CLOSE to 200 people attended the Mount Burr Primary School (MBPS) on Saturday to witness the opening of the school's time capsule and share memories of their time at school.

Attendees had travelled from interstate and across the district with former student. Alana Henderson, coming from Kununurra.

Installed in October 1973 the time capsule was created to commemorate the new school's official opening. Encased in a stone obelisk it took school handyman and former student Garth Nesbitt a full day to remove the metal capsule safely. It was reburied with the plaque being the only thing needing to be removed in preparation for Saturday's unveiling.

With assistance from Mr Nesbitt the capsule was removed from the ground by Michelle, daughter of the 1973 MBPS Principal

Real estate resilience

DESPITE economic uncertainty, high inflation and high interest rates, the South Australian regional property market continues to stay stable.

Recent data has shown that the state has topped the median price record once again.

The CEO of RESIA (Real Estate Institute of South Australia) Andrea Heading said that the Valuer-General's price data showed that the median price had increased by 4.38 per cent from the previous quarter.

"It is clear that purchasers are still clearly willing to enter the real estate market and to pay premium prices for properties that are realistically and transparently priced," she said.

Regional South Australia saw a drop in volume of sales with a decrease by 7.56 per cent from the previous quarter and 21.97 per cent from the same quarter last year.

Despite this, of the towns which have seen the largest growth over a 12 month period was Mount Gambier with a growth of 8.81 per cent and Millicent at 27.88 per cent growth.

Mount Gambier also made the list for top selling towns in terms of recorded sales over the September quarter. Ms Heading said that while South Australia's regional real estate market is doing well, it is still significantly impacted by the current economic climate and lack of adequate and affordable housing supply.

"REISA is well placed to advocate for policies and strategies that address these issues and we will continue to do so," she said.

KCA celebrates longevity

MELANIE RILEY

WITH more than half of people employed nationwide staying in their current role for less than five years, Kimberly Clark Australia (KCA) must be doing something right, with a large number of employees clocking up a quarter century.

Recently, 45 employees were inducted into their Quarter Century Club, joining 395 former and existing employees nationwide.

With almost 30 per cent of the mill's workforce now a part of the Quarter Century Club, Mill Manager Adam Carpenter says that they're not seeing it slow down.

"At KCA, at least 50 per cent of the employees here will stay for more than 15 years," he said

"So, we're definitely seeing a different trend here to what has been seen nationally."

Mr Carpenter says that while it's different for every person, he believes that the biggest things that contribute to the longevity of careers at the mill are interesting work, good pay conditions and there is a real purpose behind what they do, especially through the pandemic.

"We do provide essentials for everyday life, and that was brought out very much over the pandemic and the panic buying we saw around toilet paper," he said.

Pictures: SUPPLIED

Mr Carpenter says that KCA are always trying to evolve the site and the conditions their employees work within, and pride themselves on being an inclusive and diverse company.

"We do a lot of work with employees around inclusion and diversity, as well as developing that sense of belonging," he said.

The Quarter Century Club inductees are celebrated annually but have been on hiatus for the last three years due to the pandemic.

The celebrations this year included a presentation night at The Barn Palais, where employees reflected on the year, and those that had reached milestones were acknowledged.

Mr Carpenter said that the night was an opportunity for both current and past employees to come together, reminisce and celebrate their time with Kimberly Clark Australia.

"We've been in operation here for over 60 years so there is also a large number of past employees that have a significant length of service with us."

"We're incredibly proud to be inducting 45 employees to our Quarter Century Club this year," he said.

Memories stirred as capsule contents revealed

CLOSE to 200 people attended the Mount Burr Primary School (MBPS) on Saturday to witness the opening of the school's time capsule and share memories of their time at school

With assistance from Mr Nesbitt the capsule was removed from the ground by Michelle, daughter of the 1973 MBPS Principal John Hays.

Former Member for MacKillop Mitch Williams opened the event and spoke fondly of his school memories.

Mr Williams has a long history with MBPS as a former student, parent of former students and currently has three grandchildren at the school.

"My association with the school goes back well beyond 50 years," he said.

"My family has lived near this community for many generations and the school has been a very important part of our life," he said.

The school was originally opened in 1934 and was a direct result of the government owned and built sawmill that had begun operating in 1931.

LEARNING: Annemarie Fitzgerald with students Evan and Rowan Auld, Riley Williams and Luca Bateman who had all written a sentence about what they liked at school.

"The school opened with 54 students, within eleven years there were 100 students in 1945, in 1952 there were 200 hundred students," Mr Williams said.

"I came in 1959, school in those days was somewhat different."

"One of the most remarkable things that happened was the bus would get here early because it still had to take the older children to the high school. "There was a heap of wood and an axe, we would get off the bus and chop the wood for the day's heating in the classrooms.

"I don't think you would find an axe in any school today."

Current principal Annemarie Fitzgerald spoke of the changes to the school and the technology and resources the students now benefit from.

disappearance of 'the well' she expressed concern its removal may be the only thing she is remembered for.

'The well' was a much loved sunken area in the middle of the classroom, but when new carpet was to be laid the decision was made to cover it over.

Noel Seebohm, who was given the task of cutting the cake, is a former student, life member of the school council and was the chairman of the school in 1973.

Current students braved a shower of rain to plant a tree in front of the school to commemorate the occasion.

The capsule included a letter from the 1974 Deputy Premier of South Australia Des Corcoran, numerous colour and black and white photographs, a super 8 film from the Australian Broadcasting Commission, forestry information and photocopies of South Eastern Times stories.

For now the contents of the time capsule will be put on display in the school library.

Milestone art a team effort

IN celebration of its 150th birthday, Glenburnie Primary School has commissioned a local artist to help beatify their grounds.

Local artist and art teacher April Hague said the school wanted a piece that could be moved at a later date if needed, and decided on a digital artwork printed in large scale.

The piece incorporated students' drawings, where they were asked to draw something special to them about Glenburnie Primary School such as sports days, beach day, camp and spaces around the school.

Ms Hague said she particularly loved seeing all of the drawings of the natural environment produced by the students.

"I suggested something that included student artwork and the things that make the school unique and special," she said.

Once the drawings were collected, Ms Hague began the design process, which included scanning and transposing the drawings into her piece.

The artwork itself was created digitally, then printed onto a UV resistant and weather proof material and was mounted on the building.

Ms Hague said the piece included some special pieces of significance, including the Red-tailed Black Cockatoo, the school's logo and both the Australian and Aboriginal flags being featured repeatedly.

She said it was important for children to learn about art in school, and believed it was beneficial in many ways.

"It is such a vital outlet for students in terms of self-expression and communication of their thoughts, ideas and opinions," she said.

"For some it is their preferred method of communication and it gives them a voice.

"Art Education teaches visual literacy and that is something unique to the curriculum. It helps them to make sense of the world around them and it's fun!" The official opening of the mural at Glenburnie Primary School will be part of their 150th year celebrations later in the term.

Rescue cash knocked back

CHARLOTTE VARCOE

THE State Government has rejected funding for a marine rescue vessel based at Port MacDonnell.

Member for Mount Gambier Troy Bell put forward a motion to Parliament recognising the "important assistance" professional and recreational fishers play in emergency marine safety situations within the region.

Mr Bell also moved the State Government "provide funding" for a marine rescue unit incorporating a rescue vessel - to be based at Port MacDonnell.

Speaking to Parliament, Mr Bell said a proposal for a marine rescue service was first introduced in the region after fishermen rescued two men whose vessel had capsized 15 kilometres off Port MacDonnell's coast.

Since that event in 2011, there have been numerous instances where the community has depended on the goodwill of local fishers to assist in rescue operations, some of which ended tragically," Mr Bell said.

Mr Bell listed a number of incidents which happened in 2014, 2016, 2021 and 2022.

'These incidents are just a selection from the past decade in which professional and recreational fishermen have played a crucial role in rescue operations, with many others not reported publicly," he said.

"There has been a longstanding agreement between local police and the community of Port MacDonnell to conduct these rescues. and the professional fishing fleet has always selflessly come forward to offer their time when they have been called to do so."

He said the community "could not rely on the goodwill of others" forever with rescue operations "outside the normal duties" of both recreational and professional fishermen.

"This stretch of coastline has proven to be treacherous, yet the closest rescue vehicle is located in Kingston," Mr Bell said.

"A two hour boat ride away, not only are we relying on commercial and recreational vessels that are not designed for this purpose but we are also relying on local fishermen who have not been trained to perform rescues safely and who may not have the necessary equipment.

"It is time to address this issue and establish a marine rescue unit at Port MacDonnell, equipped with a built-for-purpose vessel and trained volunteers.'

Member for MacKillop Nick McBride also spoke to the chamber in support of the motion, stating there had also been examples of divers "getting separated from their boats" between Kingston and Nora Creina.

"As we know, regional communities rely on volunteers and with such an enormous ocean, their contribution in search and rescue is vital," Mr McBride said.

"Even minor calls for assistance can be costly, breakdowns may require a tow and the closest vessel may be a fishing vessel which has to interrupt its fishing schedule to go and rescue the vessel and its crew." Member for Hammond Adrian Pederick also commented on the motion, requesting an amendment to call on the State Government to investigate a "State Emergency Service rescue presence in Port MacDonnell" while also ensuring there was "adequate support for marine rescue services" along the state's coast and inland waters.

Members voted on Mr Pederick's amendment which was denied, before voting on a further amendment made by Member for Elizabeth Lee Odenwalder which passed.

The final motion read to "recognise the calls for a Marine Rescue Fund to ensure fishers are compensated for their services and time in situations assisting emergency services".

Mr Bell said he was "disappointed" with the State Government's approach and was looking for commitment moving forward.

He said he looked forward to working with the government to create a path moving forward and thanked the Grant District Council for its continued support.

Push to reduce stigma, increase awareness

THE Suicide Prevention Community Grants, which support projects and help reduce the rate of suicide among South Australians, are now open.

There is a total of $200,000 funding available, with two categories of individual grants.

The first category provides funding up to $5,000 for smaller projects, and the second up to $15,000 for larger initiatives.

The grants will be used to create a greater awareness, reduce stigma and build protective factors in South Australian communities through support, training and events held by the various organisations.

The premier's advocate for suicide prevention Nadia Clancy said we all had a role in preventing suicide, and awareness was key.

"Through raising awareness and breaking down stigma surrounding suicide, we can help save lives across the state," she said.

The grants are an addition to the continued work in the space of suicide prevention, alongside the Suicide Prevention Council and 45 Suicide Prevention Networks in SA.

Wellbeing SA executive director of mental health and wellbeing Nicole Keller said the grants have helped shine a light on the important and positive ways communities can identify local issues and solutions, build connections and provide vital support when needed. "The grants have funded a wide variety of projects including local community awareness campaigns, culturally informed events, targeted resource development, therapeutic art-based initiatives and sporting activities, all with the overall goal of reducing suicide," she said.

Previous years successful grant recipients include Talk Out Loud, Stamp Out Suicide and Queer Minds Matter.

Applications are now open through to November 3, and will be assessed by Wellbeing SA. For more information including eligibility criteria, visit the Wellbeing SA website.

MILLICENT'S favourite second hand bookshop is on the move again.

After more than 12 months at 47 George Street, opposite the Millicent Police Station, the Wattle Range Lions Club Lionesses are preparing to box up hundreds of books for the short trip to number 67.

The owner of the new premises, which previously housed an antique shop, has offered to share the store with the group at a reasonable rent they can manage.

Lioness Ruth Stratford said the opportunity was too good to pass up as increasing rents have seen the non-profit struggle at times to cover ongoing expenses.

"We don't like moving but the men from the Lion's Club are absolutely wonderful and they help us to move" she said.

"We appreciate it, they change our book shelving and one of them who is a carpenter is going to look at our shelving again because we will have half a shop.

"We have got many books in boxes, we are not even looking at them until we move because it's double handling.

'We are asking people not to donate any books until after we have moved, but if they do we will accept them."

The bookshop was an initiative of the Millicent Lioness's in 2015 when they opened a pop up shop for the Geltwood Festival.

It was a success and the group began to discuss the possibility of a more permanent shop.

"Joan Morgan and Elva Sinclair had the shop on the corner next to the old community club.

"They were very generous and allowed us in there rent free.

Ms Stratford said the book shop had become a place where people often dropped in for a chat, with tourists regularly stopping to pick up a book or two for their travels.

"It's also great for those who can't afford a

Students add to parkland art

CAROLINE HAMMAT

AFTER almost 10 years Millicent's Art in the Domain easels have received a total makeover.

Originally created by staff and students of the Millicent Community Learning Centre the metal A frame easels were installed near the skate park and 10 panels painted by local artists were attached.

In 2016 another 10 panels, painted by artist Suzanne Brierley-Westall from designs created by Millicent North Primary School students, were installed under the original panels.

12 months ago Wattle Range Council manager libraries and cultural services Janice Nitschke approached Millicent High School (MHS) art teacher Steph Barton about upgrading the panels.

By March this year the 20 panels had been removed and given to Ms Barton to lead the project.

Ms Barton worked with students from year seven to year 12 to research and plan their artwork before learning how to correctly prepare the boards before painting them.

Some students worked together in teams of three or four as part of their capabilities lessons and others as part of their year nine assessment.

Two were created by year 12 students as part of Community Connections toward their SACE certificate and MHS staff painted some.

A small group braved inclement weather on Saturday to attend the official opening by Wattle Range Council mayor Des Noll who said "one of the strengths of our community is our art."

Ms Barton explained the project and the part it played in the student's studies.

"They had to use numeracy and literacy, had to do a lot of research and they had to work together. It was a lot of work preparing the panels and the kids had so much fun.

"Thanks to Janice for the opportunity for our students to do it.

"I think it's important students are able to do this in their own community and it's very important that work is on display and showcased in different sites where they can see it."

Ms Barton and Jenny Bishop were presented with a certificate and flowers acknowledging their involvement in the project.

Four petitions crucial to SA

Dear Editor

I am writing to express my wholehearted support for four critical petitions that are of paramount importance for the future of transportation in South Australia.

-Petition for the Reintroduction of Passenger Rail to Mount Gambier from Adelaide

The revival of passenger rail services between Adelaide and Mount Gambier is not only a matter of convenience but also a substantial stride towards a more sustainable and climate-conscious mode of transportation. It is evident that robust rail connectivity can significantly contribute to reducing greenhouse gas emissions and traffic congestion, aligning with Australia's commitment to combating climate change.

