough and that road users are being put at risk by overhanging branches.”

Mr Koutsantonis said he had received advice that the current vegetation clearance envelope in the South East was “sufficient” yet given Mr McBride’s concerns he would “ask the department to give [me] an update on whether or not” maintenance needed to be increased.

“I think there is a backlog of road maintenance across our regional roads,” Mr Koutsantonis said.

“There are specific issues in the South East and I will now investigate the roads he [Mr McBride] has raised.”

Tourism bonanza

By Aidan Curtis

Limestone Coast tourism is going gangbusters after the region recorded its highest ever visitor expenditure in the last financial year.

In the 12 months to June 2023, Limestone Coast recorded a visitor expenditure of $565 million, exceeding the region’s previous record.

It also went well above the region’s 2025 visitor expenditure target, which was $479 million according to the 2025 South Australian Regional Visitor Strategy.

Minister for Tourism Zoe Bettison said it was fantastic to see the “achievable” target passed so soon before 2025.

“The Limestone Coast is quite unique in the South Australian regional tourism makeup because they get a lot of tourists coming across the border, people coming on the Great Ocean Road,” Ms Bettison said.

“What we see is people wanting to get out and have a bit of adventure tourism, so where else better when you’ve got caves, snorkelling, the ability to walk around the Blue Lake and enjoy that, and of course mountain bikes.

“I think it’s a really attractive destination for families and we want to keep working with the tourism operators there and the councils to keep talking about that more and more.”

The 2023 AFL Gather Round played a significant part in the region’s success and Ms Bettison said there were already plans to improve on its success in 2024.

“The Gather Round in 2024 is going to be in the middle of the school holidays for Victoria and I recently met with your council to talk about how we can maximise peoples’ stays,” she said.

“Rather than driving through the Limestone Coast, we get them to stay overnight in the region and see it as a destination on its own.

“That road trip type of work will start to happen now.”

While the region, and the state as a whole, has seen a lot of success in meeting or exceeding the 2025 visitor expenditure targets, Ms Bettison said those targets will not be adjusted just yet.

“We have had that conversation, so we’ve got this ambition for $12.8 billion by 2023 and as a state, we’re at $9.9 billion now - I just want to see how the next probably 18 months go,” she said.

“We’ve had an incredible bounce back and beyond for tourism, we’ve put a lot of focus and money into it.

“There are some concerns nationally about a bit of softening due to inflation and interest rate rises, so we just want to see where that lands.”

Ms Bettison expects the review to be conducted in 2025.

Drop in volunteer numbers sees group fold

By Aidan Curtis

A South East LGBTIQ+ community group has initiated winding up procedures due to a lack of volunteers to keep it running.

Limestone Coast Connect (LCC) called time at its recent board meeting, with the group looking to officially wind up operations by December 1.

LCC chair Pat Smith cited low volunteer numbers as the driving factor in the vote to fold, with only three board members remaining to run the group.

“We asked for volunteers to help us and unfortunately no one really stepped up,” Mr Smith said.

“Community groups like this do need to happen, they do need to thrive, but it needs the community to support itself.

“We were down to three board members, unfortunately, and we need to have strong leadership and strong board members who have skills and the time to commit.”

With LCC soon to cease all operations, Mr Smith encouraged people in all South East communities to do their bit to make the region a safer, more inclusive space for all.

He said there were small things people could do that would go a long way to building a culture of acceptance throughout the Limestone Coast.

“If someone corrects you on their pronouns, say thank you and then work better on those pronouns,” he said.

“If you are a business owner or venue manager, make sure you have accessible, inclusive facilities and have that rainbow sticker on your door to show you are inclusive of everybody coming in through your doors.

“Queer people do need their safe spaces and it is imperative we do have safe spaces across the entire region, across all seven LGAs.”

Probe into pig outbreaks

By Charlotte Varcoe

Authorised officers from the Limestone Coast Landscape Board have been investigating claims that feral pigs were transported from Victoria to New South Wales and illegally released in the South East.

Within the last 18 months, there have been three recorded feral pig outbreaks with more than 80 pigs culled likely to have been released illegally.

