Electric car could be sold

THE Wattle Range Council ratepayers may be footing the bill for a new car for chief executive Ben Gower, despite his current vehicle being less than four months old.

The electric vehicle - a GT-Line 2WD EV6 - was purchased in November 2022 and arrived in August 2023.

In those three months, the vehicle has travelled more than 8000 kilometres, and has been driven to Adelaide and back several times.

Councillor resigns

AFTER five years as a councillor on the Wattle Range Council Moira Neagle has resigned 12 months into her second term.

The Corcoran Ward councillor spent three years during her first term as Deputy Mayor.

Following last Tuesday's council meeting Ms Neagle sent a brief email to Mayor Des Noll and her fellow councillors to inform them of her decision.

Numbers debate

THE transit yards at the Millicent Saleyards have once again been a topic of discussion at the Wattle Range Council meeting, following claims by farmers that there is more stock transiting through than reported.

Earlier this month, a letter was posted on the windows of two local businesses stating more than 1600 heads of stock had been through the Millicent transit yards - much more than recorded.

However Wattle Range Council chief executive Ben Gower refuted the claims in the letter.

"My first question is, why are the people that are using the yards not declaring that they are using it?," he said.

"Where's the almost $2,000 worth of fees owed to the council?"

Speaking at the meeting last week was El-der's area manager south east of SA Scott Altschwager, who spoke to the chamber regarding the saleyards, with suggestions of things the council could do to better manage the area.

Gallery to host wonderland

SOPHIE CONLON

sophie.conlon@tbwtoday.com.au

WITH the Christmas season upon us, Walkway Gallery director Naomi Fallon is hard at work transforming the gallery space into Santa's Wonderland.

Ms Fallon said she wanted to create a space that was a bit of fun for families in the Tatiara in the lead up to Christmas.

"It's just 100 per cent Christmas, we don't often see that around here, and when we do, it's got snow and snowman, which isn't the reality of an Australian Christmas so we wanted to create an environment that was fun and colourful and 100 per cent Christmas," she said.

She said the Santa's Wonderland installation would be full of around 2000 Christmas balloons, multiple Christmas trees, and a velvet lounge so people could take their own Christmas photos.

In line with Santa's Wonderland, Ms Fallon said the gallery and Keith Community Library would be hosting a Santa's Workshop where families could come together in the week before Christmas and enjoy festive crafts and fun.

"Anyone really can come and make and create some things for free that they can either give to loved ones add to their tree or keep for themselves," she said.

"All of the booked workshops like the candy cane reindeers and melted snowman biscuits and make your own ornaments will happen in both locations.

"It's rare that we do that, but the Keith Library are jumping on board and being a location for that which is really fun."

As well as book in sessions, Ms Fallon said Santa's Workshop would host free drop in activities through the week.

Santa's Wonderland will open at the Walkway Gallery in conjunction with the Bordertown Christmas Street Party on Friday, December 15, from 6.30pm.

All activities are free and bookings can be made through the Walkway Gallery from Wednesday, December 1, find more information on Facebook.

HOLIDAY CRAFTS: Walkway Gallery director Naomi Fallon was excited for Santa's Wonderland to open on December 15.

Community call to support Christmas appeal

CAROLINE HAMMAT

caroline.hammat@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Millicent Combined Churches (MCC) have launched this year's annual Christmas appeal with a goal to fund 300 hampers for the disadvantaged in the community.

Kicking off the launch last Wednesday were president of the MCC Shaun Mulick, and vice president of the Millicent Lions Brendan McMillan.

"The goal of this year's appeal is to meet the needs of as many disadvantaged and vulnerable people in our community as possible," Mr Mulick said.

Donation bins for non-perishable items, new toys and treats have been placed in each of Millicent's three supermarkets and at eSmart Electrical.

These items will be added to pre-purchased Foodbank hampers.

Last year's appeal resulted in more than 200 hampers gifted to community members with organisers expecting requests for the hampers to rise this year.

Mr Mulick said with the doubling of electricity prices and the cost of living exponentially increasing, they wouldn't have any trouble doing 300.

"Especially this year, there are a lot of teenagers who are displaced, homeless or couch surfing," he said.

"Previously they haven't been included, so we are making sure we also supply to the disenfranchised people in this area."

The organiser's goal is to raise $21,000 to fund the hampers and add further value by including meat trays, school uniform vouchers ers and items donated to the collection bins.

Brendan McMillan and Shaun Mulick dropped off the collection bin to Sukkhain Dhalial, manager of the Millicent IGA supermarket.

The appeal receives donations of potatoes, oranges and onions, and Kimberly-Clark continues to donate paper products annually.

The Salvation Army has paid shipping on two pallets of donated Lego and ARC, the Animal Rescue Co-operative, will support the appeal by donating pet food and products.

Vulnerable community members are urged to register for a hamper through ac.care, local schools or churches.

Nominations by the broader community are also accepted.

"We've got a number of homeless in the area that might not necessarily get into an agency, that's why we are also calling it nominations," Mr Mulick said.

"If someone identifies someone in need, that might not have registered themselves, they can make sure that they are nominated."

Another challenge facing organisers is families cohabiting to help spread the cost of living.

In previous years these households were only eligible for a single hamper.

"We are working with agencies this year to make sure each family gets one, even if they are cohabiting," Mr Mulick said.

Manager of Millicent's IGA supermarket, Sukkhain Dhalial, said the appeal was well supported last year.

"Our bin was nearly full," he said.

"I hope this year the people and all our lovely customers support us again."

"We have some discontinued lines to add that will hopefully half fill the bin already."

Collection bins will be picked up on December 13 and volunteer teams will spend the next two days packing items in preparation for collection.

Any last minute donations can be made at the Millicent Christmas Fair, December 16.

Cash donations from businesses and individuals are urgently required to help fund the hampers and can be made at the Millicent Community Church by appointment or direct deposit to the Combined Churches account.

EFT details are Millicent Christian Ministers Association BSB 065 514, account number 100 302 03 or email communitychurch-sa@outlook.com to request an invoice.

Truck wash price drop

THE transit yards at the Millicent Saleyards have once again been a topic of discussion at the Wattle Range Council meeting, following claims by farmers that there is more stock transiting through than reported.

Earlier this month, a letter was posted on the windows of two local businesses stating more than 1600 heads of stock had been through the Millicent transit yards - much more than recorded.

However Wattle Range Council chief executive Ben Gower refuted the claims in the letter.

"My first question is, why are the people that are using the yards not declaring that they are using it?" he said.

"Where's the almost $2,000 worth of fees owed to the council?"

Speaking at the meeting last week was Elder's area manager south east of SA Scott Altschwager, who spoke to the chamber regarding the saleyards, with suggestions of things the council could do to better manage the area.

He said 762 sheep and 44 cattle had been transited through the yards between July 1 and September 30.

He also raised the issue of the cost of the truck wash, which was increased to $1.50 at the July council meeting.

"I had some feedback at Mount Gambier Saleyards last Wednesday, and there were two non-local carriers," Mr Altschwager said.

"They came to me and asked what was happening with the truck wash."

"At $1.50, it was more economical to return to Mount Gambier."

"They are forever washing your truck out - everyone wants a clean truck."

"Personally, I think $1.50 is too expensive and you will deter trucks from coming here."

Speaking outside the meeting, Mr Gower said the council had already implemented many of the things Mr Altschwager had suggested.

"The procedure is if you're going to use saleyards, you need to be a registered user and you need to have gone through an induction with our engineering department to make sure you understand what sections of the yard to use, and all the safety implications of using it because there is a safe work focus on it, or has been in the past," he said. "Once you've been inducted, then if you want to use the yards all you need to do is let us know that you're going in there. This is part of the induction."

"We register that and once you've either dropped or picked your stock up, just quickly fax, scan, email or drop the paperwork in that's got your very basic details on how many stock, who owns them, all that sort of stuff - it's literally a sheet of paper they've already got so that was to keep that very simple."

"Then at the end of the month we'll send you an invoice because there is a fee associated with the transferring of stock and that fee has been in place for over 30 years."

He said those fees had not been collected for many years, as there had been no way of tracking or tracing who was using the yard.

Councillors agreed with Mr Altschwager regarding the truck wash, with Councillor Sharon Cox moving that the price be dropped to $1, which was carried.

"When I moved the motion at the July Meeting that Council increase the fees and charges for use of the truck wash to $1.50 per minute, I made the assumptions on annual increases at our neighbouring Councils, that did not come to fruition," she said.

Mr Gower said the price reduction was a "simple decision".

"There was unanimous agreement to keep the truck wash open in the chamber - all the councillors see the importance of that from a biosecurity point of view," he said.

"We also can actually measure how often it's been used because it's a digital system, there's a tag that is swiped to turn the pumps on so we know who's using it, how often they're using it, how much how long they're using it for all that data is available, we can see it's a service it's been used all the time."

"As a result, the councillors supported to keep that open. The recommendation back when that decision was made in July of this year was to increase the fees to $1 a minute from whatever it was to bring it in line with most of the other average sort of pricing regimes around the district."

"One of our councillors, for whatever reason, bumped that up to $1.50 and that got approved and the truck drivers obviously started squaking that was expensive."

"So that same councillor, which I respect her for doing it, brought that back onto the agenda to correct it and bring it back down to $1."

"So that was a pretty straightforward decision and I think that made a lot of sense."

Girls Shed named after the late Leon Miels

CAROLINE HAMMAT

caroline.hammat@tbwtoday.com.au

A TOUCHING acknowledgement has been made at Millicent North Primary School (MNPS) in memory of popular mentor, Leon Miels, who died in April this year.

Students, family and friends attended the unveiling of the new Leon Miels Girls Shed memorial sign on Friday.

Mr Miels played a crucial role in helping establish the Girl's Shed following the success of the Millicent Mens Shed collaboration with the school's year seven boys.

Several girls at the school expressed an interest in also learning woodworking skills.

From this idea one end of the school's shelter shed was enclosed to create a workshop and the Girl's Shed was formed.

Principal at the time, Graham Slarks, approached Mr Miels about building work benches for the space and from this his involvement grew.

Mr Miels worked alongside School Services Officer (SSO) Sarah Faulkner working on small projects with the students.

Many hours were spent by Mr Miels to plan and construct projects for the girls.

MNPS Deputy principal, Carolyn Rayson, said he taught them far more than just practical woodworking skills.

"Leon took a genuine interest in everybody he came across, it was really lovely and I think our girls got a lot out of that."

"He gave them so much more confidence in themselves, to have someone listen to them and help them."

Although Mr Miels and Ms Faulkner are no longer with the Girls Shed two current SSO's have picked up the tools in their place.

Jackie Sunderland, who has a background in carpentry, and Staci Faulkner continue the program.

Current student Kayleigh Bowering said she had enjoyed working with Jackie and Staci.

Olivia Hales also completed the program this year.

"It was really fun learning different wood-working techniques and how to use the bench drill" she said.

"The electric sanders, they were really good to use"

Mr Miels son, Ben, travelled from Adelaide with his family to attend the event.

"We are very grateful and honoured to have this building named after dad" he said.

"He was very passionate about children and education, particularly in the trades."

"In the world today there is a shortage of those trades so to have something like this facility for young people to learn about the trades is invaluable."

"He would be absolutely delighted that this facility continues to grow from strength to strength, he wouldn't be overly happy about having his name on top of it."

"As you know he was a humble man."

Mr Miels involvement with youth was further enhanced by his long standing involvement and support of Noorla Yo-Long.

FAMILY: Leon Miels' family, Julie Miels, Shae Kenny, Ben and Laura Miels, Alex Wesolowski, Heidi Wesolowski, Tara Bowering, and Isobel and Eva Miels at the unveiling.

CHECK IT OUT: Olivia Hales and Kailee Bowering have enjoyed their involvement with the girl's shed and year five student Lacey Sunderland is looking forward to learning woodworking skills next year.

Officer dies in the line of duty

SOPHIE CONLON

sophie.conlon@btwtoday.com.au

A normal police call out in Senior has ended in tragedy as one officer was fatally shot and another suffered non-life threatening gunshot wounds.

Officer in Charge of the Lucindale Police Station, 53-year-old Brevet Sergeant Jason Doig died on Thursday, November 16, after he was allegedly shot by a 26-year-old Senior man, who was shot by police and suffered serious life-threatening injuries.

Police Commissioner Grant Stevens said three officers were investigating a report of use of a gun involving an animal, and a commissioners enquiry would be conducted to gather the full circumstances of the incident.

"This is an investigation into the death of a police officer, and obviously an incident where police officers have discharged their firearms and critically injured a member of the community," he said.

"Regardless of the circumstances that requires a thorough and detailed investigation, it will be undertaken by Major Crime and forms part of our commissioners inquiry.

Forensic Response attended the scene, which Mr Stevens said would form part of a full investigation.

"There is nothing in the information that we are able to ascertain at this point in time that would have indicated it was a high risk incident," he said.

"You would describe it as one of those jobs that would be part of the daily routine for police officers.

"We're hopeful we'll have an understanding of all the circumstances as the investigation unfolds."

Mr Stevens said when they arrived officers Doig, Michael Hutchinson and Rebekah Cass were confronted by the suspect and he allegedly shot Sgt Doig, who died at the scene.

"The occupant also shot Sergeant Michael Hutchinson who received non-life threatening injuries, and Michael Hutchinson has been conveyed to hospital in Adelaide," he said.

"The third officer, Rebekah Cass was not injured during the incident.

"The 26-year-old man was shot by police and he has also been conveyed to Adelaide and he is under police guard at this time."

The man has since been charged with murder and attempt murder and had a bedside hearing through the Adelaide Magistrates Court on Monday afternoon.

Sgt Doig has been a loved and respected member of the South East community for around 15 years and Mr Stevens offered his condolences to the family.

IN REMEMBRANCE: Sergeant Jason Doig has died after being shot in the line of duty in Senior.

Picture: SUPPLIED

"He is highly respected by his peers in the South East and right across SAPOL, this is a devastating day for South Australian Police," he said.

Mr Stevens also wished Hutchinson a quick recovery from his injuries.

Officers Hutchinson and Cass assisted both Sgt Doig and the suspect while waiting for backup, which Mr Stevens said spoke volumes for their courage and dedication.

"An injured officer stepping in to provide potentially life saving assistance to a colleague and also to the person who is suspected of committing the offence, I think goes to their credit," he said.

This is the first time in more than 20 years a SAPOL officer has died in the line of duty and Mr Stevens said it was a risk of the job.

"This is such a stark reminder of what those risks may result in, and this is a devastating event for the police at Bordertown," he said.

"This is a tragic event that will have wide ranging impacts across so many aspects of our community, not just police, but people who rely on police to provide that safety and security they enjoy in our community."

Police Association of South Australia president Mark Carroll said an incident like this should never had occurred.

"This horror is what all of us in policing live in fear of – it is our dread, that one of us, or one of our workmates, has his or her life taken," he said.