Additionally, this initiative would markedly enhance road safety, reducing the strain on our already busy highways. By offering a reliable rail option, we can diminish the number of vehicles on the road, consequently reducing accidents and associated risks.

-Petition for the Reintroduction of Mount Gambier to Melbourne Passenger Rail

This proposition holds immense potential for bolstering regional connectivity, fostering economic growth, and promoting a more integrated Australia. By facilitating swift and efficient travel between Mount Gambier and Melbourne, we create new opportunities for business, tourism, and cultural exchange. This rail link has the power to invigorate local economies and stimulate job creation, ultimately benefiting communities along the entire route.

-Petition for a Comprehensive High-Speed Rail Network in Australia

Advocating for a high-speed rail network is a visionary step towards a more modern, connected, and dynamic Australia. Such a network would revolutionize the way we travel, offering a fast, efficient, and environmentally conscious alternative to air travel. The benefits extend beyond mere convenience; they encompass a substantial reduction in carbon emissions, significant savings in travel time, and a boost to national productivity.

-Adelaide to Melbourne Talgo High-Speed Rail Trial:

The proposal for a high-speed rail trial from Adelaide to Melbourne using Talgo technology represents a ground-breaking opportunity to showcase the potential of cutting-edge rail transport. This trial not only explores the feasibility of high-speed rail but also lays the foundation for a future-ready transportation system that places Australia at the forefront of rail innovation.

THE Limestone Coast dairy industry has dominated at the Dairy Australia 2023 Milk Quality Awards, with all three South Australian gold diamond winners located in the region.

Tim Bruhn and Amanda Giles, who farm Holsteins in Kongorong, were among the three South East farms to win the gold award.

Mr Bruhn said it felt good to receive the prestigious award and sit amongst the best in Australia.

"The hard work we put in is being rewarded," he said.

"We are fairly new to this whole thing, we've only been going for two years, so it's good that we are on the right track."

He said there were many things that went into producing a good quality milk and taking care of his 320 cows was top of the list.

"It comes down to being observant and having good staff that take pride in what they

"We've got a good team of people looking after the cows, being observant and picking up on problems early.

On the farm Mr Bruhn uses a 60 stand rotary dairy and milks the herd twice daily.

"Our dairy is fitted with electronic flow metres that help us monitor the cows production and alert any issues," he said.

Mr Bruhn thought weather conditions had a big part to play in why the region was so well represented in the awards.

"From our point of view the weather conditions suit," he said.

"We don't have really wet winters and it doesn't get overly boggy and muddy on our farm which always helps control mastitis and other things.'

BEST IN THE STATE: Tim Bruhn and Amanda Giles who farm 320 Holsteins in Kongorong were among six farmers from the region recognised in the Dairy Australia's 2023 Milk Quality Awards.

Ben and Ange Tweddle in Glencoe, Edmonds Transport Pty Ltd in Naracoorte, and Mundoolun Dairying Pty Ltd in Mount Schank were among six South Australian dairies to win a silver diamond.

The milk was judged on the Bulk Milk Cell Count (BMCC) and the 100 farmers with the lowest BBMC were awarded gold.

Dairy Australia's national lead for animal health and fertility Zoe Vogels said the awards showed a commitment to support decision making on farm when it comes to maintaining the health of dairy herds.

"Achieving good milk quality is a winwin for farmers, processors, retailers and the community," she said.

"The whole dairy industry benefits from high quality milk.

SCHOOLS from across the Limestone Coast travelled to Mount Gambier/Berrin last week to compete in the annual steer competition.

Hosted as part of the annual Mount Gambier Agricultural and Horticultural Show, schools from across the region showed off the best of the best of steer.

Grant High School student Jackson Bald took the top spot in the Steer or Heifer on Jackson received the champion ribbon for his mammoth steer and said there were a lot of different aspects which went into preparing for a competition.

"We have to make sure his weight is pretty good for the certain class and that takes a lot of time," Jackson said.

He said overall the steer was good, calm and collected.

"He is not very frightened when people come up and touch him which is good," Jackson said.

"I am chuffed with the win because it all really depends, I have never been amazing at showing and leading but there is always room to improve.' Overall with the Championships, judge

Periwinkles among the best

Periwinkles were recognised for their respected service in the categories of Cafe Dining - Regional and Breakfast Restaurant - Re-

Periwinkles owner Mel Lewis, who had only recently been passed the torch by previous owners Grant and Emma Fensom, said she was "very proud" of the venue's performance and its team.

Ms Lewis had previously held a manager role at Periwinkles since January of this year, before being handed the responsibility of an owner after her return to the hospitality indus-

SAFETY FIRST: The Mount Gambier Regional Airport has implemented a new safety contact

Safety goes national

tyler.redway@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Mount Gambier Regional Airport has been instrumental in the creation of a firstof-its- kind safety contact card system.

The system - which allows airport staff to keep better track of issues reported by visiting pilots - has been approved by the Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA).

The brainchild of Mount Gambier Airport reporting officer Bob Rowe, the cards will be displayed in the front window of the plane and show staff the name of the visiting pilot and their phone number so they can be contacted.

Mr Rowe said the Mount Gambier Airport is seeing more activity, which brings with it more issues. "They are only little issues which could be remedied very quickly if we could just phone the pilot directly, because a lot of times when we look up the owner of the plane, it refers us back to an aeroclub or bank, if it's under finance.

"It makes the process so drawn out if we have to go down other avenues of finding phone numbers."

Mr Rowe said some of the issues included overflowing fuel tanks, lost belongings on the airstrip and even bees making hives on the undercarriage of aircraft.

'We are trying to make Mount Gambier a really friendly airport, it is sort of the gateway to the Limestone Coast so if people fly into the Mount Gambier Airport and have a great experience then I just think it helps out visitors," he said.

"We keep having a little joke with each other because every couple of days, a scenario plays out where we say a contact card like this would very much come in handy."

Now the idea has gone national, with other airports expected to implement the system and further plans for the project's expansion in the works.

"We try and make every effort to meet every visiting pilot so we can point them in the direction of hire cars and places to stay in the local area and to make sure they don't need any help with plane parking or fuel issues for example," Mr Rowe said.

"We expect other licensed airports across Australia will adopt this, but in a few months time we are also looking at putting it in the pilots notes in the official CASA document which pilots look up when looking for specific info on particular airports."

Returning Gift to keep giving

sophie.conlon@tbwtoday.com.au

MOUNT Gambier Gift Carnival organisers are looking forward to the athletic event returning to the city in November with increased funding from the City of Mount Gambier.

South Australian Athletic League president Kym Steer addressed councillors at the October meeting and said the event would stand strong, no matter what they decided.

"We are some $5000 to $10,000 short to run a high end carnival in Mount Gambier," he said.

"I say that, not because we can't run it, we will at the current level, but we want to secure it as a meeting that we can attract Victorians to especially and build it up a level.

"At the moment we are at a relatively small

Previously the event received $5000 plus $2000 in kind support from council and it was decided that up to $5000 in additional funding would be allocated, depending on further event sponsorships.

Speaking to SA Today, Mr Steer said the league was rapt that the council was putting extra support into the carnival.

"Our whole goal for this year was to build the Gift up to where it was many decades ago and make it one of the better gifts in both South Australia and Victoria," he said.

So that extra money for this year will get us on that pathway and start to build credibility for us with not only the South Australian athletes who will be motivated to come down, but also the Victorian athletes."

Mr Steer said it was looking like this year the Gift would be a great event which would help them build up to events of years gone by.

"Our goal is eventually to have it as the second best gift in South Australia, behind the Bay Sheffield, and part of that is extra dollars and building the athletes from South Australia and Vitoria to come over for it.

He said the extra funding from council would go towards event marketing, including a live stream set up.

THANKFUL: South Australian Athletic League president Kym Steer was thankful to the City of Mount Gambier for their support.

"We wanted to build a live stream of the event to build that profile," he said.

"A lot of council's money goes to promotion of the event, the marketing, the social media and the livestream.

With a live stream, Mr Steer said they would be able to draw more people to Mount Gambier/ Berrin for future events.

Young council's 'amazing' event success

WATTLE Range Council's up and coming young leaders have worked together to put on the first event hosted by the Youth Advisory Council (YAC).

In March this year, a group of eleven young people formed the Wattle Range Youth Advisory Council.

The group have worked diligently over the year to share ideas with each other and form a strategic plan they will present to the Wattle Range Council (WRC).

Saturday night the group held their first youth function and after initially receiving low ticket sales they were delighted to see a last minute rush resulting in 75 tickets sold.

Nearly all attendees dressed in costume for the Halloween themed evening.

The Millicent High School band provided the musical entertainment along with DJ Alex from Noorla Yo-Long.

IT has been 25 years since the first Geltwood Festival was held in Millicent and on Friday night the 2023 festival was officially launched at Millicent Gallery by Wattle Range Council mayor Des Noll.

The first festival was the brainchild of Cheryl Chambers who owned a quilting supplies store, Bankhouse Quilts, at the time.

Ms Chambers recalled talking to renowned Adelaide quilter Lessa Siegele who had travelled to America and discussed the hanging of quilts in small towns to attract people.

"I thought Millicent needs something to bring in a crowd of people and decided why can't we do that here" she said.

From that idea the Geltwood Festival was born and Bankhouse Quilts became the focus of workshops and events and quilts adorned shop windows and balconies along George

Although Ms Chambers has not been involved with the festival for some time she said it was "great to see it continuing."

"It's really good, they are still getting great exhibitions like this one by Jennie Matthews, and so many younger people are now getting involved."

This year's gallery exhibition is a retrospective by textile artist Jennie Matthews, alongside a selection of locally made quilts.

Over 30 works were selected by the artist for the exhibition which spans decades of her

Complementing this year's exhibition is the work of local women who undertook the Rachelle Denneny and Katherine Ford workshops at last year's Geltwood Festival.

The festival weekend was packed with ac-

MILLICENT'S Geltwood Festival weekend offered a range of activities for the community to be involved in.

Inclement weather caused the cancellation of Saturday's twilight event planned for the parklands but other activities were unaffected.

Quilting and painting workshops took place, the Saturday morning market was well attended and around 80 people attended the official Geltwood festival opening on Friday night.

Chloe Stupple was the lucky winner of the lolly jar at Saturday's market after her guess of 380 lollies was only two away from the total in the jar.

Inclement weather and the cancellation of the Geltwood Twilight Market led the Millicent Gymnastics Club to set up their stall in front of Woolworths supermarket. Assisting with the sausage sizzle and sales of baked goods is Michelle Galli, Tammy Reilly, Cedar and Bonnie Ferguson, Fiona McDonald and Sally and Jamieson Bateman.

Kathy Patten and Jill Baker with their quilts completed at last year's Rachelle Denneny workshop and currently on display at the Millicent Gallery.

Hatty O'Meara Martin welcomed guests to Ants Redgum Gallery for afternoon tea and the launch of the Millicent Met Wearable Art exhibition.

Focussed on adding oil pastel details to their blue wren paintings are Barbara Travers, Judi DePamphilis and Chris Hall.

AN off-duty sergeant who displayed unwanted physical conduct towards another employee is among four complaints revealed after South Australia Police made reporting of staff misconduct public.

The complaints, recorded between January 1 and March 31 this year, have been made publicly available in an effort to "increase transparency and strengthen public trust and confidence in the disciplinary system".

Previously, SAPOL published employee disciplinary outcomes in the South Australia Police Gazette, which was not readily accessible to the public.

It is hoped the increased transparency will provide extra deterrence for police staff from doing the wrong thing.

The purpose of these publications is to inform and educate SAPOL employees on issues relating to disciplinary outcomes including sanctions imposed," a police spokesperson

"The community gives us the authority to

Along with the sergeant, who was reprimanded and fined $1000, three complaints were lodged against senior constables.

One was fined $600 and received one recorded reprimand and one unrecorded reprimand for failing to correctly submit reports.

Another was fined $600 and reprimanded for contacting and verbally abusing another employee while subject to an internal investi-

All the disciplinary actions arose from hearings in the Police Disciplinary Tribunal.

Fresher fruit and vegetables on way to SA

SOUTH Australian shoppers may not realise it but the fruit and veg they buy at the grocer is often better travelled than they are.

Because of a lack of adequate post-harvest processing facilities, produce grown in SA has to first travel to Victoria or Queensland for treatment before it can be sold in its state

"This hub is going to open up more export markets for us and that provides huge opportunity for the industry as a whole," he told reporters on Friday.

"It's a win for us, a win for our consumers, a win for our customers and a win for South Australian produce," Mr Ceravolo said.

SA growers have had their ability to export produce repeatedly impacted by fruit fly outbreaks, including a long-running Queensland fruit fly outbreak still affecting the Riverland region.

Currently, produce from the Riverland cannot be sent to other parts of SA, Tasmania or Western Australia where the fruit fly is not present unless it is treated.

Around $300 million of production is lost every year as a result of the outbreak.

MORE than $256,000 has been donated to two community projects in Keith, which will both see playground improvements in the area.

The money was donated by Variety South Australia, with funds raised by entrants in their 2023 Aussie Muscle Car Run.

On behalf of Variety SA chief executive Mark McGill and the Aussie Muscle Car Run chair Brenton Ramsey, official Mario Romaldi presented two cheques to the Keith community when the run passed through Keith on its first

The first grant of $200,000 was donated to the Keith War Memorial Community Centre, to help in the redevelopment of Don Mosley

Mr Romaldi said Variety partnered with the centre in September to help bring the project to life.

"They've had a vision to create a modern, interactive area that inspires and encourages children of all abilities and ages to play harmoniously together, as well as the locals who will utilise the area and many travellers who choose to stop, rest and refresh," he said.

Memorial centre junior chair Sarah Secker accepted the donation and said it was an honour to do so in front of the people who had helped raise the funds.

"Without question Variety is the most recognisable children's charity in Australia and perhaps the world, to us it's a badge of honour and confirmation that we're on the right track working on a project that will benefit so many," she said.

Ms Secker said the donation completed 50

"It's just a massive credit to the community, it's volunteering at its best," she said.

"Having Varieties brand associated to our playground is the biggest stamp of approval you could ever ask for or with an all ability playground."

The Keith War Memorial Kindergarten received $56,032 to put towards building a nature play space on the grounds.