According to the State Government, the first outbreak was less than 20 animals, all of which were successfully removed.

It was uncertain as to whether these animals were intended to be used by an individual or group, or intentionally released to establish a pest population.

The second outbreak included two pregnant females and discussions with South West Victorian government staff indicated people were actively moving pregnant females across the border to “establish new populations” for recreational hunting.

The latest outbreak included about 12 animals, which were released for personal use to a remote area of the property without the knowledge of the landowner.

Over the course of two to three years, it is understood the population increased to the point “of dispersing onto adjoining properties” when the local landscape board was alerted.

A government spokesperson said DNA samples were currently being tested to provide information on a possible source location.

They said enquiries were “ongoing to identify the person or persons involved”.

Minister for Primary Industries and Forestry Clare Scriven said in Parliament recently that PIRSA “worked closely” with the landscape boards, including that in the Limestone Coast.

“The impacts absolutely are very much on the agricultural sector, as well of course on the natural environment,” Ms Scriven said.

“Feral animals, particularly feral pigs, have very considerable negative impacts environmentally as well.

“I am advised [there are] between about 1000 and 2000 feral pigs on mainland South Australia.”

Ms Scriven said feral pigs were declared for destruction under the Landscape South Australia Act 2019.

“Under that act it is illegal to possess, move, sell or release feral pigs without a permit,” she said.

“Sightings of feral pigs or any indication of their presence must be reported to the regional landscape board or the chief executive of the Department for Environment and Water or their delegate.”

MP in the Chariman's Lounge

Minister for Primary Industries, Regional Development and Forestry Clare Scriven has reassured the public her lounge membership to Qantas Chairman's Lounge has been registered.

Ms Scriven acknowledged she is a part of the chairman's lounge and it was brought to her attention “through a media report” that she had “omitted to include” it on her register of interests for this year.

“As soon as I became aware of that I rectified the situation by advising the clerk and requesting it be added to my register,” Ms Scriven said.

The membership does not constitute a gift under the Ministerial Code of Conduct but Ms Scriven said it “should be declared on the register of interests”.

It was recently reported that Premier Peter Malinauskas and almost all of his cabinet have declared themselves members of the chairman's lounge with some not registering it on the register of interest.

The state government has confirmed and reassured the public and those in the chambers that all lounge members have now put it on the register.

The chairman's lounge is for clients travelling on domestic flights throughout the nation.

A FAIR SHARE FOR REGIONAL NEWS

Regional Australian communities deserve local news as much as our big cities do.

Local independent newspapers still connect more than 80% of the country, but currently the commonwealth government invests close to 0% of its advertising budget here.

The federal government could help secure the future of regional news with zero extra cost by simply allocating a fairer share of government advertising to local and regional news services.

One page per week of important government information in regional newspapers would be a great start. This shouldn't be controversial. It's a simple and fair solution for the future of regional news.

Motoring

Impressive seven-seater

By Alistair Kennedy, Marque Motoring

Although Korean carmaker SsangYong has been in the Australian market for the past 20 years it has never been able to get close to the success of its compatriots Hyundai and Kia.

The company has gone through financial difficulties over the years and been taken over at different times by SAIC, Daewoo, Mahindra and, earlier this year, by a new entrant in the automotive scene – KG Mobility.

SsangYong currently has three models in its range, the Musso ute and two SUVs, mid-sized Korando and, this week's test vehicle the medium-large Rexton.

Rexton languishes near the bottom of the large SUV segment well below the big hitters like Toyota Prado and Kluger, Ford Everest and Isuzu MU-X, which is a pity because, after our week behind the wheel, we came away highly impressed.

Drive-away prices starting from $47,990 make it a fair bit cheaper than these competitors with a seven-year warranty adding to the value equation.

Like the ute-based Everest and MU-X, the Rexton sits on the same platform as the SsangYong Musso.

Three variants are offered, ELX, Ultimate and Ultimate Sport Pack, formerly sold as the Black Edition.

A third variant, called Adventurer, will be added later this year that will slot between ELX and Ultimate in terms of both specs and price.