"And for what? For someone to further a crime? To escape justice? To fulfil a misguided hatred?

"Never should a police officer – committed to his duty, his colleagues, and his community – die in circumstances like these."

He said they had been robbed of a son, brother, friend, and workmate who "we all wanted with us for years into the future".

"A man whose company, wisdom, integrity, and expertise we valued and drew on, because he gave them so freely," he said.

Mr Carroll said the union would provide support to Sgt Doig's family and officer Hutchinson and Cass during this time.

"The Police Association represented Jason in life, and we along with his family and workmates and, I hope, the community, will honour him in death," he said.

"And I make crystal clear our intention, as police and as a union, not to allow Jason or his family to be cheated of a scintilla of the justice they're determined to be owed.

"Our full support extends, as well, to Michael Hutchinson and Rebekah Cass and their families.

"Association staff will keep permanent watch on his and Rebekah's progress."

Sgt Doig is survived by his mother and brother, who live in Victoria, and Mr Stevens said he was working with Victorian Police Commissioner Shane Patton to assist them.

Prominent figures speak out following death

PROMINENT South Australian figures have come out and spoken on the death of Brevet Sergeant Jason Doig.

Sgt Doig was shot at a property in Senior, about 17 kilometres from Bordertown.

He and two other local police officers were called to the property following reports of an incident regarding firearms and an animal.

Following his passing, a number of metropolitan-based landmarks lit up in blue this week in memoriam of the sergeant.

A wreath laying even was also held last night by SAPOL at the Lucindale Police Station which remains closed until further notice.

MEMBER FOR BARKER TONY PASIN:

Member for Barker Tony Pasin said the news of the shooting had left him "numb".

"The reality that such an event can, and indeed has, occurred in the South East of South Australia is a difficult one to come to terms with," Mr Pasin said.

"I extend my deepest sympathies to the family of Sgt Doig and to the extended SAPOL community.

"I acknowledge the first responders who attended the scene, including many of Sgt Doig's close colleagues who will be deeply impacted by this experience, an experience that will no doubt stay with them forever."

Mr Pasin said he also extended his thoughts and prayers to Sergeant Michael Hutchinson as he recovered from his injuries and Constable Rebekah Cass who attended in the company of Sgt Doig and Sgt Hutchinson and was party to the traumatic incident.

"Like so many country police officers, Sgt Doig was part of a tight knit community," he said.

"My thoughts are also with all those who knew him and in particular, the tight knit community of Lucindale.

"I urge everyone in the community to look after each other during this time of grief."

PREMIER PETER MALINAUSKAS:

Premier Peter Malinauskas fronted the media following the incident expressing his thoughts for Sgt Doig's family, friends and workmates.

Mr Malinauskas said Sgt Doig put his life on the line and continuously looked out for his community.

"The South East is a proud district and is a community which is close knit," Mr Malinauskas said.

"No doubt that Jason's loss will be significantly felt throughout the whole region as it is throughout the entirety of the state.

"This demonstrates just how dangerous policing work is no matter where you are anywhere in the world and South Australia unfortunately is no exception."

He said Sgt Doig paid the "ultimate, shocking and unacceptable price" for doing his job.

"We should also acknowledge both the suffering and bravery of his colleagues Sergeant Michael Hutchinson and Constable Rebekah Cass," Mr Malinauskas said.

"Every worker deserves the right to come home at the end of the day.

"Let us never forget that our SAPOL officers are prepared to put themselves in harm's way to keep us safe."

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN POLICE COMMISSIONER GRANT STEVENS:

South Australian Police Commissioner Grant Stevens broke the news to the state early Friday in Bordertown following the fatal incident.

Mr Stevens said it was an "incredibly tragic incident" for the South Australian Police and he could "only imagine" what Sgt Doig's family was feeling.

"I can speak on behalf of the police officers here in the South East and the remainder of the police within the South Australia Police and right across Australia," Mr Stevens said.

"The fact that nobody is left untouched by this tragic incident, there would not be one single police officer today who was not thinking about the sacrifice that Jason had made and the risk that is inherent in the role of policing.

"That concern and care extends to family and friends of police officers as well."

Mr Stevens said he could only imagine during the early hours of the morning of the incident, the number of people who were wondering and waiting to hear whether it was someone they cared about.

"I can only offer my most sincere condolences to Jason's family and we are all hoping Michael recovers quickly from his injuries," he said.

"Jason was the officer in charge of Lucindale Police Station not too far from here and he has been a member of the South East community for over 15 years and is highly respected.

"He spent a lot of time at Bordertown and Naracoorte as a relieving sergeant and was highly respected by his peers in the South East and right across SAPOL so this is a devastating day for South Australian police."

Officer an ‘incredible man who loved his job’

MINISTER FOR POLICE JOE SZAKACS:
Minister for Police Joe Szakacs has labelled last Friday as a “sad day” which was “shocking” for everyone.

Mr Szakacs said from the early morning of Friday through the evening he had remained in close contact with the police commissioner as the incident unfolded.

He said during a press conference last week he had the chance to speak with a number of people who worked with Sgt Doig with all members of the public labelling the late police officer as an “incredible man who loved his job”.

“He loved what it meant to be a country cop and he served with the most extraordinary pride in the service to his local community of Lucindale but also the broader South East community,” Mr Szakacs said.

“Nothing demonstrates that services that Jason gave us than his loss of life in the early hours of the morning some kilometres away from his home in support and in service to that broader South East community.”

He said it was safe to say Sgt Doig would be “extraordinarily missed”.

Mr Szakacs also travelled to Lucindale following the event to lay flowers at the local police station.

MEMBER FOR MACKILLOP NICK MCBRIDE:
Member for MacKillop Nick McBride has said he was “very saddened” to learn about the fatal shooting of Sgt Doig as well as the injury of Sgt Hutchinson.

“I knew Jason personally - he was a well-respected and diligent police officer who had been based in Lucindale for many years,” Mr McBride said.

“Jason was heavily involved in the community and known by so many for his commitment to his profession.

“He wore his uniform with pride and I know locals in Lucindale will be both very shocked and upset to hear this news.”

Mr McBride said the incident would have a “huge impact on the entire South East” with police officers in regional areas building close relationships with a “wide cross section” of the community.

“I also know that the events that unfolded at Senior will have heavily impacted Constable Cass who was also at the scene,” Mr McBride said.

“My thoughts go out to her and her SAPOL colleagues at this extremely difficult time.

“Many people will require support following this tragedy and I urge anyone who needs assistance in their grief to reach out and seek help if required.”

LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION DAVID SPEIRS:
Leader of the Opposition David Speirs took to social media to express his condolences of Sgt Doig.

In a social media post, Mr Speirs said there were “few words which adequately described” the tragic death.

“All I can say is that we are grateful for his lifelong service in our state’s police force and devastated for his family and friends left behind,” Mr Speirs said.

“Thank you Sgt Doig for your service and for your ultimate sacrifice in your efforts to keep our community safe.

“I also want to pay tribute to Constable Cass and Sgt Michael Hutchinson for their brave and courageous efforts to help Sgt

NARACOORTE LUCINDALE MAYOR PATRICK ROSS:
Naracoorte Lucindale Mayor Patrick Ross extended his condolences to the broader community after knowing Sgt Doig personally.

“Jason was a strange cat in the nicest possible way as a term of endearment and beyond that he was a kind and gentle member of the community,” Mr Ross said.

“People in emergency services when they go to work or go on call expect to come home at the end of the shift.

“Their community expects them to come home too and the mantra of all of us who work in emergency services is to come home safely.”

Mr Ross said it was important for the community to keep in contact with one another and those closest to them while ensuring they speak about everything which has happened.

THE Wattle Range Council ratepayers may be footing the bill for a new car for chief executive Ben Gower, despite his current vehicle being less than four months old.

The electric vehicle - a GT-Line 2WD EV6 - was purchased in November 2022 and arrived in August 2023.

In those three months, the vehicle has travelled more than 8000 kilometres and has been driven to Adelaide and back several times.

It is currently waiting for repairs after it struck a kangaroo during one of these trips.

Speaking at the meeting, Mr Gower said a lack of fast charging meant he had to carefully plan his trips, even locally, with a full charge taking up to 32 hours in some cases. However he said he was happy to keep the vehicle.

At the council meeting last week, councillor Dale Price raised concerns about the vehicle, describing the car as a "lemon" multiple times.

"I believe that we just call it quits, review it sometime in the future - maybe there will be improvement and be fast chargers in the future - but at the moment we have a lemon."

He moved a motion that council dispose of the CEO's car and buy a more practical model, which was seconded but failed to be carried.

Councillor Peter Dunncliff moved that the CEO investigate the viability and financial cost of disposal of his current Electric Vehicle for a more suitable Hybrid Vehicle and report back to council with those figures.

This recommendation was passed.

Speaking outside the meeting, Mr Gower reaffirmed that he was "more than happy" with the vehicle.

"The whole reason we got the vehicle was to see whether it's fit for purpose for regional Australia, and to learn what infrastructure we need to consider putting in or advocating private investment to put in to future proof us," he said.

"It's a lovely car to drive and it's cheap."

"There are exemptions around stamp duty, it's fringe benefits tax free because of the government incentives."

"Its fuel costs are about a quarter of the diesel that I was putting in the car I had before to operate it per kilometre travelled - it's about 25 per cent of the fuel costs."

"The maintenance costs are significantly reduced."

"There's no oil change required. It uses electric motors that do 80 per cent of the braking, so the brakes last five times longer."

"It's quite cost effective but it's not quite ready for regional Australia."

He said there had been some stress in planning out longer trips.

"The car has some limitations," he said.

"We deliberately chose a long range one, and we're only getting comfortably 300 and something kilometres out of it before you're in serious trouble."

"This is not like running out of petrol and you just put a jerry can of fuel in the back - If you run out somewhere on a highway, you're getting towed, it's the only option."

"There's a term with electric vehicle drivers called range anxiety and it's quite real."

He said there had been significant investment in electrical vehicle infrastructure in the regional areas, and was hopeful it would improve in the coming years.

Sharing the dignity this season as demand rises

MELANIE RILEY

IN its ninth year, the Share the Dignity It's in the Bag appeal has started this November.

The charity is seeing an increase in demand from their charity partners and unfortunately due to the cost of living, the requests may be harder to fulfil this year.

Share the Dignity founder and managing director Rochelle Courtenay said she was hopeful donations would increase after being significantly impacted over the past three years.

"Each year thousands of women and girls are waking up on Christmas morning in domestic violence refuges and homeless shelters. For many, an It's in the Bag might be the only gift they receive for Christmas," she said.

"For the past three years, we have received on average 30,000 fewer bags compared to pre-covid numbers."

"It breaks my heart to think 30,000 vulnerable women and girls aren't receiving an It's in the Bag donation and are instead going without basic essentials like period products, a toothbrush and soap."

The Its in the Bag appeal supports women and girls spending Christmas in domestic violence refuges, homeless shelters, or living in poverty.

The initiative encourages people to pay it forward by filling a bag with essential toiletry items.

There are now three bags that people can put together: an adult bag, teen bag and a mum and bub bag.

A toothbrush, toothpaste, shampoo, conditioner, soap or body wash, roll-on-deodorant, and period products are necessary items for all bags, with optional extras like lip balm, socks or a handwritten note for an extra touch.

ITS IN THE BAG: Share the Dignity volunteer Nicole Milosevic and Bunnings staff member Grace Davis with some donated bags.

The teen and mum and bub bags are slightly different, and require additional products.

All bags donated at the Mount Gambier/Berrin Bunnings store will be passed onto Foodbank, Red Cross and the Melaleuca Hub to then be distributed locally.

Local volunteer Nicole Milosevic said that the It's in the Bag appeal is particularly close to her heart.

"As someone who directly experienced domestic violence and had wonderful family and friends for support, it breaks my heart to think that women and children who are leaving an unsafe situation have no one to turn to," she said.

"This charity is important to support as just one bag has the power to give someone fleeing domestic violence or experiencing homelessness a little bit of love, a bit of hope, and the dignity they deserve."

If somebody is not in the position to donate but would still like to help, the Mount Gambier/Berrin Bunnings store has a folder attached to the box for people to leave messages to be included in the bags.

There is also the option to sponsor a bag already filled with essentials on both the Share the Dignity and Bunnings websites.

Bags filled with essentials can be dropped off at any Bunnings store nationwide from now until Sunday November 26.

For more information on what to include in a bag, a list is available on the Share the Dignity website.

Two dead following collision

A Victorian couple has died and a 21-year-old Padthaway man has been charged with allegedly causing death by dangerous driving on two counts following a crash in Willalooka.

About 9.40am on Saturday, November 18, emergency services were called to the intersection of Riddoch Highway and Mcgrice Road, Willalooka, after reports a Toyota ute and a Ford Territory had collided.

Two people in the Ford, a 77-year-old man (driver) and a 65-year-old woman, both from Victoria, died at the scene.

The alleged driver of the Toyota, a 21-year-old Padthaway man, was taken to the Mount Gambier Hospital with serious injuries.

On Monday, November 20, Major Crash officers arrested the Padthaway man and charged him with two counts of causing death by dangerous driving.

He was granted bail to appear in Naracorte Magistrates Court on January 24.

The couple were the 99th and 100th lives lost on South Australian roads this year compared to 61 at the same time last year.

Kingston airstrip works facing more delays

TYLER REDWAY

WORKS to the Kingston SE airstrip were delayed for the second time this year, closing to all aircraft including the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

The works included resealing and line marking, which could not move ahead due to the minimum temperature falling below the required 20 degrees Celsius.

Repairs were originally planned for April 2023, but were delayed to November due to the temperature being too cold for contractors to lay spray seal.

Kingston District Council chief executive Nat Traeger said although the Kingston airstrip was closed to all aircraft, an exception could be made for transport such as medivac helicopters.

Ms Traeger said the next closest airstrip available for all aircraft was Naracoorte.

"Strong winds affected the application rate this time around, then it rained, so [we] can't spray seal on the wet road, [we] also need a ground temperature minimum of 25 degrees," Ms Traeger said.

Ms Traeger said when the works move forward, they would take four days if there were no further delays or complications.

The closure lasted until Monday November 20 and reopened the following day on November 21.

Millicent locals jumping for joy with time for a dive

WATTLE Range Council will dive right into repairs to the Millicent Swimming Lake, which will keep it open this summer.

The lake will be open from December 16 to January 29.

At the monthly council meeting last week, councillors had to decide whether or not to close the lake for the entirety of the 2023/24 summer period, or reopen the lake on a reduced timeframe, to allow for the emptying and drying out of the lake.

Councillors voted to support the inclusion in the detailed design for the various options to improve the Millicent Swimming Lake with the costs being brought back to a future meeting once costs are determined and to direct the CEO to open the Millicent Swimming Lake to the public between the 16 December 2023 and 29 January 2024.

Earlier this year, major issues with the lake including large leaks were discovered, which will require major work to rectify.