Parent Brooke Packham accepted the donation and said made up a significant majority of the project funding and would allow it to get off the ground.

"What's really exciting about this is that it's for all ages and abilities," she said.

"It reflects the centre's values of learning and development through persistence and per cent of their co-contribution to allow the risk taking and collaboration, so we're very excited."

> Ms Packham said everyone in the community and at the centre was thankful to Variety.

> "We're so grateful to Variety the children's charity and the drivers and crews of the Aussie Muscle Car Run," she said.

> "We're a small town and our childcare centre is very much at the heart of it, so we're honoured and grateful for their very generous donation.'

THE Show Book is available for download from the Millicent Show website.

Since its inception in 1876, the Millicent Show has been a drawcard for locals and visitors from far and wide, and it was the first three-day Show outside of Adelaide, and we are one of the few Societies who own our own grounds.

Where once farmers travelled for hours by horse and cart, and then by train, we now attract competitors and exhibitors from all over Australia, including some who 'fly-in, and fly-out' from our adjacent airstrip.

Many of the traditional categories remain, spanning three centuries; some have been adapted to reflect modern-day farming methods, and new categories added to reflect technological advances and changing interests in the community.

Entertainment, side-shows and food also form a large part of attractions, and the Friday evening fireworks display continues to win awards.

It's spooky to be safe

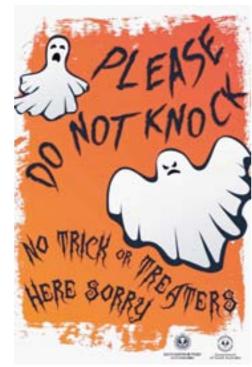

SOUTH Australia Police (SAPOL) has worked its magic to brew safety tips and special posters this Halloween for parents and caregivers to share with their little monsters before wandering neighbourhoods.

While ghouls just want to have fun, not everyone shares the Halloween spirit, with SAPOL resources available to help lure or deter next Tuesday's trick or treaters.

Posters are available from SAPOLs website and residents may display these on their door or letterbox, indicating whether they welcome such visitors, or do not wish to be disturbed.

To ensure a safe night that won't haunt you with nightmares, SAPOL encourages families to consider a few safety tips before venturing out for some skele-fun.

- · Children trick or treating should be accompanied by a trusted and responsible person, and travelling in smaller groups is encour-
- Be respectful of other members of the community as not everyone celebrates Halloween. Some people will be genuinely concerned or fearful of any doorknockers. If you are aware of someone like that, make sure your children know not to bother them.
- · Sometimes it's hard for motorists to see trick or treaters clearly, particularly when wearing a costume. Be sure to obey road traffic rules and use proper road crossings if available.
- Make sure you take extra care and look out for any approaching or reversing cars when walking or flying across driveways with your broomsticks (skateboards/ scooters/bikes).
- Only accept sweet treats that are wrapped. Accepting treats from neighbours/known addresses is also encouraged.
- For adults, if you're attending a party and planning on having a few drinks leave your broomstick at home and organise alternative transport (taxi, rideshare, public trans-

Serle excited for airport collaboration future

tyler.redway@tbwtoday.com.au

MOUNT Gambier Regional Airport manager Nick Serle spoke with SA Today recently to express his views on the recently announced collaboration with Grant District Council and Glenelg Shire for both the Mount Gambier and Portland airports.

Mr Serle said the collaboration would help to cover roles which required experience for both locations.

"Given the airport reporting officers have rather specific roles involving the understanding of the Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA) and home security and airport security regulations," Mr Serle said.

"You can't just put someone who doesn't have that training and knowledge in so given it is such a specific field if there is illness or absences for any other reasons in both councils, then what this allows us to do is move people back and forth between the two air-

Mr Serle said the new partnership also allowed both airports to adapt ideas from each other from areas which one location may be more efficient in than the other.

"A good example of that is how Glenelg Shire Council has been using some software to manage and log all of their inspections and all of the activities they take on a day-today basis in running the airport," he said.

"The Mount Gambier Regional Airport has purchased the same software and is using it, so it is an excellent way of keeping all of those logs rather than a paper-based way of doing it.

"That was one example of us seeing what the Portland Airport was doing more efficiently than us, so we have taken that idea on

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE: Mount Gambier Regional Airport manager Nick Serle said the new airport collaboration between Portland and Mount Gambier was an excellent way to create more efficient workplaces and a better understanding on how to improve both frameworks.

Mr Serle said the collaboration was permanent and no major issues had been re-

He added the reason behind the collaboration's creation was to also make a better system for keeping track of risks and potential issues in the airports.

Mr Serle said both the councils and himself were keen to encourage other regions and councils to potentially join the collaboration and share their ideas.

He also said the collaboration could be a way to help boost visitor numbers for both

"There are bound to be many more things which we are doing that they look at and say it is a good idea then replicate it, similar to us with Portland," Mr Serle said.

"As we have staff go back and forth to help in each of the airports, I'm sure we will find more of those kinds of ideas.

"Exposure to another airport and how they do things means it's inevitable we will come across new ideas and learn about things we haven't thought of which we can put in place here.

"We certainly hope it will, both airports are keen to increase our passenger numbers and our light aircraft traffic, it's good for the region, area and the airport.'

The Black Edition seven-seater - the test vehicle - settles in the middle of the mob at $42,990.

The MY24 Outlander is covered by a fiveyear, 100,000-kilometre warranty that can be extended to 10 years and 200,000 kilometres if serviced within Mitsubishi's dealer network using its capped-price service program.

All vehicles are sold with 12 months of roadside assist, which can be extended for up to four years when the vehicle is serviced at an authorised Mitsubishi dealer.

'Black' is the byword here, with a black grille, black-finish door mirrors and lower bumper treatments, B- and C-pillar garnishes, and 20inch black alloy wheels.

The bold front, flared fenders and an aerodynamic rear spoiler combine to come up with a sporty stance, as well as adding to improved performance over its predecessor.

Automatic LED headlamps are newly added. Paint options are limited to Prestige Black, Prestige White, Prestige Red, and a new metallic Graphite Grey.

Inside, one thing dominates - you guessed it

There's a black headliner and pillar trims, plus Mi-Suede seat upholstery with synthetic leather bolsters.

While the Black Edition, like others in Outlander range, boasts three rows of seats capable of taking up to seven 'bodies' Mitsubishi eschews the term 'seven-seater' for the more realistic '5+2' definition.

The rear seats are comfortable only for carrying a couple of kids, or for anyone else, on short journeys.

All seats can recline for added comfort, while the slide adjustable 40:20:40 split second row and 50:50 split rear third row can fold fully forward to create a multitude of versatile passenger and cargo configurations.

Seven-seat petrol models have a space saver spare wheel, and a claimed 163 litres with all three rows of seats upright.

While the 2.5-litre motor doesn't set the world spin the front-wheel drive system on gravel, especially when an incline is involved.

However, the Outlander took lumpy going in its stride.

Overtaking on bitumen needs some decisive work from the driver but engine and wind noise are all but absent, except when the engine is pushed.

Steering, while responsive, is on the weighty side but, generally, the Outlander stays firmly to the road, even on swiftly taken bends.

The whole driving experience is without fuss, which means it's short on fun too.

Occupants were far from complaining, even in stop/start city traffic.

Fuel consumption is claimed at 7.7 litres per 100km combined, with CO2 emissions of 185g per kilometre. The test vehicle recorded 10.5 litres per 100 kilometres in city and suburbs, and 5 litres per 100 kilometres at motorway speeds.

Braked towing capacity across the range is 1600 kg, with unbraked towing at 750kg.

Without trying out more members of the MY24 Outlander line-up, the standalone Black Edition has a lot going for it.

Seven seats make for a rare shot at versatility despite the children's high-chair pair out back. Pricing and warranty are a bonus.

Dogs showed off their talents on the course

A barkin' good time for club

HASTINGS Cunningham Reserve was a hive of activity on the weekend when the Blue Lake Obedience Dog Club again hosted its annual Obedience, Agility and Rally October Trial.

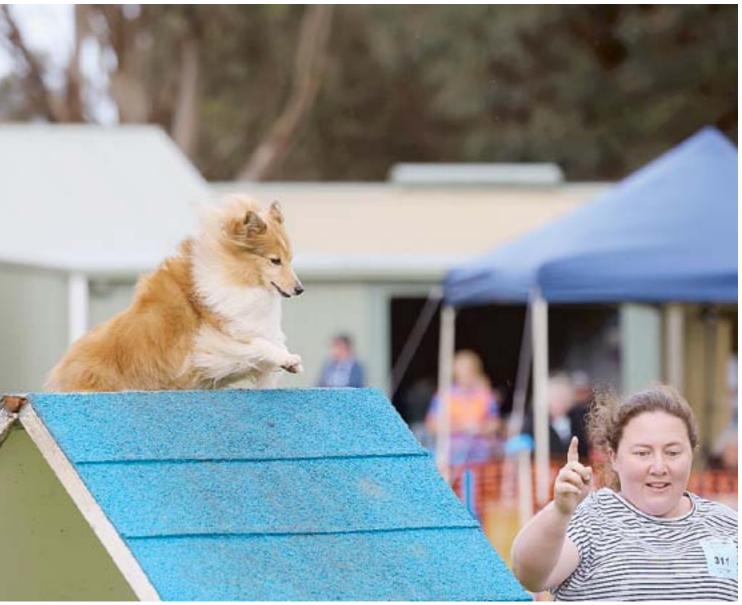

Held over a full day Saturday and half a day Sunday the event saw over 450 competitors from large parts of South Australia and Victoria putting themselves and their dogs through their paces over several categories, from novice to masters.

Unlike some sporting events dog trials are held in whatever conditions mother nature dishes up and the weekend really dished it up, just the opposite to what would have been preferred.

Trial Manager Diane O'Leary and the club's other volunteer started planning immediately following the clubs' Easter Trial and the event ran smoothly with lots of positive feedback from competitors even given the wet and windy conditions.

In this vibrant voyage taking in the centuries-old spice regions of the world, the Absolutely Fabulous star emanates a warmth and enthusiasm that really does spice up every scene. Across four episodes, premiering tonight, the riches of the world's spice history, from Indonesia and Zanzibar, to India and Madagascar, is explored. In her "most epic voyage yet", Lumley's first stop is Indonesia's Banda Islands, once the only place in the world that the coveted nutmeg grew. With pepper, vanilla and cinnamon informing Lumley's upcoming destinations, it's an educational feast.

MY MUM YOUR DAD

Nine, Tuesday, 7.30pm

It's a battle between cringe-worthy and heartwarming in this reality TV dating show which gleefully overturns the traditional parentand-child dynamic. Kate Langbroek (pictured, right) is a witty and compassionate host as she navigates tense emotions (and lots of oversharing) when helping single parents trying to find love. Back for a second season, there is obviously an audience that can handle the sheer weirdness of kids directing their parents' love lives. This awkward situation is doubled down by the fact that this time, the parents know their kids are watching their romantic moves and pulling the strings.

MEET THE NEIGHBOURS

SBS, Wednesday, 7.30pm

While other networks peddle glamorous reality TV shows about finding love or getting a makeover, SBS continues to push boundaries by shining a light on societal issues with bold and reflective content. Backed by The Welcome to Central Goldfields pilot project, AMES Australia and the local community, and hosted by the lovable Myf Warhurst (pictured), this engrossing three-part series follows eight diverse households' move to small-town Maryborough, Victoria. Like many Aussie regional towns, Maryborough is ageing, with a severe skills shortage, but these city-dwellers are ready to join and reinvigorate the community in this three-month-long social experiment.

Coonalpyn's show success

Coonalpyn and Districts A & H Society Inc

A happy crowd of more than 600 people attended the recent Coonalpyn and Districts Agricultural and Horticultural Show on October 21.

While the weather was cool and windy, those that were there enjoyed their day with a wonderful atmosphere among attendees.

Coonalpyn always welcomes patrons from far and wide, and tripled its population for the day once again!

We were well supported with entries and many positive comments and compliments on the quality of entries and how each section was presented.

Channel Nine sports presenter and of Hello SA host Tom Rehn opened the show and was very impressed with all that the show offered and took great interest in all aspects of the day.

He was keen to come back again next year with his family.

There was a lot of interest in the Politicians Challenge with Member for Mackillop Nick McBride taking on the Coorong Councillors.

Much fun was had not just amongst the entrants but also those watching the public judg-

We thank Mr McBride and the councillors for their support.

Circus Elements provided roving entertainment with stilt walking and a unicycle policeman throughout the day accosting many patrons and providing lots of laughs.

The popular Discovery Trail provided younger patrons with fun and goodies as they visited 14 generous traders around the grounds, including free face painting or glitter

Stockman's Challenge events took place throughout the day with some great horsemanship displayed to onlookers and as always, yummy food was available from our food, cofconfectionery vendors.

. The Interactive pavilion was a great place to stop and shop for individualised items, natural foods and a Bowen treatment!

The Junior Ambassador Quest was judged this year by 2023 SCSA Rural Ambassador Lachy Johnson, Southern Young Rural Ambassador Nathan Lush and Leslie Gemmell.

Congratulations to the 11 young people who entered the quest and to the winners:

Little Ambassador Alfie Doecke, and runner up Sam Obst.

Mini Ambassador Sabaai Lund and runner

Intermediate Ambassador Ruby Broeckelmann and runner up Lincoln Jeffery.

Teen Ambassador Esther Neumann and runner up Allana Wigzell.

Many of these entrants had exhibits in the main pavilion and all are an important and integral part of our show.

We thank them and their parents for their valued support.

In the main pavilion, which was colourful and bright, exhibitors brought over 1050 entries to display for judging.

An extra 165 entries in the horses, poultry, wool and grain provided even more to see.

The Biggest Weed - a hotly contested class in the grain and fodder section was won by Leo Miegel with a huge horehound.

Best presented Indoor Section was won by Section J: Cookery, with a tasty display of 80 cakes, plus the Politician's Challenge entries, with 4 entries in Carrot Cake.

After the open judging, patrons were happy to enjoy tasting the cakes.