All come with seven seats, a 2.2-litre turbo-diesel engine, eight-speed automatic transmission and 3500kg braked towing capacity.

The constraints of fitting three rows of seats don't allow for much flexibility in the roofline of large SUVs and Rexton has the same conservative profile as its rivals.

Most of the work therefore gets done at the front and rear.

Rexton has an attractive intricate diamond-style grille with the company logo, which few people recognised, at the top/centre.

Both variants come with quad-style LED headlights, LED daytime running lights and LED front fog lights.

At the rear the tail lights and number plate lights are also LED.

The high-mounted stop lights are integrated into the rear spoiler.

Wheels are 18-inch diamond-cut alloys.

Rexton Ultimate adds privacy glass, powered sunroof and tailgate and illuminated front door scuff plates.

There are six colour choices: Grand White, Atlantic Blue, Fine Silver, Marble Grey, Pearl White and Space Black.

The limited Black Edition is based on the Ultimate model and comes with a re-designed front with diamond-shaped grille elements, deep gloss black finish and new-style LED fog lights.

Other dark touches include black 20-inch alloy wheels and black painted roof rails.

There are only two colour options: Space Black or Pearl White.

Like most in its class Rexton has a fairly high stance which can challenge shorter occupants, but on the positive side the high seating position provides ideal viewing.

There are thermoplastic polyurethane (TPU) leather-look seats in all three rows.

The front seats are powered, comfortable and supportive as well as being heated and ventilated.

Attractive quilted trim can be found on the seats and around the front console.

Storage space is good with sliding covers for the drink holders and phone charging bay.

The rear seats are finished in the same quilted trim while the second-row seats can tilt backwards to about 50-degrees – subject of course to the approval of any third-row occupants.

SsangYong Rexton is an affordable alternative in the family SUV market.

The second-row also has a fold-down armrest with two cupholders and small storage area.

Ultimate adds driver's seat and door mirror memory system, touch-sensing front door locks, heated leather steering wheel, ambient interior mood lighting and third row air conditioning controls.

Access to the third-row seats and space once there provides the usual challenges and are best left for children.

Even then the seating is low and there's only small, triangular windows which provide a claustrophobic feel.

Boot space with all seats in place is limited.

The 2.2-litre turbo-diesel generates maximum power of 148kW at 3800 rpm and healthy peak torque of 441Nm from 1600 revs.

Fuel consumption is listed at 8.7L/100km.

The eight-speed automatic comes with the convenience of steering wheel mounted shift paddles.

It has part-time 4x4 with low and high range and an automatic-locking rear differential.

Although Rexton hasn't undergone ANCAP crash testing it does come with a good range of safety equipment in both variants.

They include nine airbags, autonomous emergency braking with forward collision warning, lane change collision warning, safety distance warning, blind spot warning, smart high beam, front vehicle start warning, rear cross traffic warning, tyre pressure monitoring system, Isofix child seat anchors for the outer centre seats and trailer sway control.

There are front and rear parking sensors and a reversing camera, with a 360-degree camera in the Ultimate.

The larger of the two screens is the 12.3-inch digital instrument cluster which can be customised to suit different situations.

At just eight inches, the infotainment touchscreen is smaller than we're used to in the latest vehicles.

It's also relatively basic and doesn't include built-in satellite navigation in either variant.

There are six physical buttons and a round knob below the screen for the most commonly used functions and more buttons and another knob for the air conditioning controls.

Apple CarPlay and Android Auto are both wired and a wireless smartphone charger is added for the Ultimate.

Despite its modest 148kW power output, 441Nm of torque means the combination of 2.2-litre diesel engine and eight-speed auto transmission pulls the big vehicle along in a smooth, relaxed and surprisingly quiet manner.

It certainly loses nothing in comparison with its better-known and more expensive competitors.

Steering is relatively light and there's a fair bit of body roll through corners, but that's par for the course with large SUVs.

During our test we averaged 9.3L/100km, reasonably close to the listed 8.7 L/100km.

We haven't tested a SsangYong Rexton for quite a long time and came away pleasantly surprised.

It's very well priced but not at the expense of safety equipment, convenience features or technology.