Director of engineering services Peter Halton has previously said these works can only be done while the lake is empty and dry, meaning the work must be done in the warmer months.

Thirteen year old Chad Cockrum, with his mum Tamara, spoke to the council at the meeting on the importance of the lake to Millicent.

"What I love most about summer is the Millicent Swimming Lake," Chad said.

"Last summer we spent a lot of time at the Swimming Lake."

He said some of his fondest memories involved the Swimming Lake and spending time with his family and friends there.

"I hope our councillors really think about our community and really think about opening the lake this summer," he said.

Think about it they did, and after a robust discussion, councillors voted to keep the lake open between December 16 and January 29.

Mrs Cockrum told the councillors that opening the lake was a "no brainer."

"I'm standing here to represent not only my family but Millicent as a whole as a community," she said.

SWIMMING: Chad Cockrum is keen to get into the Swimming Lake this summer.

"My objective is to reach out to each and every one and consider that if there is an opportunity, even for a little bit, to open the swimming lake this summer, that you will consider it.

"I am supportive of the maintenance of this fantastic facility so we can have it for years to come.

"A lot of people will really miss it if it's not open this summer."

Councillor Peter Dunncliff said that everyone in Millicent wanted to see the lake reopened for summer.

"Not a person in this chamber who doesn't want the swimming lake open full time," he said.

"It's a brilliant attraction for Millicent.

"When something breaks you've got to fix it and you've got to fix it properly.

"I feel sorry for anyone who can't use it, so I want people to understand that the council is desperately keen to keep it open and fix it properly."

Chief executive officer Ben Gower said he was pleased that the lake will be open over summer.

"I'm glad the decision was made and everybody knows where we're heading," he said.

"We've got to get busy patching and filling that lake now and I expect probably three to four weeks before we're ready to go, just about the time school holidays kicks in."

The council will now go to tender for the work, which will be considered at a future meeting.

EDITORIAL

LAST week was a dark week for the South East, and for South Australia as a whole.

Lives were taken, and destroyed.

The death of Brevet sergeant Jason Doig was felt right across the country, as we all read with horror about what unfolded.

Then two lives were lost and a young man's life destroyed in a split second in a car crash at Willalooka.

Communities are in mourning and lives have been torn apart.

My heart goes out especially to the dedicated police officers who risk their lives every day to keep our communities safe.

Everyone should be safe at work.

Everyone should be able to go home to their family each day.

Everyone should be safe driving on our roads.

Our thoughts are with the family, friends and communities of those that have had their lives changed forever this weekend.

If anyone is struggling with their mental health after these incidents, I urge you to call Lifeline on 13 11 14.

Council expresses an interest in land sale

GRANT District Council will put in an expression of interest to purchase a vacant lot of land from the Department of Environment and Water.

Discussed at this week's general meeting, elected members decided to write back to the department and put in its expression of interest while also requesting an extension of time to allow for a workshop to be held.

According to a council report, the land - located on Bishop Road - is about 57 hectares with council's work manager determining there is no council infrastructure currently over the land.

The parcel of land is not currently used for a government purpose and has a site value of $910,000.

The report stated discussions with a local real estate agent indicated that farming or industrial land is generally achieving a sale price of around $16,000-$20,000 per hectare.

Councillor Barry Kuhl said during the meeting it would be beneficial to put in an expression of interest yet requested a further workshop around the idea.

He said if council bought the parcel of land it would be able to control what happened to it in the future.

Christian comment

MUCH of the agricultural community has embarked on harvest for 2023 or will be commencing harvest very soon.

With that comes the reaping and collecting of that which was sown six or seven months ago- most likely with some sort of multiplying of the seed sown.

Since the planting of the seed, much growth has taken place, care has been given to the crops and rain and sunshine has been required in order for the crops to thrive and produce a harvest.

St Paul in his second letter to the Corinthians uses an agricultural image when describing the way God works in people's lives.

Because God works through people, their acts of love and their efforts will prosper because he loves the creation he made which includes us humans and wants to see it thrive and prosper. This is very similar to the fruits/seeds of the lands where the Lord God has provided the soil, nourishment for the plants and favourable weather conditions... all so the crops will thrive and multiply.

'Now may He who supplies seed to the sower, and bread for food, supply and multiply the seed you have sown and increase the fruits of your righteousness.' (2 Corinthians 9:10)

Be reassured that the Lord God has already provided everything you need in order for your life to thrive.

The Lord God is the giver of all wonderful gifts whether it be the seed, soil, and favourable weather in the agricultural sector, or gifting you his love, mercy and compassion in your personal lives.

Council cleared in probe

tyler.redway@tbwtoday.com.au

THE District Council of Robe has been cleared by the Ombudsman after complaints were made to the Office of Public Integrity (OPI).

A letter from the South Australian Ombudsman was tabled at a recent council meeting, after the state's watchdog received a referral from the Office of Public Integrity, in regards to the council's use and management of Casuarina Lodge, as the complainant made four statements on the matter.

The complaints alleged a unit was being leased to a council staff member who "bypassed a list of 10 people", and that the council had engaged "unnecessarily" with Elders Real Estate to manage the units.

An official letter - signed by SA Ombudsman Wayne Lines - was sent to former acting council chief executive officer Deb Brokenshire, which concluded Mr Lines' findings and dismissed the possibility of further action needing to be taken.

Mr Lines stated further investigation was unlikely to collect sufficient information in order to back evidence of maladministration on council's behalf.

Within the letter, it was revealed the council employee in question was director of infrastructure Robert Moir.

It was alleged the unit was being leased contrary to its actual purpose of independent retirement living and that Mr Moir allegedly bypassed the unit's waitlist.

Additionally, the complainant believed the council had "unnecessarily engaged" with Elders Real Estate, who managed the lodge at the time, in order to take on the management of the lodge.

The complainant further alleged the interaction may have been to make Mr Moir's transition to the unit from his previous rental less complicated.

It was noted Mr Moir's previous rental property was also managed by Elders.

On March 10, Mr Lines submitted a letter of enquiry in regards to the allegations, which received a response from the council's executive assistant Molly Murdock.

In the response, Ms Murdock stated the units were never designated as independent retirement living and were instead used as a residential space.

It was also stated in the response the "waitlist" was developed as a way to keep track of people who wished to be notified if a unit was made available.

With the introduction of Elders' management, applicants were then required to submit applications in order to be considered eligible for a unit.

Mr Lines said in his letter the leasing of one of the units to Mr Moir was "reasonably open" considering the given circumstances, which involved Mr Moir making an official application which was accepted by the former chief executive at the time James Holyman.

He said he did not believe the units were maintained in a way which suggested they were used exclusively for independent retirement living.

"The units do not appear to have been maintained as formal retirement living and there has never been an eligibility criterion for living in the units," Mr Lines said in the letter.

"I also agree that the waitlist appears to have been an informal way of recording those interested if a unit became available.

"I do not consider this to be a matter that amounts to a substantial mismanagement of public resources."

Mr Lines said the appropriate steps were taken when the District Council of Robe contracted Elders to manage the property, as the council did not have the skills or qualifications to be able to take full responsibility of management.

Acting Robe District Council chief executive Pauline Koritsa said the current council did not have a "thorough understanding" on the matter as it was something which previous council members had dealt with.

Ms Koritsa said it was also unknown by the current council how the waitlist was bypassed in the first place.

"Given this was a previous matter being dealt with by the previous council, it was also embargoed by the Ombudsman so there was no real way this current council could be briefed on this matter until such a time where the Ombudsman could release the report," Ms Koritsa said.

"Accommodation is a big issue in Robe, there are so many Airbnbs which makes it difficult to find a long term rental and the cost of purchasing a house is quite high in Robe.

"I can understand why the council would want to look at the provision of accommodation for an executive level director to ensure they had the best person for the job."

Ms Koritsa said the units were not being used as independent retirement living, as there would need to be legislation needing to be approved by the state or federal government or both for them to fill the role.

She also said she didn't know what would have given the complainant this impression of the unit's roles.

Ms Koritsa said Mr Moir's tenancy for the unit had expired on November 21, and she had instructed agents not to issue a new agreement to Mr Moir.

"I understand he [Mr Moir] wasn't a Robe local and this was a way of providing accommodation to him during his tenure," she said.

"At this point, there is no evidence that it was ever designated as independent living.

"I don't know what may have given the complainant that impression, the letter from the Ombudsman doesn't indicate anything either."

Ms Koritsa said it would be in the council's best interest to consider new management strategies for new tenants of the units.

She said it would be a topic of further discussion with the new chief executive once they began their work in Robe.

"In the Ombudsman's report, he talked about how there wasn't a criteria for determining tenants for Casuarina Lodge but I am of the view that it would be in Council's best interest to look at this as an issue and work through a criteria in which applications can be assessed," she said.

Communities grieve

sophie.conlon@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Tatiara community was rocked by tragedy with the death of a police sergeant and a double road fatality in the district last week.

Tatiara District Council mayor Liz Goossens said the community woke with disbelief on Friday, November 17, to discover Lucindale Brevet Sergeant Jason Doig had been killed in the line of duty at Senior overnight.

"We still don't know the circumstances or the details, but we certainly grieve for Jason's family and friends," she said.

"We feel for the first responders who assisted at the scene, it shows tremendous courage and we grieve with them and wish them a good recovery."

The Thursday evening incident saw a 26-year-old Senior man allergy fatally shoot Sgt Doig and wound Bordertown Sergeant Michael Hutchinson.

The man has since been charged with murder and attempt murder.

Police commissioner Grant Stevens visited Bordertown in relation to the shooting on Friday morning, and while not occurring in the district, his 18-year-old sustained serious injuries in a hit and run that evening and died on Saturday, November 18.

Ms Goossens said the Tatiara community "might not have personally known him, but we felt we knew him".

"Him being here Friday and then going back to Adelaide and having to deal with the enormous, tremendous grief, we feel for him and his family."

Then on Saturday a Victorian couple died in a car crash in Willalooka when their Toyota and a Ford collided.

The driver of the Ford, a 21-year-old Padthaway man, has since been charged with allegedly causing death by dangerous driving on two counts.

Ms Goossens said the crash hit home how much first responders were relied on.

"Yet again our first responders have had to go down there and deal with horrific circumstances, what they are I don't know, but we feel for them and it must take a toll on them," she said.

"We all grieve for everybody," she said.

These deaths were the 99th and 100th lives lost on South Australian roads and Ms Goossens said the high death toll was a great concern across the state.

TRAGEDY: Police Commissioner Grant Stevens.

"I am not sure what else we can do," she said.

"It can happen anywhere, on any road, so people need to be more vigilante, stop and think and be a bit safer."

Not aware of the circumstances in either incident, Ms Goossens said two young people's lives had been forever changed.

"Young people's lives have been effected for the rest of their lives now," she said.

"They've now got to live with the consequences of that."

Ms Goossens said the community would now have to pull together to support everyone in the coming weeks.

"We are here as a community to support all our first responders and volunteers that go down with the paramedics and police," she said.

"We really can't thank them enough, all the men and women in uniform really for the service they give our community, it shows tremendous courage.

"We desperately need those people around to protect us and our community and we

While Ms Goossens said the community would rally together, she was not sure what would come at it next.

"I think to a degree people just can't comprehend what's going on, it is so out of the normal for us," she said.

Fire danger concerns aired at meeting

WIRREGA WOMEN IN BUSINESS AND AGRICULTURE

AT our October meeting for Wirrega Women in Business and Agriculture concern was expressed about the volume of high growing vegetation and fire danger along our main roads, especially in and amongst the traffic guards.

As we are approaching a predicted High Fire Danger season, many land holders have taken care to provide fire breaks and mow vegetation in their paddocks.

Our branch members have noticed the high growth of the vegetation along the roads and feel this is putting our district into unnecessary danger.

Vegetation is found between the guards at the side of roads, where it is not possible to mow. Food Bank is our WAB State Project for 2023-24 and we were provided with several short film clips about the use of extra unsalable foods and groceries, which unfortunately may have gone to waste and landfill.

Many children and families are helped with breakfasts before school and foods from the warehouse at much lower prices.

Sometimes people are put in the position to choose between food or pay for electricity or fuel. Next meeting is on Wednesday, November 22, at 8pm, in the CWA Room, Scott Street, Bordertown.

Our guest speaker will be Helen Lutt with information and pictures about her time spent at Farina in far north of SA.

New members are always welcome, phone Josie Arney 0482 459 032

Our Christmas break-up meeting will be lunch at 12pm at Henry and Rose Cafe in Keith on Friday, December 8, for a get together with our Keith members.

Hemp's a winner

sophie.conlon@tbwtoday.com.au

BORDERTOWN'S Good Country Hemp was the only Limestone Coast business to come away from the 2023 Premier's Food and Beverage Awards with a win.

Owned by husband and wife team Mick and Linda Andersen, Good Country Hemp took out the New Product Award for businesses with up to 15 full time staff, with their new hemp oil and hemp and turmeric capsules.

Ms Andersen said the idea for capsules came about when they were looking for alternatives for people who did not like taking hemp oil on a spoon.

She said people often took hemp oil as it contained Omega's 3, 6 and 9, essential fatty acids, anti-oxidants, zinc, iron and magnesium and had anti-inflammatory qualities.

"So as that alternative we offered it as a capsule form for those people who don't like the taste or prefer to have something easy to travel with," she said.

With the capsules available in roadhouses, chemists, supermarkets and health food stores Ms Andersen said they had proved popular with customers.

Ms Andersen said it was rewarding to know they sat among some of the best food and beverages businesses in the state.

"It makes all the work that you do worthwhile because every day just seems to be more of a norm," she said.

"But when you go away and you win something like this, it makes you realise that you're doing something special.

"It gives you that motivation to go back and do better."

She said having the Premier's Food and Beverage Award winner title would provide good brand credibility as they looked to expand.

"I think having the award logo to say that

WINNER WINNER: Good Country Hemp owners Mick and Linda Andersen and Foodland general manager marketing Danielle Watts.
Picture: SUPPLIED/ BEN MACMAHON

we're winners on our website and literature is quite a good creditability to have when we go into larger customers, and especially when we're going Australia wide, trying to sell more bulk and having large companies coming to us," she said.

"It's not important, but it's a great benefit of being an award winner."

Another benefit of winning the Foodland sponsored award was the offer to expand their range on the supermarkets shelves and a place in its brochures.

South Australia's food and beverage industry is the state's largest manufacturing sector and premier Peter Malinauskas said it generated more than $21.8 billion in gross food revenue including $12.7 billion in retail and food service sales in 2021/22.

"These awards are about recognising this important sector, which delivers jobs and drives strong regional economies," he said.

Digital stat decs

AUTHORISED persons signing statutory declarations and affidavits in South Australia will be able to utilise electronic signing and remote witnessing, under proposed changes to the Oaths Act.

Permanently allowing for the electronic signing of statutory declarations and affidavits would build on temporary changes made during COVID-19 that provided for witnessing of affidavits to occur remotely by audio-visual link.