Pancake Tacos

Prep time: 20 minutes Cook time: 30 minutes Makes: 12 pancake tacos Difficulty: Easy

Occasions: Pancake Tuesday, Easter, Father's Day, Mother's Day, Valentine's Day, Christmas morning, New Years Day

Ingredients:

Caramelised Fruit Filling

- 40g butter
- 2 tbsp brown sugar
- 1/4 cup maple syrup
- 1/4 fresh pineapple, peeled, cored and diced

(approx. 2cm)

- 125g blueberries
- 250g small strawberries, hulled and halved
- 2 small bananas, sliced thickly

Pancake Taco

- 1 ½ cups plain flour
- 1 tbsp baking powder
- 2 tbsp caster sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 50g unsalted butter, melted
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract (optional)
- Whipped cream or mascarpone to serve

Method: Fruit Filling

1. Heat butter, sugar and maple syrup together in a frying pan over medium heat until bubbling and hot. Stir in pineapple and cook 3-4 minutes or until just softening. Add blueberries, strawberries and banana and continue cooking, stirring until warmed through and just slightly softened. Transfer to a bowl to cool.

Pancake Taco

- 1. Mix the flour, baking powder and sugar together in a large mixing bowl.
- 2. Whisk eggs, milk, butter and vanilla until well combined. Make a well in the centre of the dry ingredients and whisk in milk mixture to make a smooth batter.
- 3. Heat a large, lightly greased non-stick frying pan over medium heat. Working in batches of 2-3, pour shallow ¼ cups of batter into the pan. Not too close together so they have plenty of room to spread and have a round shape. Cook pancakes for 1-2 minutes, until bubbles break on the surface and underside is golden brown. Flip over and cook for 1 minute. Wrap cooked pancakes in a clean tea towel so they remain warm and pliable.

4. To serve, fold one pancake into a taco shape and spoon in fruit. Top with a dollop of cream. Prop up the 'taco' using 2 glasses on each side to keep its shape. Repeat with remaining pancakes, using the tacos to support each other. Serve immediately drizzled with any extra sauce.

TIPS:

- Use fruit in season or frozen berries available in your supermarket freezer.
- Pancakes can be made 2 days in advance. Warm gently before serving.

Your year ahead

Saturn's planetary acceleration in Pisces, sign of intuitive intelligence, eases this week into November's eclipse season: the time for allowing outgrown goals, relationships or ways of life to eclipse themselves in order for newer, more relevant alternatives to find their way into the light...

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr 20)

Keep your antennae tuned for guidance from November's deluge of serendipities, synchronicities and coincidences. Aries is one of the fastest signs in the zodiac to connect the dots, and this month could see you accelerating and swerving in swift succession

according to directives from the universe. Best day:

Sunday 29 October

TAURUS (Apr 21 - May 20)

What can November's focus in your opposite sign on the astro-wheel teach you? About subtlety, layers and nuance. That the world is not logical, sensible, straightforward, cut and dried. And what can you offer? Your grounded practicality and calm to help others weather this month's storms and alarms.

Best day: Sunday 29 October

GEMINI (May 21 - Jun 21)

Looks like your mentor planet, Mercury, might drop a few truth bombs during the next couple of weeks. So if exchanges get uncomfortably candid, don't underestimate the effectiveness of a well-timed joke or witty comeback (both Gemini super-skills), or the power of laughter to defuse a charged situation. Best day:

Tuesday 31 October

CANCER (Jun 22 - Jul 22)

Watch what you download or post on socials this week, and if you need to retreat to your personal safe space, do, because with Mars in his pushiest placement, scamsters are ascendant. If you're feeling pressured, pause, investigate further and talk things through with someone you trust.

Best day: Thursday 2 November

LEO (Jul 23 - Aug 23)

November's dramatics are less the extrovert Leo kind, more brewing and stewing, volatile and eruptive, making it important to keep your cool. This week's volcanic energies in a fixed sign like your own are known to intensify Leo's stubborn side, so try to stay flexible rather than digging in your heels.

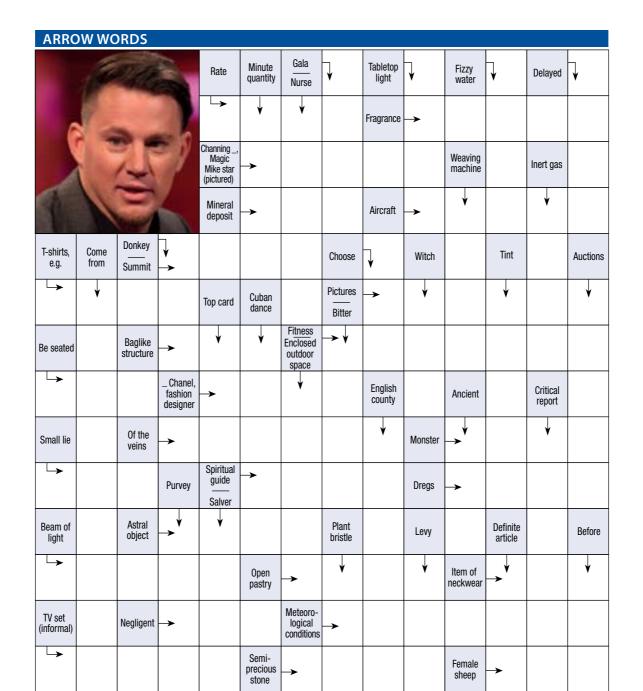

Best day: Friday 3 November

LIBRA (Sep 23 - Oct 23)

As the zodiac's cardinal air sign, Librans like to keep communications light so ideas can take flight. But current astral energies are intense, and uninterested in small talk. Which makes your November challenge to gracefully navigate human behaviour in all its divine and disappointing, delightful and unsavoury array.

Best day: Wednesday 1 November

VIRGO (Aug 24 - Sep 22)

As the scouts of the zodiac, Virgos like to be prepared. And Venus in your savvy sign for the first week of November assists in getting an early head start on holiday planning, with everything ideally locked in before astral travel agent Mercury goes AWOL next month for the rest of 2023.

Best day: Monday 30 October

Oct 24 New 22

(Oct 24 - Nov 22)
The sultry Sun, expressive
Mercury and magnetic

Mercury and magnetic Mars, all working the law of attraction in Scorpio, have November drawing even more moths than usual to your seductive flame.
Though with impetuous
Mercury and impulsive Mars riding tandem in your incisive sign, employing the sting could cause serious fallout.
Best day:

Saturday 4 November

(Nov 23 - Dec 21)

Enjoy November's colourful stories by all means, but don't get sucked in by hype or groupthink. Look under the hood and dig for the deeper storyline, but also be extra careful about respecting peoples' privacy. Hidden agendas are quite likely to surface, along with other unexpected information.

Best day:
Tuesday 31 October

CAPRICORN

(Dec 22 - Jan 20)

Since June, your planet ruler Saturn has been in reassessment mode: a period of deep self-examination. Fun, not so much, but growth and maturity, plenty. Now, as Saturn moves forward, you're readier than ever to offer your service and gifts to the world in an exciting new way.

Best day: Monday 30 October

AQUARIUS

(Jan 21 - Feb 1

November offers excellent cosmic conditions for researching, editing and/or crafting behind the scenes. For being watchful, strategic and paying attention to subtle cues, which this week can speak volumes. Would the current circumstances benefit from readjusting what you believe about a certain situation?

Best day: Wednesday 1 November

PISCES

(Feb 19 - Mar 20)

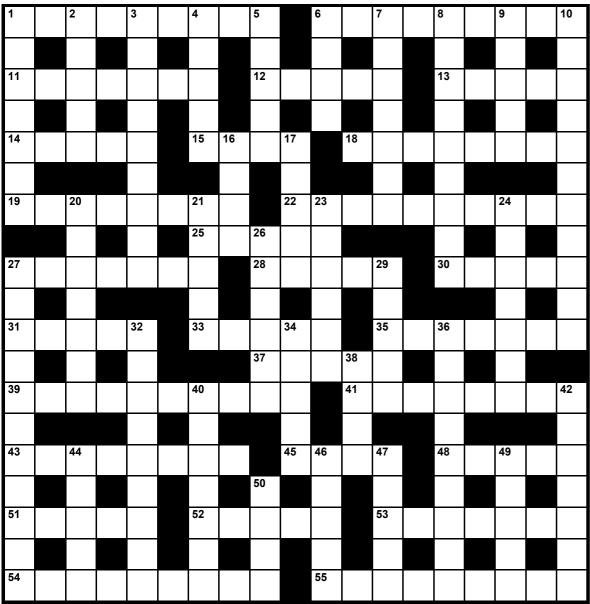

Neptune represents the cosmic ocean of creative imagination, while Saturn ushers this potential into tangible form. Both planets are transiting Pisces, and Saturn turning direct brings opportunities to activate that dream of starting an artistic project, opening your own business or going adventure travelling.

Fighting the fire ant

THE Federal Government is renewing its fight against red imported fire ants, approving an unprecedented investment to extend the National Fire Ant Eradication Program.

Treasurer Jim Chalmers and Agriculture Minister Murray Watt recently announced an additional Federal investment of $268 million to the National Fire Ant Eradication Program over the next four years, to intensify activities to control and contain this significant pest.

The announcement builds on the $411 million in joint state and federal funding already provided in the past six years.

Australia's new response plan addresses recommendations of the recent Strategic Program Review and builds on more than two decades of learnings the National Program has developed while delivering the world's most successful fire ant eradication program.

The new funding will expand the program to include 350 new workers, a new depot, new vehicles, new aerial eradication contracts and an additional 1400 tonnes of bait each year.

It will support the program operations, doubling the size of the treatment and surveil-lance area—including high-density residential areas

Fire ants are an aggressive and invasive ant that swarm and inflict painful stings on people, pets and livestock.

They can destroy crops and damage electrical utilities including air conditioners, streetlights and telecommunications networks.

Funding welcome

The National Farmers' Federation (NFF) welcomed the Minister for Agriculture Murray Watt's $268 million commitment for the National Fire Ant Eradication Program.

NFF chief executive Tony Mahar said the funding was a critical investment to increase activities to stop the spread and eradicate Red Imported Fire Ants in Australia.

"It cannot be understated how much damage fire ants pose to Australian agriculture, Australia's environment and society at large," Mr Mahar said.

"Experts have told us with the right investment eradication is still possible, so I applaud the Federal Government's investment for this stage of the response."

Attention now turns to ensuring all states and territories commit their share of the required funding.

"The agricultural sector is looking to other jurisdictions who have yet to commit to their share of funding for eradication to do so immediately.

"The National Red Imported Fire Ant Eradication Program Strategic Review outlined the funding required to eradicate the pest and it is imperative everyone commits to delivering what is required.

"Nonetheless yesterday's announcement marks an important step towards safeguarding the nation's agriculture, environment, and community wellbeing from this devastating invasive species."

Inquiry welcome

NFF CHIEF EXECUTIVE, TONY MAHAR

THE National Farmers' Federation welcomes news parliament has agreed to a Senate Inquiry into Red Fire Ants and Varroa mite.

It cannot be understated how much damage these two major threats pose to Australian agriculture, Australia's environment and society at large.

The inquiry will examine what the cost and impacts would be if Red Fire Ants spread across Australia, including what that means for agriculture, the environment and humans, as well as current response plans and funding.

The NFF and its members have been actively communicating the threat this pest poses to governments at all levels, and we are hopeful this inquiry will support this. Appropriate funding must be delivered to ensure response plans can eradicate this pest before it spreads further.

The inquiry will also consider learnings from the Varroa mite incursion. While this is still very much a live situation facing the sector, we hope an examination of the events over the past 18 months will assist with current and future actions.

Varroa mite has already caused significant damage to the beekeeping industry, destroying livelihoods and limiting agricultural production. It's a pest that has fundamentally changed the beekeeping industry wherever it has become endemic overseas.

Beyond the beekeeping industry, those that rely on pollination services, such as horticulture, cropping and pasture-reliant industries, face major challenges. The costs of this pest could run into the many billions.

Varroa represents yet another example of where farmers shoulder the impacts when it comes to these introduced pests and diseases, impacting their businesses and the amount of food and fibre they can produce.

Australia is facing an unprecedented onslaught of biosecurity threats and we thank Senator Matt Canavan for his motion to create this Inquiry.

INQUIRY: National Farmers Federation chief executive Tony Mahar has welcomed the inquiry.

More mangoes bound for Japan

JAPANESE restaurants and retailers are getting ready to say "IRASSHAIMASE!" to more Aussie mangoes, as the Federal Government delivers trade outcomes for the agricultural sector.

Australia's mango industry will gain expanded market access following the removal of varietal restrictions on Australian mango exports to Japan.

Previously only five types of mango were permitted to be exported to Japan, but now all types grown in Australia will be available for export.

This exciting opportunity has perfectly aligned with the upcoming mango season, meaning Australian mango farmers and exporters will see immediate benefits.

Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, Murray Watt said this achievement is a result of the Federal Government's dedication and commitment to expanding market access and trade opportunities for Australian fresh produce.

"Aussie mangoes are juicy, delicious and desired the world over," Minister Watt said.

"Japan is a priority market for Australian

"Japan is a priority market for Australian horticulture offering growth potential and premium price points, aligning perfectly with our vision for the future of Australian agriculture.

"But the significance of this achievement extends beyond mangoes alone.

"The removal of varietal restrictions makes way for changes for other commodities, potentially paving the way for further market access expansions and strengthening the Australian horticultural sector.

"This is just another way we are looking to continue growing the export pie for our

BIG MARKET: Australian Agriculture Minister Murray Watt said Japan is a priority market for Australian horticulture.

Report finds stocks not overfished

THE annual assessment of Commonwealth fish stocks from the Australian Bureau of Agricultural and Resource Economics and Sciences (ABARES) has found that the majority of stocks assessed were both not overfished and not subject to overfishing.

The ABARES Fishery status reports 2023 provides an annual, independent assessment of the biological and economic status of Commonwealth managed fisheries.

ABARES executive director Dr Jared Greenville said the report indicated that overall Commonwealth fisheries continue to be well-managed, although there were some causes for concern.

"Of the 102 stocks assessed, 67 were classified as not overfished and 75 were classified as not subject to overfishing," Dr Greenville said.

"However, there were a number of status changes this year. The reports include 12 changes in stock status compared to last year.

"Overall, there are more stocks with uncertain status and a small increase in the number of stocks assessed as overfished or subject to overfishing."

The report highlights several emerging pressures on sustainable fisheries management including monitoring and responding to the current and future impacts of climate change and a decline in the quality and quantity of data to undertake stock assessments.

"This shows us the importance of regularly monitoring fish stocks, so management can be adaptive when circumstances change, and the need to improve data collection," Dr Greenville said.