It not only beats competitors on price but comes with a seven-year unlimited warranty together with seven-year roadside assistance.

Certainly worth a comparative test drive.

Impressive results for trio on the national stage

The weekend of September 22 through 24 was a memorable one for three members of South East Field and Game Association.

The trio competed at the Sporting Clays Australia National Championships in Gunnedah NSW against more than 350 of Australia's best sporting clays shooters.

Fine but windy conditions made the already tough target presentations slightly trickier, but that failed to bother Jeremy Kent, who claimed the overall championship honours with a score of 179/200, finishing four targets ahead of runner-up Chris Brown.

Kent was joint leader after the first day of competition and two targets behind after the second day.

On the third and final day of competition he shot a possible 25/25 to stamp his authority on the event on his way to a commanding victory.

It was Kent's second SCA national title won in NSW and his second national title in 2023, having won the English Sporting titles at Burrungule Park earlier this year.

Leigh Dunn claimed the seniors national title with a score of 166/200, two targets ahead of multiple champion John Younger.

Dunn's consistency over all the grounds laid the foundation for his success and he also finished ninth overall.

Seasoned Veteran Ron Rhook scored 156/200 to claim the veteran's national title with a one-target victory over fellow South Australian Grant Baum.

Busy week by the seaside

Last week was a busy period for the Robe Bowling Club with both the women's fours and Open BPL two-bowl triples played.

On Tuesday a field of 16 women's teams enjoyed the first tournament of the year.

Caddyshack was in attendance and players could stock up on their clothes and gear for the coming season.

In the novelty events, Kingston's Val Daniels won the closest to the ditch, while Penola's Liz Copping had the first toucher.

Harvey Bay's Kim Edwards joined the competition, while a phantom team from Mount Gambier RSL also attended, consisting of Trish Webb, Liz Schroeder, Shirley McIntyre and Joy Bilney.

At the end of the day the win went to the Kingston/Robe combined team of Robbie Dahler, Heather Lehmann, Chris Watts and Heidi Gribble with 83.5 points +19.

A countback was required to determine the victors, with Naracoorte RSLs Sandra Green, Joan Hurn, Linda Prentis and Robyn Hansen a close second on 83.5 points +8.

Kingston's Val Daniels, Steph Capper, Deb Ogilvie and Urai Jacobs rounded out the podium with 81.5 points.

Following the women's event, Wednesday had another 16 teams enter the BPL triples competition.

The tournament was won by Mount Gambier RSLs Gary Feast, John Schroder and Graham Ellis, who won four games with 62.5 points.

They edged out Kingston's Ron Packer, Michael Rivett and Steve Hyland, also with four games but on 62 points.

Third with three games was the team of Graham Crowder, Les James and Jeff England from Mount Gambier, with a score of 59 points.

Thursday's social bowls had a field of 17 members play one game of 12 ends and one game of 10 ends.

At the end of the event there was only a one two-game winner with the honours going to Helen Dawson and Doug Baker on 54 points.

Wrapping up the busy week, Sunday saw a 100-up competition played in fine weather conditions.

In the men's event Peter Roachock defeated Ricken Bermingham, Josh Waddell defeated Ali Douglas, Harold Manton defeated Errol Jennings and Steve Farrell defeated Rob Lawrie.

David Robinson, Glenn Wright and Jim Gray had a bye while Dean Burgoyne had a forfeit in the first round.

In the second round, Roachock accounted for Gray, while Manton won over Waddell, Burgoyne defeated Wright and Robinson knocked out Farrell.

Manton had the better of Roachock in the third round, while Robinson progressed to the final with a win over Burgoyne.

In the final Robinson led most of the way but Manton made a comeback in the 80's and 90's to clinch the win.

In the women's competition there were two tight games in the first round.

From a Saint to a Demon

By Trevor Jackson

South Gambier has announced Peter Duncan as its A Grade football coach for the upcoming 2024 season, with the retired Brett O'Neil his assistant.

A former Millicent local, Duncan was involved as assistant/bench coach through the recent successful Western Border Football League seasons, where the Saints claimed a three-peat of premierships.