South Australian attorney-general, Kyam Maher said regional residents found it hard to find a Justice of the Peace.

"It's often easier for South Australians living in metropolitan areas to find the legal practitioners or trusted persons needed to witness signings of affidavits or statutory declarations.

"However, for people in regional and remote areas it can be a time consuming and costly task.

"The proposed changes will make this process easier, with important safeguards in place, which will benefit businesses and individuals alike."

Expanding the change to statutory declarations and making it permanent will align South Australia with other jurisdictions and save people time and costs potentially involved in travelling to meet with authorised witnesses in person.

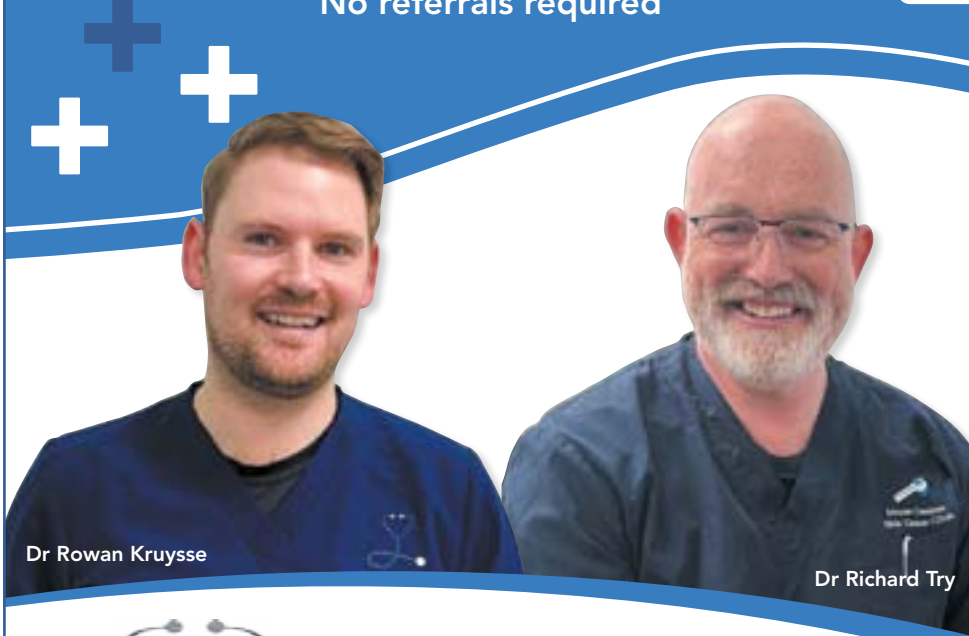

The change will also help those living in regional and remote areas where there is limited access to lawyers and trusted persons who are eligible to sign and witness statutory declarations and affidavits.

Consultation on the proposed changes is expected later this year.

Council to manage institute

SOPHIE CONLON
sophie.conlon@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Tatiara District Council has voted to take over the management of the Keith Institute after a motion was brought forward by councillor Miles Hannemann.

Cr Hannemann said many Keith residents had come to him concerned about the condition of the building and he suggested council take over the general running and maintenance.

“I spoke to our CEO, and not in disrespect to the committee that’s been there, but we thought there may be a different way of looking after the institute,” he said.

He suggested council host twice yearly meetings with user groups to ascertain maintenance requirements and future use and replace the previous committee, which had not met for about five years.

Council’s director corporate and community services Kingsley Green said the move was about connecting with the community, who could advise council on what was required.

“We need to make sure that we don’t miss the opportunity to engage with these groups,” he said.

Speaking to SA Today after the meeting, council’s chief executive Anne Champness said the institute was previously controlled by a section 41 committee, but the move would allow a broader group of people to provide direction and ideas around what was needed at the institute.

“Committees obviously have a limited number of members, whereas if you say we’ll have this meeting twice a year, you can bring a larger group of people together and gather ideas,” she said.

“I think that was quite useful in looking at the future direction of the facility and what the best use of council funds is for any work that’s done, rather than having a group that meets every couple of months and looks at smaller maintenance issues.”

Ms Champness said this would also take the pressure off the need for volunteers.

“We know that volunteering is quite hard... so if we can reduce that work on volunteers from having regular committee meetings and just say come in and tell us what’s needed I think it will make that easier as well,” she said.

A bit of Christmas cheer comes to parklands

caroline.hammat@tbwtoday.com.au

CHRISTMAS in the park is on again this year with the Millicent Combined Churches (MCC) hosting a fair and activities on Saturday, December 16.

Held in the Rotunda parklands, the fair opens at 11am with market stalls and family fun activities throughout the day.

For the second time the annual Millicent’s Got Talent contest will be taking place with community members encouraged to register on the day for their chance to shine. In the afternoon musicians from Adelaide group Ngoma will be providing entertainment.

MCC president Shaun Mulick said Ngoma means rhythm and dance in Swahili, and they have a number of displaced refugees from all walks of life. “There are a lot of African cultures and influences, they are underpinning the whole performance.”

SANTA TIME: Gretchen Semler and Lucy Daniels at last year’s Christmas in the park meet and greet with Santa Claus.

The popular nativity play will take place from 3pm and the carols, which replaces the former Carols in the Shearing Shed, will follow.

At 5pm the evening will wind down but not before an expected visit from Santa Claus.

RETURN: The popular nativity play will once again take place in Millicent’s rotunda parkland.

Late night Christmas buying

SOPHIE CONLON

sophie.conlon@tbwtoday.com.au

THERE will be an extra opportunity to shop local in Penola next week as the town is set to come alive for a Christmas Late Night Shopping event.

Organised by the Riddoch Business and Community Association, president Emma Castine said Wednesday, November 29, would be the perfect time to get the last minute shopping done and catch up with friends before the holiday period really sets in.

As well as the usual favourites staying open to 8pm, Ms Castine said there would market stalls, food and wine.

"It is not just the shops that will be open, we've got some pretty amazing stalls from around the region for something unusual and special," she said.

Ms Castine said the event would be relaxed and community minded and offer great deals for shoppers.

"We'll have the usual- shop at three shops and that puts you in the raffle, the raffle prizes are really going to be worth winning, because they're going to be vouchers for all the stores throughout town," she said.

"Most of the shops have got up to 20 per cent and more off on the night."

Ms Castine said these offers were generous.

"They're not just staying open and paying the staff, but they're trying to give you a bit of a reason to shop that night rather than the next day," she said.

"We're doing our best to make sure people shop local."

She encouraged everyone to come down to the town square and enjoy the evening.

"Come to the town square, there will be food and drinks and music playing and it will be great," she said.

"Hopefully it's just got a really nice energy and we have a nice, safe, happy night."

Sudden resignation: Neagle quits council

CAROLINE HAMMAT

caroline.hammat@tbwtoday.com.au

AFTER five years as a councillor on the Wattle Range Council Moira Neagle has resigned 12 months into her second term.

The Corcoran Ward councillor spent three years during her first term as deputy mayor.

Following last Tuesday's council meeting Ms Neagle sent a brief email to mayor Des Noll and her fellow councillors to inform them of her decision.

WRC CEO Ben Gower said a formal report advising of the resignation would be presented at December's council meeting.

The electoral commissioner will be advised of the resignation and they will determine the process needed to fill the vacancy.

"It is deemed to be a casual vacancy under the act and we are right on the cusp of 12 months after the election," Mr Gower said.

"We are not sure how the electoral commissioner will handle it.

"Whether we go to a supplementary election, whether there is a count back, the electoral commissioner will make that decision.

"We sincerely wish her all the best and thank her for five years of service to the community.

"She's been very passionate for the things she has advocated for."

During the 2022 local government election six candidates contested five vacancies for Wattle Range Council's Corcoran Ward.

Lee Morgan missed a position on the council after preferences were counted but has expressed no interest in joining the council if a count back was held.

"I'm so glad not to be involved," Mr Morgan said.

"Everyone's had the chance and I have reservations how the council's being managed.

"It's very liberating to not be involved.

"I'm certainly enjoying life as it is."

QUIT: Moira Neagle, who recently announced her resignation from council, with her dog Toby.

Visit a hit

EIGHT members of the Lochaber WAB visited the beautiful garden of Jackie Lueth at Benayeo near Frances which was established thirteen years ago from a paddock.

We received a noisy welcome from a group of guinea fowl.

The lush green lawns are bordered by a well built stone wall behind which are different beds of colourful flowering plants shaded by pretty English trees.

The garden has been a setting for a number of weddings.

All watering is done by movable sprinklers.

Garden features of a gate, fences and bed head add interest interspersed with many varieties of flowering roses.

Ms Lueth demonstrated how to arrange native flowers in a bunch which she purchases to use in floral arrangements for weddings and other occasions.

Members walked with Ms Lueth to a very picturesque spot past a lake dotted with shady gum trees to an area of Australian and South African native shrubs planted by Jackie two years ago after increased demand for more flowers.

MANY gathered in Penola on Sunday to celebrate the official opening of the George the Farmer concept store.

The Penola-based children's entertainment opened its official store which was donned with educational books, toys and more.

Throughout the day, children had the opportunity to participate in a range of different activities such as spot the difference, potato digging and riding toy tractors.

Upon completion of the activities the children then received a sticker and once collecting all stickers received a free gift.

Alongside the activities there were animals and face painting available as well as food and beverage vans.

Wattle Range Council mayor Des Noll officially opened the store saying many across the nation would now know George the Farmer called Penola home.

"It has been great to see the families come through and be engaged with the animals and all the activities," Mr Noll said.

"Coming from a rural background from a young child I have had the privilege of having a family who were involved in sheep and weatfarmng so I could really connect with what Simone is doing here."

George the Farmer creator Simone Kain said she was overwhelmed by the response of the opening and the support.

"I did not know what to expect but this exceeded my expectations and we had people travel from Portland and other areas.

"I had a vision when we first started that I would get here but this was a milestone I wanted to reach so it is exciting to be here today."

Ms Kain said the feedback was fantastic and it was a "beautiful vibe" for the free family fun day.

ARTWORK from around 40 Grant High School students is on display at the Riddoch Arts and Cultural Centre, giving them a real world learning experience.

The exhibition opened on Friday, November 10, with art on display from stage two visual art, design, textiles, media studies and photography students and catering and entertainment organised by stage one students.

Art teacher Pariya Ziakas said the public exhibition was about exposing the students to authentic experiences and encouraged people to check it out.

“Come along and see, these are high school students creating high calibre work,” she said.

“There is such a variety of work that has been created, there’s two dimensional works, there’s three dimensional works, there’s the textiles,” she said.

Ms Ziakas said there was artwork on display from future famed artist and and the exhibition was a great way to celebrate them and their hard work.

The exhibition will be open at the Riddoch Arts and Cultural Centre until Sunday, December 3.

Wrestling's back on

PROFESSIONAL wrestling will return to Mount Gambier/Berrin next month with a night of entertainment courtesy of Riot City Wrestling.

The Adelaide-based wrestling company will feature local and international talent including the return of local brothers Nick and Travis Cleves who go by ring names Nick and Jett Armstrong.

Originally from Mount Gambier/Berrin the two brothers moved to Adelaide to pursue their wrestling dreams and are looking forward to returning to showcase their skills in front of their hometown.

Another local talent, Rocco Reid, is set to make his Mount Gambier/Berrin debut and although he is only new to professional wrestling, he is excited to perform in front of his family and friends.

"We're absolutely thrilled to be performing in Mount Gambier again after all these years," Mr Cleves said.

"The whole Riot City Wrestling roster is extremely excited, but it'll be extra special for me and Nick to be able to show the town the kind of talent Mount Gambier can produce.

"The last time we had a show like this was back in 2007 and we've loved coming down for the New Year's Eve festival, but this show at the Wulanda Centre will be another level for us."

Mr Cleves said performers were ready to "blow the roof off" the centre and put on a show which would be "talked about for years".

Tickets are now available online with general admission starting at $29 for adults and $15 for children under 15 years of age.

The event is all ages and is set to be at the Wulanda Recreation Centre on December 30.

Exhibition draws a crowd

PENNY Bayley has taken out Best in Exhibition at the Keith Art Group's annual exhibition for her watercolour, Summer in the Hills.

There were at least 80 community members at the opening on Friday, November 17, with the exhibition continuing 1pm on Thursday, November 23.

The exhibition at the Keith Memorial Hall was opened by new Life Member Carolyn Bullen.

Her life membership was awarded earlier this year at the Walkway Gallery South Australian Living Artists Festival (SALA) event.

New member Sue Stopp was the winner of the Encouragement Award and the Packing Room Prize was awarded to Robynne Jaeschke, for her watercolour painting Tatiara Gold.

A People's Choice will also be awarded once the show finishes.

Each award had a prize of $100, with $300 donated by Bendigo Bank and the rest by Art to Art Adelaide.

Art work was displayed in the hall's front foyer by Ms Bullen and Pam Cameron, who was awarded life membership 2022.

The exhibition displayed 99 Art works covering many types of media including, acrylic, watercolours, resin, plaster work and mixed media.

The subject matter was varied with abstract, portraiture, landscape and seascape works on display.

There was a display of portraiture paintings completed by the group under the guidance of Ron Penrose.

Nine members attended the workshop and the art work consisted of acrylic painting using a palette knife and three colours with amazing results.

The group has more than 20 members, with a catchment area including Adelaide, Bordertown, Robe, Port Jaffa, Murray Bridge, Tintinara, Willalooka and Keith.

The age span of the group is from 30 to over 90 years, it is open to the community and has day session on the second and fourth Thursday of each month.

Meetings can include visits from out-of-town tutors and there is formal tutoring sessions from within the group.

There is also a night group which meet on the fourth Thursday if the month.

This an attempt to attract younger people, some who may be working during the day.

They are fun sessions with the aim to be able to walk away with a finished art work.

If you are interested in becoming involved with the group contact president Robynne Jaeschke 0428 842 783 or secretary Di Holland 0448 886 777

Explore Keith

RECOGNISED as the “gateway to the South East and Limestone Coast”, Keith was proclaimed in 1889 with agriculture as its base.

Keith is also recognised as the “lucerne capital of Australia” with its distinctive purple paddocks.

Early Settler's Cottage

Built by William Davis in 1894, the cottage is constructed of local limestone and consists of a small four-roomed limestone rubble cottage with a low-pitched iron roof and two massive fireplaces at one end, standing on one of the suburban allotments surveyed around Keith. The cottage has been bought by the National Trust and now operates as a house museum.

Davis Cottage is of heritage value as a relic of early agricultural settlement in the Tatiara. Emu Flat Road, phone (08) 8755 1118 or 0408 149 005 by appointment only.

Don Moseley Park

Don Moseley Memorial Playground is on Heritage Street.

Modern toilets are located here as well as a new sport and recreation centre alongside the football oval.

Enjoy the mural painted by local artists, cook on the BBQ, or sit in the heritage rotunda and watch the children playing in the playground or riding on the ever popular monorail train.