"That said, the management systems for Commonwealth fisheries are well established. We're in a good position to tackle these challenges and shore up long-term sustainability for our fish stocks."

Time to rally around farmers

"GROW you good thing!" is the catch cry for this year's National Agriculture Day – or #Ag-DayAU – as the National Farmers' Federation (NFF) rallies all Australians to get behind our farmers on Friday 17 November.

NFF president Fiona Simson said the annual shout out to farmers and the incredible food and fibre they grow could not come at a better time.

"We have an El Nino on our hands and some farmers are facing a very poor outlook for the season ahead," Ms Simson said.

"That being said, Aussie farmers work hard to make sure the impact of dry times is barely felt at dinner tables.

"Our farmers are the best in the business. A huge amount of planning and careful management goes into make sure food and fibre still gets grown despite difficult times."

How to celebrate AgDay

The NFF encourages people to hold an event in their community or workplace to receive a complimentary event kit loaded with AgDay goodies. All you need to do is register your event, choosing whether you want to make it public or private, at agday.org.au – and make sure you tag us on social media on the day by using #AgDayAU.

"It's always wonderful to see communities coming together on AgDay to celebrate Aussie farming. It doesn't matter where you live, that connection to farming is such an important part of our identity as Australians," Ms Simson said.

A QUICK DIP: David Williams took out first place with this image, titled Dog in the Water Trough, in the last photo contest.

New merchandise

The NFF has given the iconic "I Love Farmers" merchandise a fresh new look. There's also plenty of merch in the store featuring this year's theme

For the first time, the NFF has introduced cattle tags and bucket hats to the range, which also includes t-shirts, trucker caps, stickers and tote bags. Shop the range at agday.org.au

Entries are now open for the coveted photo and video competition with a prize pool of $5000 up for grabs thanks to sponsors Syngenta.

There is no age or skill limit on entries, the judges are just looking for imagery that celebrates Australian agriculture. Entries close at 5pm AEDT on AgDay, Friday, 17 November. For more information, visit agday.org.au.

Collaborative approach THE National Farmers' Federation supports like farmers do so we must use this under

THE National Farmers' Federation supports Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry Murray Watt's announcement the Australian Government will sign on to the International Drought Resilience Alliance (IDRA).

NFF president Fiona Simson said as a country characterised by drought and seasonal volatility, greater collaboration was essential to supporting Australian farmers manage their farm businesses and landscapes for sustainability and long-term productivity.

"Farmers are at the forefront of the impacts of climate change and actively work towards increased drought preparedness and resilience," Ms Simson said.

"It's critical we continue to build these international relationships at a government level and also an industry level to facilitate farmerto-farmer knowledge sharing.

"No one understands the impact of drought like farmers do, so we must use this understanding and experiences to drive these international collaborations. It is important we continue to facilitate new ideas, innovations and policies to support farmers in the face of drought."

With El Niño conditions confirmed, working with collaboratively with international counterparts will help share the tough lessons learned on the ground in our respective countries and accelerate efforts toward navigating the increasingly challenging environmental conditions

The IDRA is an initiative developed at the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) COP27. The NFF is pleased to again be attending COP28 to highlight the commitment and efforts of Australian farmers to mitigate and adapt to the impacts of climate change.

More transparency

A NEW tool to increase price transparency in the winegrape industry is set to be a great benefit for producers and consumers.

Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry Murray Watt formally launched the new interactive Grape Price Indicators dashboard during his address to the Rural Press Club of Victoria recently.

The dashboard, which brings together 12 different data sources and displays 21 charts in a user-friendly layout, gives a clear picture of the future direction of commercial winegrape prices.

Minister Watt said he was delighted to see government and industry come together to create a practical tool that would meet growers' needs for greater price transparency.

"This tool will provide growers with relevant and easily accessible market information, helping to redress the power imbalances that have traditionally existed in the winegrape and other perishable-goods supply chains," Minister Watt said.

"The dashboard comes at a time when the Australian winegrape sector is experiencing significant pressures, and it will provide them with the tools and insights they need to make informed business decisions."

The dashboard project, part of a $1 million investment from the Federal Government, has been delivered by Wine Australia and overseen by a consortium comprising Australian Grape & Wine, the Inland Wine Regions Alliance and Wine Australia.

Wine Australia CEO Dr Martin Cole said that the design of the dashboard was a result of a significant co-design and consultation process with the inland growers and their representatives.

"Co-design with the sector has been key to the successful outcome of this project," Dr Cole said.

"The consortium will now work with grape growers across the sector so everyone is best placed to begin using it."

The dashboard complements other elements of the project funding, including a digital online analytics platform, and independent winegrape price forecasts to help growers and the wine industry better understand their market and price transparency issues

The 100 farmers with the lowest annual BMCCs are presented with a gold diamond plaque for their farmgate, while the other farms within the lowest five per cent of BMCCs receive a silver diamond.

Dairy Australia's national lead for animal health and fertility, Dr Zoe Vogels, said the awards are part of Dairy Australia's commitment to support decision making on farm when it comes to maintaining the health of dairy herds and the quality of milk that is produced.

"Achieving good milk quality is a win-win for farmers, processors, retailers and the community," Dr Vogels said.

A 'mountain of supply' of sheep, cattle, goats

AUSTRALIA'S sheep, cattle and goat markets are being impacted by very high production numbers, compounded by already large volumes of meat in congested supply chains, according to agricultural analysts at

For the sheep sector particularly, there is effectively a "mountain of supply at the moment" following two "extremely good seasons" where plentiful rainfall and strong prices had seen a large rebuild of the national flock, RaboResearch associate analyst Edward McGeoch said in a recently-released podcast. And this supply is now flooding the market, with near-record volumes of lamb and sheep being 'turned off' for slaughter as drier seasonal conditions impact parts of the

It's a similar story with goat, where historically-high numbers are also hitting the market.

And while cattle slaughter numbers have not reached the same near-record highs as sheep and goat, they had tracked 16 per cent up year-on-year for quarter two, RaboResearch senior animal proteins analyst Angus Gidley-Baird said in the podcast 'Counting the numbers in the livestock market'.

At the same time, Rabobank said, there are already high inventories of meat in the system, which still need to be cleared from the supply chain.

Numbers and volume

Two key factors are impacting the livestock markets at the moment, Mr Gidley-Baird

"The first is the numbers of livestock that are out there - in particular we think the number of sheep has been underestimated - and what that means in terms of the volumes that we've got coming into the market,"

"And the second is the volumes of stock already in the system. A lot of markets - particularly Asian markets - had bought up big through the end of last year and early this year, in the expectation of coming out of Covid and the recovery of food services and increased consumer expenditure. But a lot of those stocks have not been moved. The consumption recovery hasn't eventuated due to poor economic growth, cost-of-living pressures leading to subdued consumer demand and lower-than-expected export growth.

HIGH INVENTORY: While cattle slaughter numbers have not reached the same near-record highs as sheep and goat, they had tracked 16 per cent up year-on-year for quarter two, RaboResearch senior animal proteins analyst Angus Gidley-Baird said.

"So processors at the moment have got this mountain of livestock coming at them, which is trying to be forced into a very congested supply chain."

Sheepmeat

Rabobank says Australia is estimated to have its largest sheep inventory in almost 20 years in 2023, with expectations of record lamb slaughter this year and higher slaughter weights, while mutton slaughter numbers are also up 68 per cent for the first half of the

Mr McGeoch said quarter one 2023 sheep slaughter numbers were up 54 per cent on the previous year, while quarter two numbers were up 85 per cent year on year (75 per cent above the five-year average).

"So it's a huge number - the highest quarter two slaughter number we've seen in over 20 years, when quarter two is traditionally the time of the year when Australia on average has its lowest sheep slaughter numbers,"

Mr McGeoch said these numbers signalled the sheep market was not getting the "traditional break" that would occur between the two lambing seasons which allows the market to "reset and run itself out of a bit of

"So we're going from last year's lambs at very high numbers into new season lambs at high numbers and the market is not getting any respite," he said.

Mr McGeoch said the high sheep numbers going to market in recent months had been exacerbated by the poorer seasonal conditions being seen in parts of the country – particularly in central to northern New

"That said, these numbers of sheep are still not as high as what we saw hitting the market back in late 2018 and early 2019 when dry conditions were very severe," he said.

For cattle, Mr Gidley-Baird: "while there's been an increase in year-on-year cattle slaughter numbers for quarter two, they're not at those record high levels we've seen in

"Although it's still a way off where we were in 2018 and 2019, we have had the highest female Q2 slaughter numbers since 2020 (up 26 per cent year on year), which indicates that maybe we've moved through the whole herd-rebuild phase and producers are starting to make decisions about how many cattle they want on the ground at the moment," he

But, Mr Gidley-Baird said, rather than cattle-herd numbers, it was high volumes of stock already in the system and lack of "capacity" among processors that was having the biggest influence on the beef market.

He said global protein inventory levels are very high at the moment.

"In Japan – one of our largest markets – 'beef in storage' figures are 18 per cent higher than the five-year average, albeit starting to level out," he said.

"Congestion in the supply chain, with large amounts of stock already in inventory, is one of the main things holding up the system at the moment for the beef market. So if we start to see volumes move through the system a lot quicker, it will give processors a degree of relief that there is a home for their beef to go to and they'll start adding extra shifts to increase capacity."

Mr Gidley-Baird said factors such as the lead up to Chinese Lunar New Year in early 2024, as well as a contraction in US beef production and exports, give promise beef supplies may soon begin to move more quickly through the global supply chain.

For sheep, global demand will likely take longer to recover.

Though longer term, when global market demand returns, Australia will be well placed to service export demand for lamb and sheepmeat, Mr Gidley-Baird said.

"The way I am describing it is that it is a slighter brighter light at the end of a slightly shorter tunnel for the cattle industry compared to the sheep industry at the moment,"

Prices provide silver lining

AFTER three consecutive strong harvests, Australian grain and oilseed production is set to return to more modest totals for the current season as drier growing conditions 'hit home', Rabobank says in its recently released 2023/24 Australian Winter Crop Forecast.

The bank says Australia is on track to harvest a total winter crop of 48.72 million tonnes for the current season. While down 24 per cent on last season's record-breaking 63.85 million tonne national crop, this is still close to the five-year average and above totals recorded in 2018/19 and 2020/21.

And prices are expected to provide some silver lining to the lower production totals for Australian farmers, says report co-author, RaboResearch associate analyst Edward McGeoch, with dry conditions in Australia pushing local prices above those globally, to a 'positive basis' for wheat and also barley. While global export demand should also be supportive of canola prices.

Mr McGeoch says drier weather conditions that have spread across many cropping regions in the country and the prevailing El Nino climate outlook are playing a significant role in the tighter supply outlook for Australian grain and oilseeds.

"Production expectations are varied across regions with some farmers expecting to see elevated production due to positive growing conditions they have experienced while others will be facing tough decisions as to whether it will be worth harvesting their crop," he said.

The bank says all cereal and coarse grain production – including wheat, barley and oats – is expected to decrease this season, with wheat declining the furthest, down to 26.9 million tonnes.

Winter crop production is expected to decline across all states, except Victoria, where the bank sees it rising by eight per cent from last year.

However, Mr McGeoch says this is primarily due to the losses incurred during last year's harvest, with a significant proportion of crops in the northern parts of the state unable to be harvested because of flood damage.

"Parts of Victoria have seen further strong rainfall across cropping regions in early October which will play a significant role in determining if these targets will be achieved or exceeded," he said.

Commodities

While Australia's wheat production is forecast to come in at 26.9 million tonnes (down 26 per cent on last season), barley and canola will suffer less decline, Rabobank says.

"Barley is expected to see the slightest decline in all grains and oilseeds this year (down 18 per cent on last year to 11.91 million tonnes)," Mr McGeoch said. "However, this is primarily due to an increased planted area for barley this season compared with 2022/23, while the remainder of the winter crop varieties saw reductions in planted area."

Canola production is forecast to fall 24 per cent on last year to 5.77 million tonnes. This total, however, remains 20 per cent higher than the five-year average, Mr McGeoch said, while pulse production – though forecast to be down this season – also remains slightly higher than the five-year average, at 3.08 million tonnes.

the fiv

The biggest declines in total grain and oilseed production are expected in Queensland and Western Australia, at 36 per cent and 35 per cent respectively on last season.

For Queensland, 2023/24 total production is forecast to come in at 2.15 million tonnes, taking a significant hit due to dry weather conditions.

"Wheat is expected to see the largest fall in the state, down 41 per cent year on year, which is compounded by a reduction in planted area this season, however it does remain above the five-year average," Mr McGeoch said.

Expectations are for production totals in WA to fall to 14.27 million tonnes.

DEMAND: Global export demand should also be supportive of canola prices.

This total has been influenced by several factors, Rabobank said, including the late 'autumn break' leading to crops being planted in cooler conditions, which increased frost susceptibility.

"This has been coupled with lack of rainfall during the growing season leading to poorer soil moisture levels once high temperatures returned in early spring," Mr McGeoch said.

Total tonnage for NSW winter crop is forecast to decline 27 per cent on last year (to 11.03 million tonnes). The state's central and north west regions have been worst hit by dry spring conditions and lack of rainfall totals during the growing season, with only 70 per cent of total planted crop area expected to be harvested in some parts.

For South Australia, production totals are expected to fall to 9.3 million tonnes. While this is down 26 per cent from the extremely strong 2022 season, Mr McGeoch said, these volumes remain well above the five-year average.

Exports

The report says Australia's export outlook for the year ahead will be significantly impacted by the fall in the production potential for the current season, "given we are coming off a string of consistently strong seasons".

"We are however still well positioned to support global wheat needs, while also seeing supportive factors for canola and barley exports," Mr McGeoch said.

Given the reduced production outlook, Australia's exportable surplus from the current 2023/24 wheat crop (excluding 2022/23 carryover) is forecast to total 18.6 million tonnes, with global export demand remaining strong despite Russia increasing its share of the wheat export market.

Barley and canola export surpluses from the 2023/24 harvest (excluding carryover from last season) are expected to total 5.9 million tonnes and 4.6 million tonnes respectively. "Again, reductions in global production of barley and canola are supporting export demand to key markets," Mr McGeoch said.