Duncan's career in football began at Millicent back in 2005, before a move up to play for Port Adelaide, then the Hills league.

"I decided to try a bit of FIFO work and make a bit of money," Duncan said.

"I went off the map and put work in front of football, but that made me miss it even more.

"After five years I decided I wanted my life back, then moved back to Millicent in 2016 to play."

Duncan was lucky enough to play under and coach with Clint Gallio, which he said helped advance his coaching career.

"I was at the club when Clint first moved in, when I was playing," he said.

"He has had a decorated career and is a hell of a player.

"Being able to play under him, then once I retired from football, being able to work with him, that is where my learning really started to take off.

South Gambier Reserves coach Chris Williams, A Grade coach Peter Duncan and A Grade assistant coach Brett O'Neil are keen to work together for season 2024. Picture: SUBMITTED

"Just seeing how professional he is and how good of a leader he is, I could sit there and be a sponge, learn from one of the best.

"Then having Tom Renzi come in at the start of 2021, he has his own set of strengths and have learnt off both of them, which I think put me in good stead to go to South."

With Tom Renzi and Jacob Carger inline for the coaching roles at Millicent, Duncan said he if wanted to continue he needed to move clubs.

"I was looking for opportunity, wanted to take the next step and have my own coaching job," he said.

"I was lucky enough South gave me the opportunity."

South has its own experienced leaders at the club, with O'Neil sure to have an impact on Duncan's career as the two call the shots on a Saturday afternoon.

"I have always been a distant admirer of Brett, playing and coaching against him," he said.

"I was never the player Brett and Clint were, but just being able to lean on those blokes, ask questions of them, see what they see and get their thoughts can only help."

Another boost for Duncan will come through Reserves coach Chris Williams.

"I have had a few good chats with Chris and he is passionate about his coaching," he said.

"We want to be a senior squad, so having him on board is another set of eyes and a South local.

"He knows the club inside out and the players really respect him, so to be able to have him help will be good."

In the successful Millicent years, the Saints relied on young players coming through the system to grow and become the backbone of the club.

Duncan said it is a similar scenario at South, as the Demons continue to draw on their strength as a club.

"South is blessed with the juniors ... they have always been strong," he said.

"The talent is there, the pathway is there and they have players coming through year on year.

"The good thing for me is it was not too dissimilar at Millicent.

"We had the same sort of thing with the majority of players home grown young kids.

"I'm hoping I can build something similar at South."

While there is still some doubt about the format of football next season, Duncan said that was not an issue as far as he is concerned.

"Personally it doesn't bother me where we play," he said.

"I just want to coach the boys and they just want to play.

"Whoever the opposition is doesn't matter.

"We are more on a journey of what we can do rather than who we are playing against."

Regardless of matters out of his hand, Duncan said the move to South had so far been smooth across the board.

"I have been lucky, a lot of South and Millicent people have congratulated me and wished me the best, which is nice.

"Everyone has been really helpful."

Get ready for the Blue Lake Fun Run

Start warming up, entries for the Blue Lake Fun Run are now open.

The annual event is back again, and with nearly 1000 runners signed up last year, it's bound to be a big one.

Organiser Trevor Williams said the event started by the City of Mount Gambier council as a way of fighting obesity in younger people, but the Mount Gambier Lakes Rotary Club soon took it over and made it their own.

"It's to promote fitness, and keep bringing families together," he said.

"We do have more dedicated athletes but the goal is to bring families and the town together."

As well as promoting fitness and bringing people together, the event raises money which will be put back into the community.

Last year, the club donated more than $20,000 to local organisations.

It will be a group effort this year, with organiser Mark Praolini calling for locals to pull all their friends together and make a team.

"We're trying to encourage people to come together, register as teams and hopefully end up with a few more people," he said.

"It builds a bit of camaraderie at the workplace and can be a team get-together.

"Plus, there might also be some friendly rivalry."

There are prizes on offer for teams, schools and sporting groups, as well as individual prizes for the winners.

As always there will be the Lakes and Craters Half Marathon, the 10.4km Blue Lake/WarWar Run, the 6.8km Mount Gambier/Berrin Run and the 3.2km Cave Gardens/Thugi Dash.