Keith Water Feature

Local artist James Darling created “Circle-work” to celebrate the cycle of water through the Australian landscape with particular reference to the region's high table and extensive irrigation industry.

A poignant reminder of how important all forms of water are to this area.

Andy Caldecott Memorial

Andy Caldecott (1964-2006) was an off-road motorcycle racer born in Keith.

He won the Australian Safari Rally four times consecutively (2000-2003) and was a competitor in the Dakar Rally in 2004 (DNF), 2005 (6th) and 2006.

In 2015 Andy was inducted into the Motorcycling SA Hall of Fame.

During the 2006 Dakar Rally he won the third stage, but later died from a neck injury suffered when crashing during the ninth stage.

Prior to his death he had operated a motorcycle shop in Keith. A memorial for the late Andy Caldecott can be found opposite Don Moseley Park Tourism Hotspot.

Land Rover on a Pole

In the 1950s, the AMP Insurance Company funded the development of vast areas of bushland into farmland, resulting in a large period of growth for Keith.

The AMP Memorial to this land development scheme consists of a Land Rover on a pole and one of the original Wiles Huts.

The Wiles Hut is one of about 50 occupied by workers on the scheme and was made of two prefabricated steel motor garages built by the Wiles Industrial Company of Mile End, and the early Land Rover was essential to off-road travel.

The memorial was erected in 1995.

Give to Kmart Wishing Tree

CHARLOTTE VARCOE
charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

KMART officially opened its Wishing Tree last week with employees encouraging the community to dig deep this festive season.

Each year the Wishing Tree collects toys and donations which are then distributed by the Salvation Army to those in need.

Last year, the Mount Gambier Kmart store collected 378 gifts for the local community.

Store manager Brett Hosking said this year the store was aiming to collect 450 gifts to further help the community as the cost of living crisis continues.

“With the tough cost of living at the moment, anything we can do to help those who are less fortunate is always going to be a good thing for Mount Gambier and the community,” Mr Hosking said.

“We are hoping we can reach our target of 450 gifts which is more than last year and we have partnered with the Salvation Army who will distribute it to people who need it.”

He said as the store began getting busy leading into the festive season, people were able to donate through monetary donations online or in store or leave a gift under the tree.

“We do not hear who receives the gifts but we know they are out there and I am sure they appreciate what Kmart and the Salvation Army do,” Mr Hosking said.

“We all encourage the community to stay safe, enjoy themselves and if they can please give to the Wishing Tree appeal because it does go to people who need it.”

Mount Gambier Salvation Army corps leader Tim Frost said the charity always appreciated the donated gifts.

“We would struggle to be able to provide any toys had it not been for the Wishing Tree because every year the generosity is enormous,” Mr Frost said.

“Even though people are doing it tough they are wanting to see others in the community are looked after and it is a generous spirit.

“It is really good to see it happening in the community.”

Those wishing to give to the appeal can do so by placing an unwrapped, new gift under the tree, scan the QR code and make an online contribution, place any spare change in the collection tins at the service desks or click the Wishing Tree on any self serve register.

Demand increases for Salvos’ food hampers

charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

MOUNT Gambier’s Salvation Army has reached more than 90 registrations for its food hampers despite being a month away from Christmas.

This year the charity has experienced an increase in registrations of those needing support leading into the festive season with 93 registrations recorded last week.

This is compared to about 60 the previous year with corps leader Tim Frost putting the callout to the community.

“With the price of everything going up, a lot of families are buying essentials and are not thinking about special things like gifts for their children or partners,” Mr Frost said.

“Last year we did not open registrations until near the end of November but this year we have had so many people asking we opened it early.”

Despite it not being a concern for Mr Frost, he said with the Mayor’s Christmas Appeal funding, the Kmart Wishing Tree gifts and vouchers, families would be well covered.

Alongside the donations for gifts, Mr Frost said the Salvation Army was also requesting non-perishable food donations which would be done through a ‘reverse advent calendar’.

“Normally an advent calendar is something you open each day and you get something out of it,” Mr Frost said.

“A reverse calendar you put something back so people are able to put things in a hamper of non-perishable goods such as rice, pasta or cereal and even Christmas items.”

He said the initiative may help those who wanted to donate but did not know which toys to buy an opportunity to still help.

“People can come to our services and put the items into the box and what we will do is closer to Christmas time we will distribute the gifts,” Mr Frost said.

“People will then come in and select toys and get a hamper and we can also use the non-perishable items for gifts as well.”

Items able to be donated include:

- Canned fruit
- Canned vegetables
- Canned meals
- Soups
- Dried fruit and nuts
- Crackers or biscuits
- Long life milk
- Juice
- Tea, coffee or Milo
- Spreads
- Rice, pasta and noodles
- Pasta sauce
- Cereal
- Muesli bars
- Shampoo and conditioner
- Soap and deodorant
- Toothpaste and toothbrushes
- Tissues and toilet paper
- Treat foods such as chips or chocolates
- Christmas items

Donations must be dropped off before the middle of December at either the Salvation Army Thrift Store or the Salvation Army corps office.

GIVING THIS CHRISTMAS: Mount Gambier Salvation Army corps officer Tim Frost is encouraging the community to come together and give this festive season.

Supporting families in need

CHARLOTTE VARCOE
charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

LOCAL charities are the focus of this year's BIG W Giving Tree with the local community able to donate to ac.care.

The BIG W Giving Tree gives community members an opportunity to donate to those in need by placing an unwrapped gift under the tree. The gifts will then be distributed by ac.care staff to those in need.

BIG W store manager Kim Coulson said taking part in the initiative was an opportunity for the Mount Gambier/Berrin team and customers to come together and support families in need.

"Our goal is to help as many local families have a wonderful Christmas this year," Ms Coulson said.

"Last year we were able to generously distribute 10,000 gifts nationwide to a cross section of charities and we're hoping to go above and beyond this Christmas to help bring joy to families in need.

"In the spirit of Christmas, the Giving Tree is a great way for our BIG W store teams, customers and local charity partners to come together to donate gifts and support local families who may have had a tough year."

She said while Christmas was often a joyful time, staff at BIG W understood the festive season could also be stressful.

"At BIG W we are dedicated to supporting Australian families and making a real difference in times of need," Ms Coulson said.

"As we head into the festive season, the Giving Tree will lend a hand to families needing a little extra support this Christmas.

"We are so grateful for the generosity of people in our community who have been in a position to give, extending their gifting list to one extra person in need."

She said Christmas was a special time for families and called on the community to place an unwrapped gift under the tree. ac.care homelessness services manager Trish Spark said the Giving Tree was always fantastic with the service often getting a positive response.

"A lot of customers provide stuff for us and even the staff put in and do something too," Ms Spark said.

"I know the staff like the charities to be local so it has been really good previously and it is great to have bigger companies like BIG W to help."

Spreading festive cheer

CHARLOTTE VARCOE
charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

COMMUNITY members from across the Limestone Coast are being given the opportunity to give back this festive season.

ac.care's Christmas Cheer program has officially launched with an expected increase in people needing financial assistance this season.

ac.care homelessness services manager Trish Spark said registrations have opened for singles, couples and families in need.

She said the centre was able to purchase vouchers thanks to the Mayor's Christmas Appeal which helped those in need purchase Christmas items and food.

"We also get a lot of toys donated from different areas and lots of businesses in town make Christmas trees for us each year," Ms Spark said.

"We pack up the toys in Christmas bags prior to our hand out day which will be on December 21.

"We have a barbeque and people around the office dress up and people come in and we hand out their vouchers and gifts."

She said the response from the community for the Christmas Cheer program was always amazing and those receiving the gifts were always grateful.

"We are expecting more people to register but we did get more funds from the Christmas Appeal so hopefully we can help the extra people," Ms Spark said.

"We find that people are really generous at Christmas and sometimes there are aged groups, especially teenagers, that we do not have much for but if we put the word out there people do come and help.

"If we are finding we are a bit short it is typically for teenagers and people can buy vouchers or experiences for them which always works."

She said the Mount Gambier/Berrin community was very generous which typically doubled during the Christmas period.

"A number of businesses in town have been talking to our marketing team to see how they can help," she said.

Donations or vouchers are able to be dropped off at the ac.care community centre.

Get your bathroom sparkling

WHETHER you have designed your own bathroom or it came with the house the way it is, after any decent usage time every bathroom gets a bit tired looking and has a little smell here or there - despite regular cleaning.

However, treating it with some clever cleaning hacks can alleviate even the most annoying of common bathroom blemishes.

We have asked the experts at Highgrove Bathrooms and compiled a list of quick and easy bathroom cleaning hacks that keep your bathroom looking great without costing the world or harming the environment.

The Vanity & Basin

Being feature items of any bathroom and often the most notable, here are three ways to keep it looking great. Use a mix of vinegar and dishwashing liquid, either mixed in a bowl or mixed in a spray bottle, use a soft sponge, you will be amazed about the cleanliness and shine. Use a soft-head sponge dishwashing brush for harder-to-clean stains such as dried-up toothpaste, bottle rings, and such...

Use some fresh-cut lemon or lime on the drain and tap if the chrome starts to look blemished or tired, it works just as well as a chemical cleaner and is way better for the environment.

These hacks work just as well on the basin as on the vanity top, even if they are stone, tile or masonry. And, you won't damage any finish with harsh chemicals either.

The Shower

Definitely, one of the more demanding places to clean and also rather visually obvious when the screens start looking milky and blind, the tiles flat, and the shower head chalked up. And, sadly, it doesn't take too long to happen.

For the shower head, simply fill a small plastic bag half with white vinegar and ½ a cup of baking soda, slip it over the shower head, and secure it with a rubber band or cable tie so it is submerged. Leave overnight and rinse the next day. All those chalk marks, and blemishes even from inside the head will flush right out and away.

For the shower screen, either use a sponge dishwashing brush with dish soap and run over the tiles and glass screens, or use a strong vinegar and dish soap solution on a soft scourer sponge and do the old wax-on-wax-off motion. You'll be surprised by the shine and your karate moves.

For rather hardy stains on the shower screen, the experts at Highgrove Bathrooms were undecided about which is the better, but both work amazingly. Either fresh-cut lemon or lime and swirl and scrub away, or leave it to soak first. Then rinse well.

Or,...

Get the trusted can of WD-40 from the garage or car boot and be blown away by how easily soap scum and water stains disappear with just a spray and a light scrub.

These two also work wonders on chrome taps, drains, showers, and all the other shiny bits in your bathroom too.

And, to give your shower screen a lasting shine and to repel water, get a dishwasher tablet (please wear gloves for this one) and apply it straight to the screen. Alternatively, wipe it over with a generous helping of Finish dishwasher dry rinse on a wet sponge, both will give your clean shower screens that new look, and water will literally just pearl off.

To maintain it for longer, it's best to squeegee after each shower which stops those water marks from setting in too quickly.

The Toilet

Well, absolutely not the favourite spot to clean for most, but often the one we judge ourselves most on, or are judged on. The age-old vinegar and baking soda soak trick does amazing here too.

For more difficult stains, surprise-surprise, use either a can of Coke or a generous squirt of tomato sauce. Then give it a good scrub with either the brush or a (designated) scouring sponge. Then let it soak for a bit and rinse well.

Again, as unconventional as it may seem, they do really work.

And, if a subtle pee smell develops in your loo, try a pet odour spray with enzymes, these love to feed on any spillage that may have been caught in the grout around the porcelain thrown. It may take a few applications and let sit, but can really change the scent in the toilet and bathroom. Come to the toilet brush, soaking it from time to time in the vinegar/baking soda mix is beneficial, then flushing it thoroughly.

And, adding a splash of vinegar or bleach to the bottom of the brush holder stops odours, but you probably knew that one already.

The Tiles

One school of thought says, to use multi-purpose or kitchen spray 'n' wipe, the other swears by water, vinegar, and a couple of big drops of dish soap. Apply by sponge or spray bottle and go for it. If you like the bouquet of eucalyptus, add a couple of drops of water-soluble Eucalyptus oil to the mix.

It cuts through any smell, disinfects surfaces wherever you spray it, and adds a fresh and clean smell, plus it cloaks the distinct vinegar scent. You can also add it to the earlier suggested blends above.

The Mirror

A bowl of hot water with a splash of methylated spirits and newspaper to dry it off with will cut through water splash marks, toothpaste sprinkles, and oily fingerprints in a breeze. And, it doesn't cost the world, nor is it too harsh on the mirror surface.

Plus, it leaves a streak-free shine - second to none.

All these hacks are proven and tested, cost very little, and are gentle on the environment.

ROCK on the Rails attracted more than 300 people on Saturday for an afternoon and evening of live and local music.

The weather was perfect for the outdoor event hosted by Millicent's community radio station 5the FM at the rear of the station.

Plans are underway to make the event annual and seed funding secured from Wattle Range Council will help support the concert financially over three years.

Six live acts took to the back of a truck from 2pm to perform with the final band, Oath, ending the evening at 9.30pm.

With extensive broadcasting upgrades underway at the radio station the concert was able to be live streamed and broadcast live through the station's listening area.

ROCK ON: Brendon Hoffmann, Marion Grgetic and Ken Lane soaking up the sun and the music.

Landscape inspires works

IN the midst of our modern chaos and ever-present evidence of division and chaos, two artists have come together to present an exhibition titled 'You and I are Earth', opening at Karatta Wine Room and Gallery on Saturday 2 December.

Suzie Riley and Brioni Pridham are drawing on inspiration from their earliest childhood: the inspiration of the landscape of the South-East and the Coorong.

Ms Riley said she always loved this coast, spending every summer in Robe all of her life.

"The colours of the earth, the sea and all the coastal plants have left an imprint that has become part of my subconscious language," she said.

"When I draw on this vocabulary it gives me a sense of ease and familiarity.

"I am simply in love with it, so much that we decided to move here."

For Ms Riley, peace is found in the untouched landscape.

"The purity of organic, irregular shapes and patterns is what interests me and the colours I love best are the transparent earth colours, that same earth that grows the garden.

"This is where I belong".

This is expressed by Ms Riley in her layered approach to artmaking.

Her early use of pastels as a wet medium helped her to understand the relationship between colour and tone, and this has evolved to her initial use of layers of transparent paint that are built up with calligraphic line.

These are overlaid with thick impasto oil using palette knife and brush to find the underlying rhythm in the landscape.

"I just try to paint a better painting every time," Ms Riley said.

She shares this love of the local environment with ceramicist Brioni Pridham, in what is her debut exhibition.

"At the same time as learning ceramic techniques," Ms Pridham said.

"What has come out is a palette and forms that relate to where I live".

This includes early years around Bool Lagoon and Frances, moderated by her many years of experience teaching children in kindergarten.

This work gave the artist a gift of observing the ways in which communication emerges in very young children:

a gift that Ms Pridham manifests in her mark making and colour choices in particular.

"This is where liveliness and imagination is stirred up".