Commodity price outlook

Moving to the end of this year, the bank says, the environment is becoming more supportive for global grain prices, with all major grain harvests, bar Australia, to be wrapped up by December. Dry conditions in Canada and Argentina are also putting potential additional pressure on global supply.

Rabobank forecasts CBOT (Chicago Board of Trade) wheat, the bellwether for global wheat prices, to trade around USc 575-655/bu over the next 12 months, seven per cent below the five-year average. CBOT corn prices, indicative of global feed grain prices, are expected to trade between USc 470-525/bu, 35 per cent below the five-year average.

Locally, the bank expects national track/ Free in Store (FIS) APW1 wheat prices to trade, on average, between AUD 360-400/tonne over the next 12 months.

Feed barley track/FIS prices are expected to trade, on average, between AUS 320- 370/ tonne over the next 12 months, just above the five-year average of AUD 312/tonne.

"The reduced supply outlook is supporting local prices, as we have domestic consumption and export competition," Mr McGeoch said.

For canola, the bank believes there will be support for higher global prices due to smaller Canadian and Australian crops compared with last year, while Canada is also expected to crush more internally in early 2024.

Locally non-GM canola prices are forecast to trade, on average, between AUD 650-700/tonne over the next 12 months.

Farm inputs

Australian farmers are expected to face a better year ahead when it comes to their farm input costs, the report says, with the exception of diesel

Report co-author, RaboResearch agricultural analyst Vitor Pistoia says there are two "driving forces" behind the improved outlook for input costs.

"These are lower global prices for many inputs due to a new balance of supply and demand, which is favouring supply," he said.

"Also input prices in Australia tend to lag behind the rest of the world, with a long lead time before changes in global input prices are felt locally. This means that the prices farmers will have here when they procure their inputs by early 2024 will be the ones that are seen globally in quarter three and four of this year, which are tracking at much lower levels than the same period in 2022."

The reports says, based on market factors at the moment, urea is expected to remain near current levels and phosphate to ease by 10 to 15 per cent in early 2024. For potash, the forecast is for stable prices.

Agro chemicals are likely to have lower prices and better affordability in the 2024 season, Mr Pistoia said.

Diesel prices, however, look to remain at elevated levels, due to capped petroleum production in many exporting nations, along with reduced global refinery capacity, impacted by shutdowns and maintenance. Brent oil prices should stay around the USD 95/barrel mark, with potential hikes up to USD 100/barrel possible.

"These factors, combined with expectations for a continuing weak Australian dollar, put the diesel terminal gate price slightly above AUD 2/litre, in a range between AUD 2 to 2.2/per litre," Mr Pistoia said. "This is six to 17 per cent above January 2023 prices."

For machinery and parts, despite substantial reductions in component costs in the past 12 months – including for steel, rubber and international freight – prices are not expected to decline considerably. This is due to the weaker Australian dollar and local inflation in machinery-producing nations.

HARD WORK: Students worked hard while on

EXPERIENCES: The students enjoyed their experiences in Cambodia

A trip students won't forget

NEAVE MOORE

NARACOORTE High School students have returned to Australia as changed people after their visit to Cambodia.

The students visited the developing nation in early October, where they were involved with learning language, history, culture and working with local primary students.

The students visited Cambodia for ten days as part of a study trip, travelling over under teacher supervision and were completing their final assignments when returning to Australia.

Senior School Flexible Delivery Coordinator Tammy Schinckel said that all of the students enjoyed their experiences while in Cambodia.

"Everyone was really invested in what they were doing and what they had to get done each day," she said.

"Because they had the time to prepare and some research to do before the trip they were really excited to be there.'

One student said "you can't prepare yourself for a trip like this... it is different from what you see online in person." "We did research the country and where we would go but it was different being on the ground there.' Another student commented on how different the culture was compared to Australia and how they found it "very fascinating". "We had to dress modestly when we visited the temples, with our knees covered and our shoulders covered to be respectful," they said. "We had to take out shoes off when entering houses, which was quite different from what we do here," another student said.

One student said that he enjoyed learning about the temples and the history of the sites. "We learned about Angkor, the ancient city, and it was pretty interesting," he said. "There used to be a city right in the middle of Angkor and the biggest temple was right in the middle, at zero degrees in terms of the

Other students reported that they enjoyed the opportunity to connect with their host family, assisting them with tasks like cooking and appreciating an unmaterialistic way of life.

A few students shared some of their favo rite words that they learnt while in Cambodia, including "akun" (thank you).

Ms Schinckel said that by the end of the week abroad, many of the students could speak the language quite well with one student creating their own dictionary to translate Khmer works to English.

'Hopefully the students will continue to use the words they learnt while overseas," she said.

Overall, the students said that they had returned home changed from their experiences, and a few of them would consider returning to Cambodia later in life, either for a holiday, through pursuing an international occupation, or completing tertiary studies overseas.

Ms Schinckel said that she, and other teachers on the trip, were very proud of the hard work of the students during their time over-

THE Naracoorte Regional Art Gallery is hosting a six week display featuring the best pieces created by students at the Naracoorte High School through their art program, for the returning Emerge Exhibition.

Emerge has hosted a gallery exhibition in previous years and showcases the fresh talents of rising artists among the local youth.

Kari Thomas is the art teacher for the senior students and said that the 2023 Emerge Exhibition holds a very varied display of local talent across different mediums.

"This special exhibition promises to be a celebration of creativity and imagination," she

Ms Thomas said she hoped the community would visit the gallery and support the local young artists as they take their first steps into the art world.

The Emerge 2023 Exhibition involves a multi-medium collection, featuring acrylic painting, painting onto fabrics, etching, digital art, yarn, collage and plaster-work.

Don't try and dodge deadline

WITH less than a week before the 31 October deadline, the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) is urging those who haven't already to lodge and finalise their tax return or engage with a registered tax agent to avoid late lodgment penalties.

ATO Assistant Commissioner Rob Thomson said more than 9.5 million people have already lodged their returns, but we know there are still more to go.

"We've seen a last minute rush in recent weeks with lodgments increasing by 14 per cent, but there are still some people yet to lodge," Mr Thomson said.

"Whatever the reason for waiting until the last minute, it's important to lodge your tax return on time, or engage with a registered tax agent before 31 October."

People with simple affairs can lodge online using ATO online services with myTax, accessed through myGov, often in under 30 minutes. Most of the information you need will already be pre-filled - just check it's correct, add any additional income, and claim the deductions you're entitled to.

"For people with straight-forward affairs, lodging should take less time than mowing the lawn or folding the laundry," Mr Thomson said.

Additionally, the Tax Help program is a free and confidential service open to people who earn $60,000 or less each year and have simple tax affairs. The program is available until the end of October.

Mr Thomson has some handy reminders for those who haven't yet lodged.

Claiming deductions: "It may be tempting to boost your refund by leaving out income or inflating your deductions - but remember, the ATO has sophisticated data analytics that will flag claims that look suspicious."

One of the main reasons a deduction is disallowed during an audit is because a record wasn't provided to verify the expense."

Double-glazed windows projected to skyrocket

SOUTH Australia's glass industry is set to capitalise on a national shift to build greener, more energy efficient homes – with a multimillion-dollar investment.

Australia's largest glass processor Viridian, in Woodville North, has begun the rollout of a $4.5 million expansion of its local operations.

The investment comes as demand for double-glazed windows is set to skyrocket, as both consumers and new national building standards require greener, more energy efficient homes – the changes coming into effect from 1 October 2024.

The company has recently invested $2.3 million to install a new manufacturing capability on site, allowing Viridian to produce double-glazed units in SA for the first time, with a further $2.2 million committed to provide even greater capacity for SA.

The investment will enable South Australia to meet the State's own domestic demand while unlocking exports of double-glazed units interstate, including regional Victoria and the Northern Territory.

Viridian anticipates its Woodville North site will increase capacity five-fold and grow its local workforce to 65 positions (up 148 per cent) to meet growing consumer demand for higher quality, more energy efficient windows.

Double glazing is one of the easiest ways to improve a household's energy rating – required to meet the seven-star efficiency rating for all new builds from 1 October 2024 – and increase thermal performance while reducing power bills.

Based on the modelling, residents upgrading their windows in a typical two-storey, four-bedroom home will save an average $529 a year, or an average $310 a year in a one-storey, three-bedroom home.

Residential buildings are responsible for around 24 per cent of overall electricity and 12 per cent of total carbon emissions, high-

Ongoing consultation with the building and construction sector over the implementation of the National Construction Code continues, as a two-year transitional period accompanied by a range of South Australia specific exemptions are developed.

Safety grants now available for groups

REGIONAL South Australian not-for-profits, schools and community groups can now apply for grants worth up to $10,000 as part of RAA's Regional Safety Grants program.

RAA's annual Regional Safety Grants initiative helps organisations to fund a project, program or activity targeting a local safety or security issue through grants, this year totalling $85,000.

Applications are open through the RAA website, with community groups such as those impacted by the recent Murray River floods being encouraged to apply if they need funding for a rebuilding or safety project.

RAA Insurance chief executive Tara Page said the RAA was proud to support vital projects in areas such as road safety, security, education, lifesaving and firefighting.

"Our RAA Regional Safety Grants recognise the essential role local organisations play in building strong, safe and resilient communities from the ground up," Ms Page said.

"Since launching in 2013 we've been able to support more than 150 organisations including CFS groups, schools and sporting clubs making a real impact in their community.

"We know natural disasters such as the Riverland flooding event have impacted thousands of regional residents in SA, so we'd encourage any groups with a rebuilding project or one that benefits community safety to apply.

"With almost 200,000 RAA members based in our regions, we know how important local organisations are when it comes to providing much-needed safety initiatives and equipment.

"We're proud to play a small part through Regional Safety Grants each year."

Applications for RAA Regional Safety Grants close 5pm on Monday, October 30, 2023

Artwork is key to freedom

KAITLYN GIBBONS

SOUTH Australia's biggest display of artwork by people living with disability recently featured as part of the 2023 Myriad Art Exhibition for the South Australian Living Artists (SALA) Festival.

The exhibition was presented by not-forprofit disability support organisation Community Living, and Murray Bridge woman Mia Qua was selected as one of the artists whose artwork featured this year after she won last year's title of Artist of the Exhibition.

Ms Qua said the opportunity to be involved in the Myriad Art Exhibition allowed her to express her soul and share her history as a proud Indigenous artist while appreciating the talent of other artists.

"My art is an expression of my soul and my way to tell the world about my history and beliefs," Ms Qua said.

"To be recognised is such an amazing feeling, I am so proud of myself ... I want to be able to continue to display my artwork as much as I can.

"I have been drawing and painting since I was a little girl, it is a way for me to express myself.

"Artwork is a key to my freedom from my past."

Ms Qua said she taught herself to draw and paint and her passion became a major part of her life

"Art helps me realise that beauty survives in all its forms, hence why most of my artwork features a lot of faces and females," she said.

"I want to make people realise that just because I am in a wheelchair, I am not completely disabled, I have an ability and I have seen so many people be ignored because they have the 'face' of disabled and it shouldn't be like that." The recent Adelaide exhibition provided artists with a platform to empower self expression through their artwork with each work represented the individual's personal journey.

Held in the State Library of South Australia, the exhibition was accessible with artwork hung lower than usual for wheelchair users.

Running wild to help house three elephants

AROUND 400 runners, walkers and wheelchair users were up bright and early to tackle the Run Wild event at the Monarto Safari Park on Saturday, October 21.

The participants ran the South Australian 'savannah' as part of a fundraising cause to house three Asian elephants – Burma, Permai and Putra Mas at the park next year.

The elephants have been confirmed to be arriving at the Monarto Safari Park, with the funds raised from the event to go towards their shelter and settling them into their new home

There were four separate events, ranging from three kilometres up to the full marathon distance of 42 kilometres, across the 1500-hectare park.

Supporters went along to cheer on the people who took on the challenge around the safari park.

The fundraiser was held on the same day as Monarto Safaris Park 40th birthday.

To commemorate the anniversary there was a burying of a time capsule near the visitor centre which will be opened on Monarto Safari Park's 100th birthday in 2083.

Inside the sealed cylinder will be messages from staff and volunteers, Monarto Mint Bush seeds and 'Zuri', a book written about the first ever chimp to be born at Monarto Safari Park.

Chelsea's strong desire to help her community

In the Spotlight

SAM LOWE

CHELSEA is a 29-year-old woman from Murray Bridge, living with a disability, however, she has not let that limit her as with the help of her support worker, she has put together a book and pantry swap to support people in need.

For her entire life, Chelsea has been known to be a giving person, whether it is little craft gifts, or paintings and pictures of animals, and even her spare time, she loves to be able to give back to the people around her.

One of Chelsea's goals was to be able to expand her giving nature and get more involved in the community, and after spending much time thinking with her support worker, Cheryl, they both came up with a pantry and book swap for the people of Mannum.

Chelsea said that even though she has lived in Murray Bridge her whole life, she really likes the people in Mannum.

"It makes me feel happy, I like helping people out," Chelsea said.

Chelsea can't help but smile at the thought of giving back to the community. 36821 Picture: SAM LOWE

"I really like the people here and also going down to the river and going across the ferry, it's good."

When Chelsea is not busy spending time in the Murray Bridge Library, or working, she spends a lot of her time in Mannum at Shining Star Support Services with her support worker, Cheryl.

Cheryl said Chelsea had gained a lot of community support with the book and pantry swap, with many businesses on the main street pleased to see someone helping the community out of the goodness of their heart.

"We've already had the lady at the Mannum Old Wares, and even though she has just reopened in a temporary location because of the floods, she was the first one to donate some books to Chelsea," Cheryl said.

"We also spoke to the man in the gems shop and while he didn't have anything to really donate, he just gave Chelsea $20 to be able to go to the shops to buy some stuff to help others.

"And then also just local people, one lady came and dropped some food off, someone else has dropped some books off, it's been great.

"It would be nice for people to know that there is someone out there like Chelsea who is not made of money or anything like that, but she's willing to give it a try, to give back to the community for those other people who are really struggling."

Chelsea has put up a few flyers around Mannum with what the pantry and book swap is on the lookout for, including bakery items, fruit and vegetables, women's hygiene products, and second hand or new books.