The Half Marathon has a minimum age of 15 years, but all other events are open to all.

Registrations are open, simply visit Blue Lake Fun Run on Facebook for more information on how to register.

The committee is also looking for volunteers on the day, so if you would like to assist, send a message to the Facebook page.

Strugnell sets a high pace

By Trevor Jackson

The Master of Mac Park provided plenty of entertainment over the weekend, with big fields gracing the McNamara Park circuit.

The main feature race, the Master of Mac Park, saw the fastest riders hit the track, with William Strugnell claiming the honours on his 1000cc Suzuki.

He finished three seconds ahead of youngster Declan Carberry on a 1000cc BMW, from Charles Holding on a 600cc Yamaha.

The consolation feature race showed little difference between the top two, in just .114 of a second separating the pair at the line.

William Downie claimed the win aboard a 1000cc Suzuki, from Chris Duffy on a 1000cc BMW.

Aaron Rigby rounded out the podium on a 1000cc Suzuki.

The lightweight Master of Mac Park saw a strong performance by Sam Pezzetta on a 300cc Yamaha.

He finished almost eight seconds ahead of Tara Morrison on a 400cc Kawasaki, with Ryder Gilbert rounding out the podium aboard his Yamaha.

The Junior Master of Mac Park saw the younger members of the sport hit the track aboard 150cc machines.

Jai Strugnell kept the family name up in lights, with a three-and-a-half second win on his Yamaha.

Seth Dellow was next aboard a Honda, just ahead of Ethan Dellow.

The Sidecars are always a popular category and the weekend was no different.

A close battle played out in the main feature race, with Michael Alton and David Rumble claiming the honours, under a second ahead of Stephen Jones and Samantha Gittus.

Grant Howarth and Scott Deslandes rounded out the podium.

Round 4 of the SA State Championships was included across the weekend to ensure some fast and furious action for the big crowds that flowed into the venue.

Gallio's legacy to live on

By James Murphy

Clint Gallio will leave a lasting legacy at the Millicent Football Club.

The four-time Western Border premier-ship coach is set to return to his former Mid South Eastern club at Mount Burr for season 2024 and will leave the Saints off the back of a history-making three-peat.

Gallio first signed on at Millicent in 2017, after winning back-to-back MSEFL flags with the Mozzies.

From there his career was decorated further, coaching the Saints to a drought-breaking premiership in 2018 and their second ever since joining the Western Border Football League.

It had been 34 years since the club had raised the A Grade cup, but the time between drinks would be much shorter next time.

In 2019 Gallio headed north to compete in the Northern Territory.

That year was a difficult year at Millicent and the reigning premiers finished the season as wooden spooners without a win.

The following year was interrupted by the Covid-19 pandemic, before Gallio returned home in 2021 to coach the Saints to a three-peat of premierships.

They knocked out minor premiers South Gambier in both 2021 and 2022, while the most recent success came at the expense of North Gambier last month.

It was a history-making victory for Millicent, while also a rare feat in the league's history.

No other club has won three consecutive flags in the league's current format, following the departure of Victorian clubs in 2013.

North Gambier is a partial exception, winning from 2012-2014, while the only other clubs to have achieved a three-peat in the WBFL are South Gambier and Portland.

There is no denying the level of Gallio's coaching ability and he will be a valued asset back at the Mozzies.

Gallio said leaving Millicent was a tough decision, but he is excited for his next endeavour at Mount Burr.

"It is just the right timing for me - footy wise and where I am at with my body and capabilities and all that," he said.

"It was a pretty tough decision."

He was grateful for his time with the Saints, which will always remain a prominent piece of his football career.

"Millicent has been really good to me and I have enjoyed every second," Gallio said.

"I think I have done the best I can and I have had a lot of people and players supporting me (on the journey)."

Mount Burr is in somewhat of a rebuilding phase and finished the 2023 season just shy of finals in fifth position.

Meanwhile, Millicent will be left in the safe hands of Tom Renzi as head coach, with premiership captain Jacob Carger to assist.