The forms of Pridham's ceramic art act as a foil to this liveliness, drawing on influences from Korean and Japanese moon jar pottery as well as the round-bellied form of the Mother: forms that are intended by the artist to bring a sense of calm, centredness and steadiness in the viewer.

Suzie Riley and Brioni Pridham are delighted to share their talent with audiences in the South-East.

For further information, please contact Karatta Wine Room and Gallery at 5 Victoria Street, Robe, or telephone 08 8768 2608.

NEW EXHIBITION: Suzie Riley will join with Brioni Pridham in a new exhibition.

RFDS gives a second chance

CAROLINE HAMMAT

A LOCAL fundraiser put a twist on the traditional fashion parade last week as items sourced from two of Millicent’s opportunity shops were on display.

To the delight of onlookers Wattle Range Council Mayor Des Noll and Mayoress Shari Noll took to the catwalk along with eight others, including two teenagers.

Held in the Millicent Gallery, 85 guests enjoyed the Second Chance Fashion Parade hosted by Millicent Royal Flying Doctors Service members.

Val Hunt, Sharon Hyland and Lorraine Hunt put their heads together earlier this year and planned the fundraiser which used only clothes available from Wilma’s Walnut Shop and the Millicent Adventist Community Op Shop.

Almost 60 outfits were modelled with several items purchased by onlookers during the day.

Organisers were thrilled with the results and had to bring in extra chairs for guests when numbers exceeded expectations.

“We thought the models did a fantastic job, especially the two young ones,” Val Hunt said.

“We sincerely thank Wendy Thomson and the library volunteers for their help because our volunteer numbers are small, it was greatly appreciated.”

Alongside the mayor and his wife other models were Chad Cockrum, Gemma Salotti, Jay Watson, Lorraine Hyland, Tracie Duldig, Scott Duncan, Ros Haines and Cheryle Luxford-Melling.

Backstage at the event are models Mayor Noll, Ros Haines and MC Wendy Thomson.

YOUR WEEKLY TV GUIDE

THE FRONT BAR
Seven, Thursday, 8.30pm

Whether you're an AFL addict, a soccer fan, spend your summer obsessing over cricket, or don't really align yourself with any sport, we can all agree that the jocular, chatty chemistry on this panel show kicks goals. Reliable straight man Andy Maher, big kid at heart Mick Molloy and the delightfully deadpan Sam Pang (pictured, from left) love the AFL and have finessed their pub-style, laid-back banter that scores big belly laughs. In this special, the sports tragics take a hilarious gander at this year's sporting highs and lows. Expect an eagle eye on the inane moments behind the scenes and in front of the cameras. Next week, it's a cricket-themed extravaganza ahead of the Test Series and Women's Big Bash League finals.

IN THE SPIRIT WITH LINDSAY AND CURTIS
SBS Food, Sunday, 6pm

"We're gonna get a little silly," promises Aussie chef Curtis Stone in this syrupy American festive cooking series. Stone and his actress wife Lindsay Price (both pictured) host their celebrity friends in a beautifully set home for a spot of cooking and chat across six episodes that explore holiday traditions and dishes. Taking in Christmas, Hanukkah, Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve, upcoming episodes feature Joel McHale, Tori Spelling and Jennie Garth, and Jenna Fischer. Tonight, actress Kelly Hu (Arrow) shares her New Year's Day traditions.

PICK OF THE WEEK

ALL CREATURES
GREAT AND SMALL
ABC TV, Saturday, 7.30pm

Sheep grazing on verdant rolling hills. Warm and comical characters. Gorgeous costuming featuring dresses and suits and more than a little tweed. Plus, a generous smattering of horses, pigs, cats and cows. There's a lot to love about this wholesome British series based on vet James Herriot's memoirs about country life. In this third season, premiering tonight, there's a touch of sombreness as WWII looms on the horizon, but there's still the call of the wild – and the pub – keeping the show's soothing and cosy tone. Tonight, James (Nicholas Ralph) and Helen's (Rachel Shenton) long-awaited wedding day arrives. Of course, there's complications and a boozy bachelor party before the couple say "I do".

The big day:
James (Nicholas Ralph) and Helen (Rachel Shenton) tie the knot.

WHAT'S
BOX?

MY LIFE IS MURDER
10, Wednesday, 8.30pm

The magnetic Lucy Lawless and the bright and stylish surrounds of Auckland render this a marvellously upbeat, colourful murder mystery series. Add in witty protagonist and crime-solver Alexa Crowe's (Lawless) side hustle as a bread baker, and you have the recipe for a truly cosy and warm crime caper. Featuring a new face in IT whiz Beth (Tatum Warren-Ngata) and the rustic attraction of Virgin River's Martin Henderson (pictured with Lawless) as Alexa's brother Will, season three's quirky cases of bloodshed are all kinds of amiable. Tonight, in "The Village", a lively retirement village is rocked by a death, but it's Will's worrying involvement with the victims that hits close to home for Alexa.

PEUGEOT 2008 GT IN FOCUS

BY CHRIS RILEY,
MARQUE MOTORING

IN the absence of the 208 hatch, the 2008 has become by default the baby of the Peugeot range.

But it's a baby that the French company can justifiably be proud of, at once stylish, fun to drive and technologically advanced. Even better, it uses very little fuel.

What's not to like? Read on.

STYLING

The 2008 is a genuine work of automotive art. The detail that has gone into the design is amazing with a black roof, concave radiator grille, sculpted front fascia and sharp plunging LED lights.

Look closely and you will see even the surface of the doors has been pinched together to form three different opposing planes.

Peugeot has rationalised the 2008 small SUV range with the launch of its first ever, fully-electric passenger model, the $60,000 e-2008.

The GT Sport has been culled, with the entry Allure grade now starting from $38,945, the GT from $43,397 and the e-2008 from $59,990, all before on-road costs.

Until recently the GT Sport sat $4000 above the GT, with more power, more gears and more equipment.

But the story doesn't end there, because some equipment has also been removed from the GT and is now available only with the e-2008, no doubt to make it a more attractive proposition.

At the top of that list is satellite navigation, previously standard.

You can of course use your mobile phone along with Apple CarPlay or Android Auto for the purposes of navigation, but that doesn't always work well, especially without phone reception.

In our case, it's a moot point, because Android Auto simply refused to connect anyway.

A factory reset of the car was necessary.

The 10-inch touchscreen has also been downsized to the smaller 7-inch unit from Allure and a smaller screen means a smaller camera which by the way is terrible at night.

You can re-add satnav and a larger screen, but it will cost $1990 as part of the Tech Pack.

Single zone climate air remains, but Alcantara replaces the previous fabric trim along with a different coloured stitching, with real leather for the steering wheel and transmission lever.

We've asked Peugeot for a full list of the changes.

Be that as it may, the 2008 remains an attractive package, with a comprehensive list of safety features.

There are 17-inch alloys, two-tone paint, full privacy glass, keyless entry and start, walk-away locking, electric parking brake, LED head and daytime running lights, the former with auto high beam, 180 degree reversing camera with overhead view, auto lights and wipers, front and rear parking sensors and a frameless auto dimming rear view mirror.

Inside, you'll find Peugeot's signature 3D i-Cockpit instrument panel, aluminium pedals, LED lighting, eight-colour ambient lighting, 7-inch colour infotainment touchscreen and the aforementioned Alcantara with green-coloured stitching.

The front seats are heated with power adjustment for the driver seat, which includes lumbar and massage (all previously part of an option pack).

A sunroof adds $1990.

2008 comes with a 5-year unlimited kilometre warranty, 5-year roadside assistance and 5-year fixed price servicing.

Service is required every 15,000km or 12 months and averages $494 per year over five years.

TEST DRIVE: The 2008 is a genuine work of automotive art.

INFOTAINMENT

Infotainment consists of a 7-inch touchscreen with six-speaker audio, Bluetooth, voice recognition for phone and radio, FM/DAB+ digital radio, wired Apple CarPlay and Android Auto and a wireless charge pad.

There's a USB-A and USB-C socket in the front, two USB-A sockets in the rear and a 12-volt outlet.

ENGINES / TRANSMISSIONS

It's powered by a 1.2-litre, turbocharged, three-cylinder PureTech 130 engine that produces 96kW of power at 5500 rpm and 230Nm of torque at 1750 rpm.

It is paired with an Aisin six-speed Efficient Automatic Transmission (EAT6) with drive to the front wheels, plus snow, sand and mud drive modes from which to choose.

SAFETY

Five-star safety consists of six airbags, a rear-view camera, autonomous emergency braking and advanced grip control with snow, sand and mud modes.

There's also driver attention alert, forward collision warning, blind spot warning, lane departure warning, lane keeping assistance, in-crash braking, auto hazard light activation and tyre pressure monitoring.

Missing is rear cross traffic alert and the camera as mentioned does not encompass a full 360 degrees.

Two ISOFIX child seat anchors along with three top tethers are provided.

DRIVING

Built on the Common Modular Platform (CMP) the second generation 2008 is 4300mm long with a 2605mm wheelbase and weighs 1247kg.

It seats five, but realistically has room for two adults in the back, with limited legroom and even less space for feet.

A larger than expected boot holds 434 litres with the back seat raised, and an impressive 1467 litres with the seats dropped.

The 2008 features the latest-generation 3D i-Cockpit complete with configurable head-up 3D instrument panel display, high definition colour touchscreen and compact multi-function steering wheel.

Suspension is pseudo MacPherson struts at front with a deformable cross member at the rear, and it rides on 17-inch wheels with 215/60 series rubber, and it has a space saver in the boot.

With a 44-litre tank, it takes 95 premium unleaded, uses a claimed 6.5L/100km of fuel and produces 148g/km of CO2.

While the 1.2-litre engine may sound tiny, the 2008 is actually quite zippy and fun to drive, and can easily hold its own in traffic.

ROAD TEST: Peugeot 2008 . . . the devil is in the detail.

Top speed is 199km/h and the dash from 0-100km/h takes 9.3 seconds, which is three tenths slower than the e-2008.

But both are slower than the GT Sport which was good for 8.7 seconds.

Again, with more power and torque (114kW/240Nm), Peugeot wouldn't want the Sport overshadowing the performance of the e-2008.

Ride quality is generally good, but reveals a lack of local tuning as it deteriorates quickly on country roads, with small irregularities generating too much jitter or jarring that can be felt in the cabin.

There's also a little bit of hop and bounce as the wagon becomes unsettled at speed.

Overtaking requires planning and plenty of room before contemplating.

Handling however is excellent as are the brakes and steering.

The car points exactly where you want it and it turns into corners eagerly.

We didn't have occasion to use any of the snow, sand or mud modes, but spent a bit of time on dirt roads where the 2008 seemed more than happy apart from the jiggly ride.

The 3D i-Cockpit allows drivers to choose between six individual instrument panel modes, including two personalised options, but only one includes a tachometer.

And, to be honest, we're a little over the i-Cockpit with its elevated instrument cluster and tiny steering wheel.

For marginal gains at best, it makes getting in and out of the car more difficult than it should be.

The steering wheel needs to be set high to provide room for thighs when getting into the car, then needs to be dropped so the top of the steering wheel does not obscure the instrument panel, particularly the digital speedometer - in any mode.

It might work for slim young things, but not for full-figured Aussie adults.

The height of the instrument panel is at best a few centimetres higher than a standard setup and the driver still needs to drop their eyes to see it.

In fact, if you add in time spent trying to avoid the steering wheel - and it actually takes eyes away from the road for longer.

Get rid of it.

SUMMING UP

The 2008 is an easy car to live with.

We just don't like the cynical way Peugeot has rejigged the line up to make way for the expensive electric variant.

We're basically being asked to pay the same price for the GT as we once did for the GT Sport - but with less power and less equipment.

It's okay to price your cars up, but please don't spec them down.

GEMINI
(May 21 - Jun 21)

Full moons tend to bring completions or turning points, so if you've been waiting on news, the annual Gemini full moon on 27 November in your sign could bring a clear sign or answer. And Mercury's placement recommends having that air-clearing talk now, before the season of unreason sets in.

Best day:
Monday 27 November

CANCER
(Jun 22 - Jul 22)

For you lunar creatures, the articulate full moon on 27 November, in the sign of kindred spirits, shines on interactions in your local neighbourhood. Full moons often highlight where people's paths are diverging, so if your heart's no longer in this or that, be honest and make the break.

Best day:
Wednesday 29 November

LEO
(Jul 23 - Aug 23)

The dominant celestial energies at this week's negotiating table could seem unreasonably urgent, so if someone's behaving like a ticking time bomb (hopefully not you), don't force issues. Give them space. Dial down the drama. Don't overpromise or assume anything. Try not to let minor mistakes escalate into deal-breakers.

Best day:
Saturday 2 December

LIBRA
(Sep 23 - Oct 23)

Seeing both sides of any equation can complicate decision-making for Librans. As your prima planet Venus tugs you between head and heart this week, you already know the answer's a balance of both. Get done as much as you can this week while Venus in Libra has charm on your side.

Best day:
Tuesday 28 November

VIRGO
(Aug 24 - Sep 22)

Master strategist Mercury, your ruling planet, in the sign of executive organisation for the first half of December, has you zipping along blissfully in top gear planning the final act of the year. Service is Virgo's love language, and your practical magic makes a crucial contribution to this week's merry mayhem.

Best day:
Thursday 30 November

SCORPIO
(Oct 24 - Nov 22)

Action master Mars, behaving like a runaway train while Mercury's in stubborn mode, could have you looking for the emergency exit this week. But calm down. Relax. Be patient. Splitting hairs is wasted energy, so just retain what's sane. Channel vixen Venus in glamourpuss mode: dress up, enjoy the social whirl.

Best day:
Wednesday 29 November

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov 23 - Dec 21)

This week's combustible combination of Sun and Mars in your vibrant sign fires up tremendous end-of-year momentum and a dynamic energy boost for organising festive game plans. Its renegade energies are right up your boulevard, though a note to self to try and not break the bank won't go astray.

Best day:
Friday 1 December

CAPRICORN
(Dec 22 - Jan 20)

Continuing all through the first fortnight of December, Mercury in your sign offers an excellent executive assist, which savvy Capricorns will take full advantage of to lock in holiday plans, bookings and activities before the silicate planet's midmonth reversal rachets up seasonal pressures and tension.

Best day:
Sunday 26 November

AQUARIUS
(Jan 21 - Feb 18)

Aquarians are the zodiac's premier exponents of communitas, or group flow, and this week's in need of your expertise. Your signature blend of the experimental and sensible is essential for the creative pivots required when expectations go haywire - although it is advisable to wait until asked before offering them.

Best day:
Tuesday 28 November

PISCES
(Feb 19 - Mar 20)

With nebulous Neptune approaching the end of its long retrograde in Pisces, life comes more clearly into focus. Refreshed from the oceanic planet's cycle of soul-searching with new clarity and realisations, it will be easier to practise not being overwhelmed by the annual anniversary whirl.