For anyone looking to find out more about Chelsea's endeavour to support the people of Mannum, they can find a flyer, or get in contact with Cheryl on 0419 310 200 for item collection

Items can be dropped off to the Shining Star Support Services office at 36 Diercks Road, Mannum on Monday and Wednesday mornings

Good week for Naracoorte bowls

NARACOORTE RSL BOWLS

NARACOORTE RSL had another good outcome for the teams playing this week, all at

Friday, the ladies hosted Lucindale in very warm conditions with both rinks having the

J Mark, L Prentice, S Green and M Neilson won 30 shots to 14 against C Ferguson, and L Mark, H Brody, J McGrath and J Hurn won 37 shots to 6 against Marg Fallon.

Saturday the weather was cold and blustery making bowling very challenging for everyone.

Division 1 played against Port MacDonnell and R O'Shaughnessy, G Hurn, G Mark and L Mark had to play H Richards and co. They started well with a seven on the first end, then put on some more nice scores on the next few ends, but Port Mac began to peg them back. Scores were tied at the break of 15 ends and the tussle was on for the rest of the game with Port Mac gaining a two on the last end to win 25 shots to

D O'Shaughnessy, C Zeuner, J Mark and R Burke played against K Dowdell and won most of the ends by mainly singles. Port Mac managed to pick up a four a few ends before the break to close the gap a little, and in the last end a five to finally pip RSL at the post.

Port MacDonnell 18 to RSL 17.

G East, C Castine, J McGrath and J East took on A Wilson and led all day winning 23 shots to 13 covering the other two rinks to make an overall win, Naracoorte RSL 64 shots 8 points defeating Port MacDonnell 56 shots 4 points.

Division 3 played Penola. L Hirschmann, P Neilson, L MacDonald and L Prentice played against K Brooks, and for the first part got a ten shot lead. Penola however began to pick up and at the smoko break RSL had a lead of five.

The last three ends saw scores up and down by one shot, but Hirshmann managed a single on the last to draw 19 shots a piece.

B Hill, J Hurn, O Homan (in his debut - welcome Ollie!) and H Brody dominated all day against W Wachtel winning 30 shots to 17.

A Brody, J Redding, R Petrie and K Hill had a good start over L Clifton but had a small hiccup around the ninth and tenth end allowing Penola to get ahead for one end.

From there, Brody and team picked up again and managed a win 27 shots to 20. Final score Naracoorte RSL 76 shots 11 points defeated Penola 56 shots 1 point.

Division 1, Division 3 and the Ladies are all sitting second place on the ladder - early days yet, but a good start to the season.

Rob Tank Thompson, Bob Childs and Neal

John Kamp, Ben Young, David MacPherson and Steve Harris.

Stunning weather for Veterans

A field of 61 SE Veterans golfers descended on Beachport for their latest outing, with the weather playing turning it on at the seaside

First division honours went to a local, this time Steve Harris with a fine 40 points.

Mount Gambier's David MacPherson was runner-up on 38 and Millicent's Ben Young third with 37 on a count-back.

Second division went to Penola's in-form player Trevor Williams with 38 points, from two Millicent boys on 33 - Rob "Tank" Thompson and Bob Childs. Nearest the pins went to YoungandKennyMilsop, with the Scotchgoing to Terry Chant.

The Ross Orchard trophy went to John Kamp and Neal Rowe, with Kamp showing he is still rusty from his long western trek.

The ball rundown was to 32 points.

The next trip is to Bordertown on November 6, followed by Blue Lake on Nov 20.

Top teams clash for round 1

SOUTHERN Ports tennis kicked off on the weekend with Round 1 of the 2023-24 season.

Some tight scores were produced, with signs pointing towards another good competition this year.

NARACOORTE 13-119 d ROBE ROOSTERS 11-105

Despite the blustery conditions at Naracoorte, a good day played out against a visiting Robe

Naracoorte started the day strongly with wins in four mixed doubles.

The Naracoorte Daniel Menzel/Poppy Moyle-Read pair seem to have held their form over the break and defeated Paul Rains and Hayley Agnew 6-2.

Meanwhile, it was much harder work for Norbert Wende and Jen Malone, who held on to secure a tiebreak win over Johnny and Katie-Robe's Lewis Ling made a comeback after retiring at the end of the 2022-23 season.

The veteran player, along with Samantha Matthews proved too strong for Naracoorte young guns Sam Baker and Alice Redding, stealing the Roosters a set in a tiebreak.

Into the singles, Naracoorte's women will prove tough competition again this season with wins in five of their sets.

Across those sets they only dropped five games, with Michele Moyle-Read leading the way with a 6-0 win over Tracey Bainger.

The men's singles were a different story.

The Roosters took five from six sets, keeping them firmly in the competition with wins to Rains, Peter Obst and Brad Agnew.

Both new to the competition, Max Domaschenz and Samuel Birchard went headto-head with the former winning 6-1.

With the day still looking tight, it was into Naracoorte was able to hold on in the women's doubles with the Moyle-Read sisters Poppy and Kelsie storming to victory 9-2, while Michele Moyle-Read and Jen Malone won 9-1.

With all eyes on the last set of the day, the voungsters in pink, Alice Redding and Lucy Midwinter, were able to secure the day for Naracoorte, defeating Samantha Matthews and Phoebe Baker 9-7.

Three-set winners included Naracoorte's Poppy, Kelsie and Michele Moyle-Read, along with Jen Malone, while newcomer Domaschenz and Ling won three each for the

LUCINDALE KOALAS 11-109

Windy conditions made for tough going at Lucindale for the in-house battle between the Wombats and Koalas.

The Koalas were up and about early, securing four of the mixed doubles sets.

In the singles, the Wombats came back fighting, taking four of the men's sets, with wins to Sam Graetz, Chandler Smart, Tom McKinnon and Peter Stock.

However, the Koala women were just too good and secured four comfortable singles sets of their own.

The doubles were an even split.

That left the day to finish with a nail-biting match between which had the Wombats secure their final set in a 10-9 tiebreak to secure the overall honours.

FRANCES/LUCINDALE EAGLES 13-125 d BEACHPORT 11-121

The match between Frances/Lucindale Eagles and Beachport was played in terrible condi-

However, the intensity remained and the Eagles claimed a narrow two-set win.

The Eagles welcomed Hayley Crossling and Grace Porter-Dabrowski, who by all accounts could possibly give the higher order women a run for their money.

Despite the weather, some players were still able to win three sets, with Frances/Lucindale the more fortunate coming home with a close

ROBE REBELS 20-147 d PENOLA 3-47

Played in windy conditions at Robe, the home Rebels side claimed a convincing win over Pe-

Robe used the conditions to its advantage, winning all the mixed doubles sets.

There were some close matches in the singles with the number-one women clash between Robe's Lisa Hall and Carolyn McGrath a 6-4 result in favour of the former.

The doubles had Robe come home strong, winning four out of five, with the last double not being finished due to the weather.

The Rebels came away with a strong 20-3

At the end of Round 1 the Robe Rebels sit comfortable at the top of the ladder after their convincing win over Penola.

Lucindale Wombats, Naracoorte and Frances/Lucindale Eagles sit closely behind, with only games the difference.

Next round Kingston makes its 2023-24 debut with a match against the Robe Roosters in Beachport will be keen to host the Robe Rebels and there will be two matches at Lucindale when the Koalas take on the Eagles and the Wombats face Penola.

Juniors show talent on the court

THE Southern Ports Tennis Association launched its second season of junior competition on Saturday.

Games were played at Kingston, Millicent and Naracoorte and despite poor weather conditions, there was some quality tennis on

This season Naracoorte again fields four teams, with two from Lucindale and one each for Kingston and Millicent.

NARACOORTE BLUE 6-44 d LUCINDALE ROOS 3-32

Naracoorte Blue and Lucindale Roos had a good hit out to start the season, with the former winning by three sets.

Some new players took to the court and had some solid rallies in the doubles.

Naracoorte's Max Lush had a convincing win in his singles match, as did Lucindale's Harry Robinson.

Lucindale's Ernie Bucket fought hard to win a tough contest against Sid Wilkin.

Archie Brodie and Ashton Reti had a good start to their junior tennis careers, both winning their singles.

KINGSTON 8-52 d NARACOORTE RED 1-25

Kingston put on a class display to defeat a visiting Naracoorte Red eight sets to one.

All players had an enjoyable day in the windy conditions, with Jack Starling topping off his birthday with a solid 6-3 singles win.

MILLICENT 4-31 d NARACOORTE WHITE 2-20

Both Millicent and Naracoorte White could only fill four spots on Saturday, but a close battle unfolded nonetheless.

Millicent won two extra sets at the end of the day, including a long singles clash between Axel Joyce and Naracoorte's Toby Drew.

Joyce won the match 6-3 in the end. NARACOORTE YELLOW 7-46 d

LUCINDALE KOALAS 2-24.

Aside from a few short showers, the opening round was a good one at Naracoorte with the Yellow team defeating Lucindale Koalas seven sets to two.

There were some notable matches throughout the morning.

Thomas Malone and Cody Crocker battled it out in the singles, with the former winning Digby and Missy McGregor both secured 6-3 wins, while Vander Maywald and Cody Crocker gained a good 6-3 win for the Roos in the top doubles match.

At the end of Round 1 Kingston sits at the top of the ladder, followed closely by Naracoorte Yellow and Naracoorte Blue.

Millicent, Naracoorte White and Lucindale Roos hold the middle spots with Naracoorte Red and Lucindale Koalas both hoping to be back to full strength next week.

JAMES MURPHY

THE second round of Mount Gambier and District tennis was hindered by the wet weather on Saturday afternoon.

Across all senior grades only one fixture was completed, with the Division 1 clash between Mount Schank and Uniting concluding in favour of the latter.

Played at Mount Schank, Uniting visited for a solid 8-1 set win.

At the end of the day two sets were left uncompleted, but enough had been played to decide the result.

There were several 6-0 margins over the course of the afternoon and aside from Bella Laube's 6-2 win over Uniting's Jade Delaney, it was all one-way traffic.

That game was the closest result, along with a similar 6-2 victory to Uniting's Kobe Cole over Brendan McInness.

The triumph keeps Uniting undefeated after two rounds and it stands as the only Division 1 club with two wins heading into Round 3 this weekend.

Magic gets best of Terang

james.murphy@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Millicent Magic men claimed a win at home when they hosted Terang Tornadoes for Round 3 of the Country Basketball League season on Saturday night.

The result puts the Magic in fourth place on the ladder, having played five games for three wins.

Another strong start set up the victory, while Jack Haggett blew the game open with a 31-point outing.

A 26-15 point first quarter put Millicent out to an early lead and was a good foundation on its way to a 26-point win.

Terang fought back in the second term and managed to win the quarter - albeit by a single point - and at half time the margin was 10.

The game was far from over, but the hosts put in another big quarter to ensure they kept the Tornadoes contained.

They scored 26 points to Terang's 17 and entered the final stanza with a handy 19-point buffer.

The fourth period followed a similar script as Millicent piled on another 26 points, outscoring their rival by seven to secure the honours.

Haggett was a highlight of the night and top scored with his 31 points.

Matt Black and William Wimshurst were next best for the Magic with 16 and 14 respectively, while Jackson Bowden also broke into double figures with 12 points.

Terang was best served by Jake Bartlett under the hoop, who scored 23 points, while Scott Judd had 19.

The win comes as a positive sign for Millicent's men and with a rematch this Saturday in Terang, they will chase a similar result.

It will be a double header on the road for the Magic, with a game against Hamilton Hurricanes looming on Sunday.

The Hurricanes are yet to post a win from three outings this season, so Millicent could be in for a fruitful weekend.

Getting up close and personal

DAVID LEWIS

IT has been a couple of years now since Claro - and later Quaran Care - included Thursday afternoon greyhound racing at Mount Gambier's Tara Raceway among its activities for their client base of people with disabilities.

Jarrad Williams is 31 years old and lives with his mum Jo - "the taxi service" - in Mount Gambier.

He was one of the original Claro racegoers and is still actively involved on a weekly basis in Quaran Care's activities.

But it was the greyhounds that really took his fancy, to the extent that these days he rarely misses a Thursday or Sunday meeting.

When Williams had looked to become further involved on race day, who better than regular racegoer Kevin "KD" Douglas to offer advice?

"KD suggested I should start off leading back greyhounds at the conclusion of their races," Williams said.

'So that's where it all began - with stewards' permission and KD supervising.

"Later, I was granted a catcher's licence and was then able to catch greyhounds under the supervision of Moorak training team Mel Freitag and Jason Newman.

"Really, my aim always was to be able to box greyhounds in races.

"I started out in trials and eventually was granted an owner-attendant licence which permitted me to box and catch for trainers."

Williams is also a part-owner with Millicent owner-trainer Dave Green of Tigger's Run, a recent winner over 512 metres at Tara Raceway.

It is fair to say Williams has really "come out of his shell" since being involved with the Mount Gambier Greyhound Racing Club.

Both mum and he are also part of the club's Tara Tipsters "chasing for charity" initiative which focuses on local charities.

Currently, Jarrad is doing pretty well - sitting in fourth spot after four rounds with 100

PASSION FOR GREYHOUNDS: Jarrad Williams on track at Tara Raceway.

In between greyhound racing meetings he plays cricket for Penola and is a water boy for the Mount Gambier Pioneers basketball

Meanwhile, it seems Koroit owner-trainer Lindsay Brookes spends almost as much time at Mount Gambier's Tara Raceway as he does at his home track at Warrnambool.

He was at Tara Raceway recently with his good mate Peter Keane, also of Koroit.

While there were no winners forthcoming that day, Keane was pretty quick to let it be known Brookes had just that week been awarded life membership of the Warrnambool Greyhound Racing Club.

Involved with the Warrnambool club for 30-odd years, Brookes has also spent 25 years as a Committee of Management Delegate for Wannon Park.

He was also president of the Warrnambool club for two years.

Brookes, 78, was a motor mechanic for 30 years prior to spending 20 years as a mechanic come school bus and coach driver.

Recalling his early days in greyhound racing, he said his first winner as an owner had actually been at Mount Gambier's original greyhound track at Glenburnie in May 1994 when Turkey Lass, trained by the late Jim Williams, defeated Richard Clayfield's Beau Dan over 479 metres.

The life membership announcement had been made at the club's Annual General Meeting by WGRC president Rob Gore.

"That was certainly something I wasn't expecting," Brookes said.

MILLICENT BLACK HATS 1/103 d ROBE ROOSTERS 5/57

IT was an impressive start to the Millicent and Naracoorte Cricket Association for Millicent

They hosted Robe Roosters and after winning the toss, made the wise decision to bat first.