Best day:
Thursday 30 November

This property is well located in the reliable Keith area approximately 23.5kms north of Keith.

A reasonable percentage of the property is suitable for a cropping program to produce good yields of cereals, legumes and oil seeds. Approx. 900+ acres have had the benefit of clay spreading.

The irrigation area is located at the northern end of the block, not that far from the homestead. This comprises a Centre Pivot circle of 165 acres approx. with a 9 span RainCat centre pivot. Included in the sale is a 738 meg water licence, with good quality water.

“Tamboore” boast’s a good mix of several soil types which enables a mix of crops, fodder and pasture plants to be grown providing year-round quality feed. The productive pastures have a healthy blend of lucerne, clovers and grasses.

Nutrien Harcourts rural real estate specialist Geoff Watts has said he has received good interest from a broad range of potential buyers, due to its diversity and capacity for growth.

“The irrigation licence and infrastructure are a feature of this property” Mr Watts said. “Tamboore” includes a 4-bedroom homestead, a 3 stand wool shed, new steel sheep yards, steel cattle yards along with other handy shedding for your convenience.

Extensive sized properties offering such an opportunity for growth like this one, do not come around often. ●

DIVE INTO AN OUTDOOR SHOWER

OUTDOOR showers are feature most gardens should try to incorporate – especially if you live near the beach or have a pool, according to creative director and co-founder of Landart, Matt Leacy.

“From a practical point of view outdoor showers are ideal for rinsing off after a swim in the pool, as well as for washing salt and sand off before heading indoors after being at the beach. Even if you’re just rinsing your feet and legs it really helps to keep sand out of your house,” said Matt.

“They’re also great for rinsing off surfboards and dogs! And moving away from the practical benefits, who doesn’t love to shower in the outdoors? It’s often the best thing about rooms or villas at a tropical resort to have a beautifully designed outdoor shower – and there’s no reason why this can’t be replicated in your own backyard.”

Matt’s key tips for creating an outdoor shower are:

- Location – Location and privacy is everything if you’d like to use your shower for day-to-day showering and not just rinsing off when you have your swimmers on. Rendered, timber or stone walls can provide privacy – and attaching your shower as an extension to your house if you’re wanting to use it for actual shower is the best way to create a private area. If you can access via your existing bathroom or a bedroom is ideal.
- Materials – You need to ensure you choose tapware and finishes that are rated for outdoor use. Indoor tapware won’t stand the constant exposure to the elements. Finishes like bronze, copper and brass are great choices. Copper in particular has been very popular in outdoor showers we’ve created and it ages beautifully in the weather giving the tapware a lovely patina.

- Drainage and plumbing – Particularly if you’re going to use soaps and shampoos in your shower you need to ensure that your shower is connected to the sewer.

If you would like to access to a warm shower rather than just something with cold water that’s more suited to rinsing off in the summer sun or cooling off after a jog you’ll need it to connect to your water heater.

- Other features – You might also want to consider bench seating or built in shelves for towels to dry off and other bathroom items. Any storage solutions will need to be watertight and suitable for outdoor use. ●

Naracoorte bowls action

ALL of the Naracoorte RSL Bowling Club's pennant games were played against Naracoorte last week.

Firstly the ladies played at Naracoorte in the 2nd division on Friday.

Robyn Hansen, Linda Prentice, Maree Neilson and Sandra Green took on Pauline May's rink and did have a substantial lead at the eleventh end, but Naracoorte put on some good numbers in the four ends before lunch and went in two shots up.

The afternoon saw the game fairly well even, and with scores even going into the last end, Naracoorte RSL managed to pick up a three to win 25 shots to 22.

Lindy and Jodie Mark, Josie McGrath and Joan Hurn had a great day against Heather Whithead's side and won easily with 34 shots to 14.

Final score Naracoorte RSL 59 shots 8 points defeated Naracoorte 36 shots .

Both Saturday divisions were played at the RSL and both had wins.

David O'Shaughnessy, Greg Mark, Linda Prentice and Jodie Mark had a real tussle against Peter Marshall all day, but after a great last end finished with 30 shots to 19.

Ryan O'Shaughnessy, Geoff Hurn, Dean Cassolato and Lindy Mark started well down against Ian Williams, but after jaggging a seven on the seventh end they proceeded to win end s and went in to smoko two shots up.

From there, they increased their lead and went on to win 35 shots to 24. Graham East, Chris Castine, Rohan Burke and Jeff East were down early and were even at the break with Tom Williams.

Naracoorte came out and won the next four ends to get in front by six, but East and team kept at them and after several dead ends, they only went down 20 shots to 21.

Final score Naracoorte RSL 85 shots 10 points defeated Naracoorte 65 shots two points.

Division three had a win in all rinks. Brett Hill, Joan Hurn, Kristy Hill and Ollie Homan dominated for most of the day against Doc Johnson and had a big win with 30 shots to 9.

Allan Brody, Justin Redding, Rick Petrie and Helen Brody played Howard McCourt's rink and had a nice win of 30 shots to 14.

Lou Hirschmann, Paul Neilson, Lachy MacDonald and Steve Hansen won 25 shots to 15 against Ken Grundy.

Final scores Naracoorte RSL 85 shots 12 points defeated Naracoorte 38 points.

Productivity key in carbon

IN findings that could have a profound impact on the understanding of how farmers approach carbon management, research funded by AgriFutures Australia has found they are less motivated by the allure of carbon credits than the improvement to farm productivity that comes from increasing soil organic carbon.

The finding challenges the notion that carbon credit income has been a primary motivator and was one of the many insights that flowed from the $2m Carbon Initiative Program, which funded 15 research projects across the country to examine barriers to carbon farming and identify practical solutions.

AgriFutures Australia general manager, Rural Futures, Michael Beer, said with more than half the land mass managed by farmers, Australia was in a unique position to sequester carbon in soils and vegetation, and avoid or reduce greenhouse gas emissions through established or novel management practices.

“What the research from the Carbon Initiative Program projects has told us is there are number of factors including perceived complexity and risk, the cost of soil sampling, not knowing which information to trust, and how information is communicated.

“Multiple research projects have found that farmers are more interested in carbon farming when they know that increasing soil organic carbon has an impact on farm productivity. The potential to earn carbon credits is really just a co-benefit. This is an important message for decision makers and policymakers. So too is the importance of improving knowledge in what is a complex space and having the tools to assess risk.”

Some of the key outcomes and insights from the Carbon Initiative Program include:

Farmers are hungry for knowledge. Lime-stone Coast Landscape Board has developed educational resources and even done free soil carbon measurements for some producers, after finding farmers in the SA region are keen to learn more about carbon farming but not sure who to trust.

Confusion abounds. The Australian Farm Institute described the carbon market as a “confusopoly” for farmers so has developed an online decision-making tool to help weigh up the risks and benefits of different carbon farming options.

Economic sustainability is critical. Wimmera Development Association conducted interviews across the region and found little interest in carbon farming where the primary purpose was reducing emissions, with adoption instead driven by the search for increased productivity and profitability.

Soil health trumps carbon credits. In interviews conducted by University of Technology

RESEARCH: AgriFutures Australia general manager, Rural Futures, Michael Beer, said with more than half the land mass managed by farmers, Australia was in a unique position to sequester carbon in soils and vegetation, and avoid or reduce greenhouse gas emissions through established or novel management practices.

Sydney farmers spoke about enhancing soil carbon as a win-win for agriculture and the environment, with a tendency to cite the productivity benefits for their farming enterprise before discussing the income from carbon.

Psychological nudges. Queensland University of Technology examined carbon farming through the lens of behavioural economics and found it would only take a few documented success stories of carbon farming in each region to convince others to take up the practice.

Big companies making the switch. Common Capital found large companies are increasingly looking for low-emission farmers and suppliers and recommended farmers communicate with their value chain about carbon projects.

Rural valuers need help. Carbon Market Institute found no professional guidance for rural valuers with regard to carbon project valuation, leading to a lack of consistency and comparability. A guidance paper was developed.

How to overcome negative experiences. Interviews with landholders in Southern Queensland (home to almost a quarter of carbon projects nationwide) found negative experiences with carbon farming due to historic arrangements where conditions covered the entire property, required total destocking and contained permanence periods of 25 years or more, with researchers recommending education and promotion of arrangements which allowed limited stocking.

“The Carbon Initiative Program is a comprehensive and ambitious attempt to understand what is driving carbon farming in Australia and what could be done to increase the awareness of the benefits and risks of carbon management to allow farmers to make their own informed choices,” Mr Beer said.

“We hope the learnings from these projects will lay a foundation for future research, deepen the knowledge in our agricultural sector and be a step towards helping in efforts to mitigate the effects of climate change.”

Promoting sustainable ecosystems

CELEBRATING the vital role of fisheries in feeding the world's growing population, and promoting the importance of maintaining healthy and sustainable ocean ecosystems are the key focus areas this World Fisheries Day.

Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry Murray Watt used the occasion to highlight Australia's role as an international leader in sustainable fisheries management as well as the strong performance of Australia's fishing and aquaculture sectors.

“Seafood has long been an important staple food for cultures and communities here in Australia and across the globe,” Minister Watt said.

“Today, the world's fisheries are more critical than ever in guaranteeing food security and nutrition.

“Australians know this better than most, and our fisheries managers, scientists and responsible fishers are working to ensure that our Commonwealth-managed fisheries continue to remain sustainable in a changing climate.

“Sustainable fisheries management is a global responsibility, and Australia is a world leader in discouraging illegal, unreported and unregulated (IUU) fishing practices, which often result in overfishing and the degradation of marine ecosystems.

“We're looking at measures to prevent the IUU seafood from reaching Australia and will soon seek input from industry, research bodies, governments, NGOs, and the community on how this is best managed.”

Last year, our thriving fisheries and aquaculture sectors had a gross value of production of approximately $3.6 billion, exported $1.4 billion worth of seafood and employed more than 14,000 people.

Minister Watt said with the industry in good shape overall, it was now time to look to the future to ensure it continued to grow.

“In October, I joined with representatives of Seafood Industry Australia and the Blue Economy Cooperative Research Centre in Hobart to launch the Futures of Seafood project, contributing $450,000 in federal funding.”

“The project will look at ways we can support business certainty and sustainable growth opportunities for the seafood industry by looking at the impacts of emerging marine activities and climate change pressures on fishing and aquaculture.

“I'm proud that Australians can celebrate World Fisheries Day with seafood that is safe, sustainably-sourced and will be enjoyed for generations to come.”

SUSTAINABILITY: Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry Murray Watt said seafood has long been an important staple food for cultures and communities here in Australia and across the globe.

Food commodity price drop

GLOBAL food commodity prices are set for respite in 2024 after three years of record highs caused by war, adverse weather and rising energy and input costs, according to Rabobank's annual Agri Commodity Markets Outlook report.

The specialist food and agribusiness bank predicts that global prices of key food staples sugar, coffee, corn and soybeans will fall as production has some time to adjust to higher prices, bringing down costs for buyers and in some cases for consumers too.

Despite relief on prices and availability, the bank still predicts demand to remain weak as consumers continue to deal with economic challenges, including high inflation and interest rates. Rabobank expects weak global economic growth in 2024 to limit the growth in agricultural commodity demand.

Uncertainty will also persist in other key agri-commodity markets. Wheat, which the developing world is particularly dependent on, will be subject to weather-related disruptions and potential restrictions on Black Sea exports, despite large volumes being produced and in storage in the region.

Carlos Mera, head of agri commodities at Rabobank, said: "Describing the last three years of global agricultural commodity prices as volatile is an understatement. Producers are still grappling with the after effects of war, adverse weather, high farm input inflation and weak consumer demand, but eyeing 2024 as the return to a semblance of normality."

For wheat, Rabobank expects another deficit in the global market, the fifth in a row. There will be little relief from the southern hemisphere crops in the coming months, with both Argentina underperforming and Australia falling well behind the past three years' very good crops.

RaboResearch Australia and New Zealand general manager Stefan Vogel said Australian wheat receives some price support from drier weather conditions locally – keeping prices on the country's east coast above the US CBOT price, the global benchmark.

"In Western Australia, basis levels have also improved compared with last year, but WA prices need to be competitive against the likes of Russia given so much of WA's grain is destined for export markets," he said.

REPORT: Wheat, which the developing world is particularly dependent on, will be subject to weather-related disruptions and potential restrictions on Black Sea exports, despite large volumes being produced and in storage in the region, according to the Rabobank report.

Russia's 2024 harvest will likely stay high at levels above 87 million metric tons, but any expectation today is subject to weather uncertainty and export restrictions, according to the report. Meanwhile, in Ukraine the war will also continue to affect production and exports and will lead to a shrinking exportable surplus.

Carlos Mera said: "It won't be plain sailing but the more positive outlook for the majority of agri commodities should lead to relief for buyers around the world. Governments, businesses, farmers and consumers will all feel beleaguered after a volatile few years. Now's not the time to toast a recovery, but the outlook for inflation in agricultural commodities is far more positive than in previous years."

"Winners and losers will emerge as agricultural commodities go through different points of the cycle next year. We anticipate the South American market will return to a healthier position and bolsters supplies."

Brazilian farmers are expecting to see a record soybean production crop in 2024 as La Niña weather gives way to El Niño. The bank expects a bumper 163 million metric ton crop haul. Argentina, the biggest exporter of soy products, is also expected to recover after last year's harvest failure, boosting global stockpiles, although it will be subject to an uncertain FX policy.

Stefan Vogel said beyond the competition from more soybeans, Australian canola producers will have to look closely at three other major price drivers in 2024.

"Global supplies of canola are likely to recover due to strong Ukrainian plantings and the dry spell in Canada, the world's largest canola exporter, will likely end. El Nino might push palm oil supplies short of expectations and support prices. And lastly, demand for vegetable oils will continue to grow exponentially in 2024 with the US biofuel sector consuming even more," he said.

Sugar prices hit a 12-year high in 2023 as Thailand and India produced disappointing crops, but Rabobank expects a return to more normal conditions in Thailand in 2024/25, which could bring prices down further than the current forward curve predicts.

The bank forecasts that the coffee market will hit a surplus of 6.8 million bags in 2024/25, spurred by a recovery of the arabica crop in Brazil and Colombia. Yet challenges persist as farmers continue to be squeezed by high input costs, labour shortages and weak consumer demand, although demand will likely be slightly stronger in 2024 than in 2023.

For over a decade, Rabobank's Outlook report has evaluated the prospects for a basket of agricultural commodities that are crucial to the global economy based on 'base case', 'high case' and 'low case' scenarios. It tracks the prospects for 10 key agri commodities in the following year. It is widely read and followed in the world's agri commodity markets.

Strategic plan for deer eradication in SA

THE State Government has released a strategic plan for the 10-year South Australian Feral Deer Eradication Program.

The Strategic Plan for the South Australian Feral Deer Eradication Program 2022-32, which aligns with the National Feral Deer Management Plan released in August, has been developed to guide the eradication effort, and to better manage farmed deer within the state, building on the success of the program's first year.