In the end all 103 of Millicent's runs came off two bats, with the partnership of Jacob Todd and Ashton Lindner bearing fruit.

Todd opened with Sam Hunt, but the latter was bowled by Robe's Robbie Chappel with a single run on the board.

However, the ship steadied from there and at the end of the 19 overs Todd and Lindner remained standing.

Todd posted a solid 73 runs off 57 balls, which included eight fours and two sixes, while Lindner faced 51 balls for a return of 27.

Robe tried five different bowlers on their opponent, but Chappel's early wicket was the only cause for celebration.

He had the best bowling figures, with his 1/12 off four overs, while Adrian Thompson also proved a handful with only 18 runs made off his four-over stint.

The Roosters were then sent in to bat and unlike their rival, struggled to find a sturdy partnership.

Sam Huebner and Zac Deane opened, but the former was sent back to the pavilion with just seven runs on the board.

Deane lasted a little longer and he had eight runs to his name with the total at 22 when Todd caught him LBW.

The wickets fell at a steady rate throughout the 19 overs and at the end of play Robe had amassed a score of 5/57, handing Millicent the honours.

Wickets were shared by the Black Hat bowlers, with Todd (1/13), Michael Gibson (1/5), Sam Hunt (1/24) and Teej Lawlor (1/2) all successful

LUCINDALE ROOS 4/132 d MOUNT BURR MOZZIES 10/122

It was another win for the host team when Lucindale Roos welcomed the Mount Burr Mozzies to Lucindale Oval on Saturday.

The guests won the toss and elected to bat, where they proceeded to be drilled by a tough Lucindale bowling attack.

It took 36.4 overs for the Mozzies to be bowled out, with a total of 122 runs recorded.

There was a trio of three-wicket takers, with Daniel McCarthy (3/24), Daniel Lane (3/23) and Will Graetz (3/5) all felling wickets with Graetz was particularly impressive, as he made the most of his 2.4 overs to polish off the Mount Burr order.

Lucindale padded up and put in a steady batting performance to chase down the target in 29 overs.

After a shaky start, with opener Joshua Smith bowled out for a duck, captain Nathan James took to the crease alongside Shane McGurk and the runs started to come.

Eventually McGurk was forced to retire not out on 21 runs, while James was bowled for 19.

However, by then the total was out to 52 runs and the chase was in a favourable position

Nick Cane and Graetz were the next partnership, with 10 runs added before the former was dismissed on 11.

McCarthy stepped up and he would see out the innings, while Graetz was bowled out for 13 which left Michael McGurk to finish off the day with McCarthy.

The duo combined well and shared the heavy lifting to push the total out to 4/132 in the 29th over.

Michael McGurk top scored for the Roos with 29 runs, which included three fours and a six, while McCarthy was close behind on 24.

TREVOR JACKSON

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

THE South East Coast Basketball League summer season kicked off last week, with some close results and a couple of big wins. For the men, Saints claimed a hard-fought victory over Panthers, with just six points separating the two sides at the final buzzer.

Jack Haggett was in his usual form for Saints, with a game-high 26 points, while Jackson Bowden chipped in with 20.

For Panthers, Taj Brumby topped the scoresheets with 23 points.

Duncan Reid topped the scoresheets for Bulldogs with 24 points, while Simon Berkefeld showed his class with 23 and Ben Young chipped in with 19.

The Roos boys were certainly up for the challenge, and despite Zac Nulty with 24 points, Addison Noble 15 and Jack Wilkinson 12, Bulldogs were simply too tough on the night.

Cougars enjoyed the night off with a bye.

The women's competition was highlighted by the Cats v Saints clash.

Cats claimed the win in the end, but not without a fight, with just five points separating the two.

Alana Berkefeld (21 points) led the way for the victors, while Lauren Van Eeden (18) and Emily Denton (12) helped keep the scoreboard ticking over.

Only Poppy Venn reached double figures for Saints, with 24 points.

Bulldogs claimed a comfortable 81-51 win over Roos, on the back of solid performances from Ava Collins (24) Tara Bryant (16) and Tenille Human (16).

For Roos, Ellie Bouchier (25) and Cara Nulty (12) reached double figures.

Cougars had the bye.

Through the hoops as new season hits off

THE South East Croquet Association Pennant season opened last Wednesday at the Millicent Croquet Club courts, with sunshine and no wind providing ideal conditions to kick off.

Unfortunately, several players were missing for the first hoop run of the season due to attendance at tournaments in Tumby Bay and other commitments.

However, those who attended from Millicent, Penola and Naracoorte had a great day playing doubles games and getting their eye in for the upcoming season which runs through until April 2024. Croquet is a much-maligned sport, labelled as an old lady's game, but those who play it know it is extremely competitive and, at times, aggressive.

Several different styles of croquet (or Mallet Sports) are played in the South East.

Association Croquet is the longer game, based on the traditional garden game, full of strategy and cunning where competitors race to get their balls around the court.

It is a game that requires tactical ability and skill rather than strength and fast reflexes.

This game has been in existence since around 1856.

Other forms of the game such as Golf, Aussie, Ricochet and Gateball are faster, more modern forms of the game developed for more social interaction.

Golf Croquet is a fast and entertaining game which can be learned quickly and played by beginners, but also provides a tactical challenge to more advanced players.

Aussie Croquet was originally started as a teaching game to introduce school children to the sport and is also an easy game to pick up.

Once it is mastered, it is only another couple of steps to playing Association croquet.

The three forms of croquet both involve hitting balls through a series of hoops.

It can be said Association Croquet is like playing a game of chess on grass, while Golf Croquet is closer to the simpler game of draughts, with a much quicker outcome.

Ricochet Croquet, however, is a side-step on Golf Croquet and Aussie Croquet, with rules closely aligned to Association Croquet.

It allows players to participate in a mallet sport without the time challenges of Association Croquet. It can be understood and played by newcomers almost immediately.

Gateball is another mallet sport that was first introduced in NSW in 1986.

The Mount Gambier Croquet Club is the place to go if you wish to try this version of the game.

Contact your local croquet club for more information on any of these forms of the sport.

Most clubs will be holding come-and-try days to allow newcomers to give the sport a go.

Cycling royalty hits town

CYCLISTS in the Limestone Coast were treated to something special over the weekend, with a visit from Australian national team coach Tim Decker.

The coach of the Australian women's and men's Pursuit teams, Decker spent the entire weekend with the Mount Gambier Cycling Club, mentoring and guiding the next generation of cyclists.

The club's juniors were given an extraordinary opportunity, all made possible by a grant from the Junior Sports Fund.

The action-packed weekend commenced with Friday night track racing, which was organised and run by Kai Arbery, a scholar under the South Australian Sports Institute (SASI)

Arbery ensured the young cyclists had an exciting start to the weekend, setting the stage for what was to come.

Saturday saw the junior riders put through a series of race-simulated events, with the bank of the velodrome taking centre stage.

Unfortunately, the weather was not entirely cooperative, forcing the young athletes to spend some time indoors, where they trained vigorously on watt bikes and rollers.

Sunday was no less thrilling, as the club held its weekly 20-kilometre race.

However, what made this race unique was Decker himself took to the track, riding from scratch alongside Jami Buckley.

With newcomers like Martin Farmilo and the MGCC new young members Lachie Becker and Charlie Evans, the stage was set for a race filled with talent and determination.

The race commenced with Martin Farmilo, the newest addition to the racing scene, going off first, along with David Tye and Lachie.

Molly Opperman, Xavier Farmilo and Charlie Evans were hot on their heels, eventually securing the top spots in the race.

Xavier Farmilo clinched first position, with Evans in second and Opperman third.

Despite the challenging conditions, which included strong winds and rain, the entire field displayed unwavering determination.

At the back of the pack, Decker and Buckley started from scratch, with Buckley later managing to secure the title of fastest time.

The weekend's events served as a testament to the power of collaboration between local talent and national expertise and with

Up-and-down conditions

WITH the weather throwing up another great day for a game of golf, combined with a wellmanicured course at the Blue Lake Golf Club, there could be no excuses used by the 24 women that played a stableford competition.

Scores breaking the daily scratch rating of 36 rolled in, especially in Division 1.

Taking the top club voucher was Lee-Anne Medhurst who had no trouble posting 39 points from splits of 19/20.

Off a 26 handicap Medhurst recorded pars on the second, 12th and 14th holes partnered with four three-pointers and her only blemish was on the 10th.

Women's secretary, Sue Agars and Karen Panagopoulos put in credible cards both signing for 38 points creating a count-back going Agars way having the 20 points to Panagopoulos's 17 on the back nine where the countbacks take place.

Agars plays off a 21 handicap and had a good spread of pars on the third and fourth holes to accumulate 19 points, turning to the 10th, 14th and 17th, with her only scrub was Panagopoulos (25) relegated to third spot had splits of 21/17 and included a par on the dogleg par 3 ninth hole and three three-pointers, with no scrubs on her scorecard.

Another good score of 36 points was posted by Division 2's Jaynee Oberer enjoying the fast running fairways.

Off 33, Oberer started with a par on the first hole for a four-pointer, then combining that with four three-pointers and no scrubs to record splits of 20/16, enough to nudge out the ever-consistent Bev Pascoe.

Pascoe recorded 35 points, with splits of 16/19 that included a par on the fifth hole and four three-pointers off her 34 handicap.

Johanna Gogan followed with 33 points off her 36 handicap, her card showing three threepointers, a four-pointer on the 14th hole, along with scrubs on the 13th and 17th.

This week is another stableford competition before the quarter finals of the women's championships the following week.

Federal leaves South standing

IN atrocious conditions, Federal easily defeated a courageous South Indians in Saturday's final Mount Gambier and District baseball game, after the red and whites failed to score a run.

Batting second in the first dig Federal scored one run after Riley Rolph singled to right-field and was batted in by Matt Nicholls.

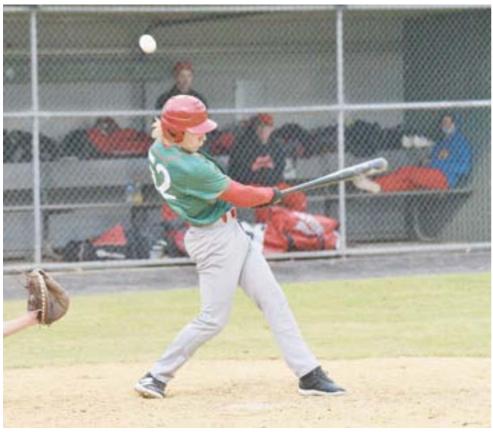

However, it took until the fourth inning before they added to the scoreboard.

Lead-off batter Dean Searcy walked and scored on Alex Pearson's double to right-field, followed by Riley Rolph who singled to left-field. Pitcher Alex Reppin stepped up to the plate and slammed the ball to centre-field for a home run, also scoring the previous two runners.

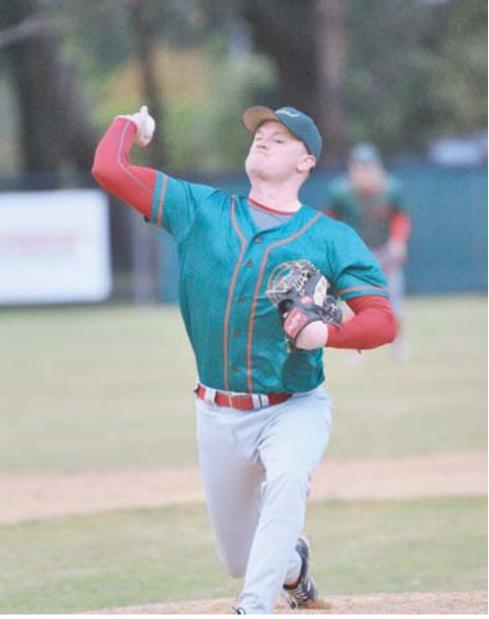

Matt Nicholls was the fourth consecutive safe hitter, knocking the ball into left-field and scored on Roy Hutchesson's deep hit to centrefield

Single runs were scored in the next four innings, with the last one scoring on a wild pitch to give the umpire the opportunity to call the game on a 10-0 mercy and allow the players to retreat from the cold, wet conditions.

South tried hard all night, but could not get wood on the ball as Reppin retired 10 of their batters with strike outs.

Central Magpies tame Tigers with big margin

IT was a bolt out of the blue for current Mount Gambier and District baseball premiers, Central, in Friday night's replay of last season's grand final series.

Central was far too strong and emphatically destroyed last season's runners-up Tigers.

In one of the largest margins recorded in A Grade, Major A and Division 1 baseball history, Central inflicted the worst defeat between the two clubs since Tigers joined the competition in 1982.

The Central batters scored runs in every one of the six innings before the mercy rule was called after two hours of play.

Five and six runs were scored from the two innings Tigers pitcher, Garth Ransom, threw before he was replaced on the mound by Mitchell Thomson.

However, Thomson gave up two, six, two and three runs in his four innings on the hill.

Tigers' cause was not helped by six fielding errors, along with the Magpies continually hitting the ball into play, collecting 26 safe-hits along the way.

Central pitcher, Koby Chant, pitched the perfect six-dig game, giving up zero hits and zero runs, while the fielders backed him up with error-less baseball.

Tigers have lost quite a few of their players from last year's grand final team and are going through a rebuild, adding some of their talented juniors to the side.

They will need a little time to integrate those players into the team, but with time on their side they will no doubt become a much more competitive outfit.

Smaller field, close results

THERE was a smaller-than-average field of shooters at the recent Lake Bonney Sporting Clays 2023 club championship sponsored by South West Freight and In 2 Monogramming. Competitors from across South Australia and Victoria were challenged by a wide variety of new targets as well as constantly changing weather conditions.

Local shooter Danny Bellinger took out the Highgun prize after a count-back with Mark Fabris, both with a score of 67/75.

Bellinger was also the only one to shoot a perfect score of 25/25.

Fabris claimed the win in AA Grade, two targets clear of Tom Weir on 65/75, while Mick Banning rounded out the top three.

A Grade was won by Locky Irons, ahead of Ian Vearing and Warren Whitehead.

Craig Smith won B Grade, one target in front of Angus Maddern, with Robin Smith third

Matt Collins had a fairly easy win in C Grade, six targets ahead of second-placed Peter Bull, while third place was decided by a count-back with Peter Cook claiming the honours.