Regarded as one of Australia's worst pest animals in both rural and peri-urban areas, feral deer cost South Australian primary producers an estimated $36 million in direct productivity losses last year.

In addition to primary industry costs, feral deer have significant impacts on the environment and road safety.

At the time of the eradication program's commencement in May 2022 there was an estimated 40,000 feral deer in the state. In its first 18 months, over 11,000 feral deer have been removed from the South Australian landscape.

The South Australian Feral Deer Eradication Program is a statewide partnership between the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA), Landscape SA Boards, the Department for Environment and Water

In addition to landholders investing their own funds for control, eradication programs in South Australia currently cost government about $1.1 million a year.

(DEW), SA Water, ForestrySA and Livestock SA.

The program is jointly funded by both the Australian and South Australian Governments and the SA Landscape Boards.

This Strategic Plan has been endorsed by the chairs of the regional Landscape Boards in feral deer impacted regions (Eyre Peninsula, Hills and Fleurieu, Limestone Coast, Murraylands and Riverland and Northern and Yorke) and the chief executives of PIRSA, DEW, SA Water and ForestrySA.

The goals of the Strategic Plan are to:

- * Eradicate feral deer from South Australia in 10-years.
- * Engage with stakeholders to promote co-ordinated, landscape-scale, feral deer control and build capacity for implementation.
- * Prevent harboring of feral deer, and the illegal release and escape of farmed deer through the enforcement of best practice fencing and tagging standards.

In South Australia, feral deer are declared for destruction under the Landscape South Australia Act 2019, meaning land managers are required to destroy all feral deer on their land. In addition to landholders investing their own funds for control, eradication programs in South Australia currently cost government about $1.1 million a year.

Compared to eastern state populations, the South Australian feral deer numbers are still considered low enough for the opportunity to completely eradicate the pest.

Recent independent analysis of the 10-year eradication program against business-as-usual management of feral deer indicates that the program will generate a net benefit to the community of $525 million over a 10-year period.

'Destocking phase' says MLA

THE latest livestock products data from the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) shows that Australia has entered a destocking phase for cattle and sheep, according to Meat & Livestock Australia (MLA).

MLA manager – market information, Stephen Bignell, said the ABS numbers were reflective of the drier conditions experienced in many parts of Australia over winter and producers' response to the forecast El Nino summer.

Mr Bignell said the latest ABS statistics for the September quarter showed a 5.7 percent increase in red meat production, with cattle slaughter increased by 10.5 per cent to 1.9 million head and overall beef production up 8.3 per cent to 589,406 tonnes.

Lamb slaughter in the September 2023 quarter increased 8.7 per cent to 6.6 million head and lamb meat production increased 7.7 per cent to 160,954 tonnes.

Mr Bignell said that sheep slaughter, in contrast, decreased by 18.1 per cent to 2.1 million head, with mutton production back 11.8 per cent to 54,189 tonnes, with the decrease largely due to elevated lamb slaughter reducing sheep processing capacity.

"Even though there is an increase in slaughter for cattle and lamb production, the ABS numbers are reflecting lower overall value due to the lower values being experienced at the saleyards for producers," Mr Bignell said. "The gross value of cattle and calves slaughter decreased 2.5 per cent to $3.2 billion, while sheep and lambs decreased by 18.5 per cent to $956.6 million.

"This is the first time since producer receipts have been recorded that quarterly sheep and

"For the last three years, Australia has been experiencing a herd rebuild and La Nina weather patterns. The latest ABS data shows that there is currently a turning point to a destocking period for the September quarter of 2023."

Mr Bignell said that there had been some pockets of positive weather and a notable improvement in saleyard market conditions since the data being reported on for the September quarter.

He added that weather in coming months would be crucial for determining whether there is a longer trend of destocking.

"We've started to see some positive trends in the weather and a solid market response in recent weeks, and a continuation of positive rainfall will further drive that confidence."

A sweet outcome for the citrus industry

APPLICATIONS are now open for the citrus industry to weigh in on the new alternative assurance model for citrus packhouses and growers.

Acting deputy secretary for trade, Nicola Hinder PSM, said the model recognises current industry practices and leverages off commercial systems already in place between packhouses and their grower suppliers.

"To be eligible to export to some markets, citrus growers and packers are required to undertake activities that must be verified through onsite audits by the department," Ms Hinder said.

"The new alternative assurance model provides industry with the opportunity to demonstrate compliance with grower requirements through existing commercial systems.

"Packhouses and growers will see a reduction in audit time and charges related to on-farm activities under this model.

"It's a great example of how government and industry have worked together to reduce regulatory burden and cost, without jeopardising assurance and market requirements."

General manager market development of Citrus Australia, David Daniels, said the new system has been piloted over the last two seasons by several high-performing citrus businesses.

"The pilot program has been very successful for industry, reducing audit times in some cases from days to hours," Mr Daniels said.

"This model represents a great example of how industry and government can develop a co-regulatory approach to maintaining the citrus industry's reputation as a safe and reliable supplier of quality products."

Applications are open for submission until 1 December 2023.

Covered housing help

AUSTRALIAN lot feeders have access to a new manual that can help them weigh up the different options and considerations for covered housing systems.

Climatic variability, combined with the Australian lot feeding industry's shade and shelter initiative has seen an unprecedented interest in covered and partially covered housing systems and their application to the Australian lot feeding industry.

To help the Australian lot feeding industry evaluate different options, Meat & Livestock Australia (MLA) has launched the 'MLA Best practice design and management manual for covered and partially covered housing systems'.

Dr Matt Van der Saag, project manager – feedlot and sustainability at MLA announced the launch of the manual at the Australian Lot Feeders' Association's (ALFA) SmartBeef event in Tamworth, NSW on 12 October.

"The manual is built upon the best available knowledge from around the world for these systems, along with knowledge gained from visits to a variety of covered housing systems operational in Australia," Dr Van der Saag said. "The manual details design, construction, bedding, manure management, welfare standards, animal health considerations, and costs of these systems compared to best practice unshaded feedlot pens."

Many Australian feedlots have already installed shade systems. The Australian Lot Feeders' Association (ALFA) indicates that almost 70 per cent of feedlot cattle capacity has shade or shelter already, and that there is increased interest in covering the pens with solid, waterproof roofing that may be installed over part of the pen or the entire pen. This was a key consideration when the manual was being developed.

The creation of the manual came following site visits with lot feeders using covered or partially covered facilities in Queensland,

New South Wales, Victoria, Western Australia and Tasmania. MLA and ALFA also ran two 'Going Under Cover' events for the feedlot sector to over 148 feedlot stakeholders in Western Australia in March 2023 and Victoria/South Australia in May 2023.

The events aimed to drive adoption of shade and shelter in Australian feedlots by showcasing examples of shelter in use at a variety of feedlots and the productivity and animal welfare benefits they have experienced. According to Dr Van der Saag, the manual also provides siting and design guidance that will be useful for any business planning to install a covered housing system under Australian conditions.

"The manual also contains important information regarding welfare standards, animal health considerations as well as state-by-state regulatory approvals that need to be adhered to, and the all-important costs discussion," Dr Van der Saag said. "Ultimately, this manual is an important resource for the modification or construction of feedlots. We would encourage all interested to review the information as the potential benefits of covered housing systems for cattle are significant."

For feedlots who have already implemented fully covered shade systems, the benefits have been numerous.

This includes better animal welfare outcome for cattle under shade, but also see improvements in feed efficiency, as well as cleaner cattle for presentation at slaughter and meat-eating quality improvements.

Outside of benefits for livestock, shaded feedlots also provide better working conditions for staff, especially in summer as the heat and humidity climbs.

Players enjoy laid-back golf

THE women of the Blue Lake Golf Club enjoyed a stableford 4BBB competition last week, played in good spirit, with some excellent results posted.

Annette Ford and Bev Pascoe pored up to claim the win with 48 points, just ahead of Karen Panagopoulos and Trudy Herbert with 47.

Josie Ashby and Carol Melhuish rounded out the podium with 46 points.

Nearest to the pin second shot on the par 3 16th hole winners were Sue Agars in Division 1 and Shannon McDonnell in Division 2.

The pro-shot on the fifth hole went to Helen Myers and birdie prizes were won by Ronda Edwards on the second, Myers on the 15th and Lucy Richards on the 18th after a 90-plus metre iron shot, which earned her five stableford points, plus a chip-in ferret prize on the par 5 third hole.

Due to the Christmas parade, the numbers were a little on the low side for the women in the par competition on Saturday.

The winning score came from Christine Morrison with 3-up.

Playing off a 32 handicap, Morrison has only been at the Blue Lake course for a few months and is finally getting a handle on the lay of the land.

Geraldine Scott (25) has featured quite a bit lately and was not far behind with 2-up after a front nine 2-up and back nine square to take second place.

Third place went to Ronda Edwards (15) finishing all square after 2-down on the front with 2-up on the back nine.

Weather ideal at Blue Lake

LAST week 40 women competed in a stableford round at the Mount Gambier Golf Club in excellent conditions.

Division 1 winner Andrea Peglar (19 handicap) scored 38 points to claim the honours ahead of Helen Gregory (16) on 36.

Division 2 went to Susan Ryan (34), who continued her current run of form with an impressive 40 points, from splits of 16/24.

New Wednesday golf recruit, Indya Homes (37) scored a healthy 38 points from a split 17/21 and a birdie on the 18th hole to top off a great round as Division 2 runner-up.

Helen Gregory, true to form, took out the pro-shot on the eighth hole and Peglar claimed the second shot for A Grade, while Helen Heaver took the honours for the B Grade.

Heaver also scored a birdie on the 17th hole, preceded by two huge shots to the green.

Lorraine Stratford scored the second shot for C Grade.

The Handicap Matchplay Championship continued this week, with Mary Kentish defeating Helen Heaver 3 and 2, and Di O'Donnell defeating Bernie Jennings 2 and 1.

Next Wednesday the Championship will be decided.

Ashleigh makes an impact

DAVID LEWIS
GREYHOUND RACING

TEA Tree Gully hobby owner-trainer Ashleigh Kay made a successful return to Tara Raceway last Thursday when Techno Kelli scored an impressive win in the Williams Crane Hire TG1-4W Stake over 305 metres.

At the Mount Gambier greyhound track for the first time this year, she had been chasing her first local winner since May 2022 when Oogway had defeated Mustang Molly and Shim's Heart in the Winning Post Supplies Stake (512m) in 30.56 seconds.

This time Kay was down with her whole team – Techno Kelli and Yarramundi Coco – a couple of females by Melbourne Cup winner Hard Style Rico.

As it turned out, the pair happened to draw the same race at the time-graded meeting.

But it was Techno Kelli who made Kay's day when quickly finding the front from box eight before running away to a 3½ length win over Compton Pebbles in a time of 17.92 seconds.

Actually, it was relocation to New South Wales by former Adelaide trainer Vadim Roz that resulted in Techno Kelli and Yarramundi Coco finding their way to Tea Tree Gully in August this year.

"Vadim was moving over Dubbo way and asked me if I would be interested in taking a couple of his greyhounds that had won maiden races over 400 metres at Gawler," Kay said.

"And I was happy enough to give them a go.

"While Yarramundi Coco is still yet to win for me, Techno Kelli has since won up the straight at Murray Bridge, Angle Park and now Mount Gambier so it hasn't worked out too badly."

Meanwhile, Murtoa owner-trainer Josh McDonald, who reappeared at Tara Raceway back

Ashleigh Kay, of Tea Tree Gully, back at Tara Raceway for the first time this year, pictured with Techno Kelli, winner of the Williams Crane Hire Stake. Pictures: SUBMITTED in June, brought up his seventh win this year at the local track when Ragnar Boy was successful in the Progreyhoundtips.com TG1-4W Stake (400m).

By My Redeemer out of Run Ronnie Run, a winner at The Meadows, Ragnar Boy led all the way when defeating Lorelle Soldier by 1¾ lengths in a time of 23.65 seconds.

Later, McDonald recalled the circumstances surrounding Ragnar Boy coming into his kennels back in April.

"Two other trainers had previously had a go with him but by the time I got him he was pushing 3½ years of age and still hadn't raced," he said.

"Anyway, I started him off in a 305 metre maiden at Mount Gambier in May and while he's certainly no champion I've had a bit of fun with him at Tara Raceway where he's now won three races."

McDonald won his first race at the local track back in December 2019 with Magnet Force.

The win resulted in 25 per cent of the prize money being donated to the Wimmera Southern Mallee Rural Outreach program.

By Peter Rocket out of Maisy Mac, Magnet Force was purchased as a pup by McDonald who later named the black bitch in memory of Brad "Magnet" Hall, a mate who had died 12 months prior at the age of 42.

Thinking back to when he first became involved in greyhound racing, McDonald said all he ever really wanted was a winning photograph to hang on the wall.

"Now there's no shortage of photographs, just a lack of wall space," he said.

Stunning conditions for stableford golf

THE sun shone on 187 women at the Millicent Golf Club last week for a stableford round.

Lyn Watson revelled in the conditions, claiming the A Grade win with 38 points, ahead of Kirsty Bailey with 36.

In B Grade Sharne Peacock claimed a close win with 37 points, from Lois Tilley on 36 after a count-back.

Karen Altschwager won the nine-hole competition with 21 points, while ball winners were Altschwager 36 points, Sue Agnew 35 and Annie Maclellan 34.

Nearest the pin on the third hole went to Tilley, with Agnew closest on the 13.

Second shot on the fifth hole for handicaps 32-54 was McLennan, with Karen Lock claiming the honours on the 17th for handicaps 28-54.

Lower numbers, strong competition

THE Millicent Bowls Club attracted 28 players last week for a game of 2-4-2 bowls in less-than-ideal, blustery conditions.

Despite the lower numbers than usual, competition was keen and the prize pool of $56 went to the successful pair of Neil Whelan and Peter Scanlon with a solid win of 33 points and five shots up.

A close second went to Eddie Hann and Frank Cooper with a win of 32 points and 13 shots up.

Winning and losing scores were well balanced, with no big losses and all players could leave the green with a sense of a close game and good shots on both sides.

Other winning teams included Malcolm Wright and John Scudds 32+11, Peter Bateman and Derek Bowering 32+7, Jean Smith and John Madden 31+8, Dick Coote and Andre Reinders 30+10, plus Greg DePamphilis and David Reichelt with 29+2.

Central proves untouchable

DESPITE having two of their better players, Alex Reppin and Matt Nicholls, out with injuries, Federal put up a much better showing than the last outing against ladder leaders Central.

Although they still failed to score, defensively they were much better in the field and held the Magpies hitters to just six runs.

Central opened its account in the bottom of the first inning, scoring two.

Kyall McClean and Nathan Meinck both picked a base-on-ball and were batted in when Dylan Chuck singled to left-field.

In the bottom of the fifth Daniel Ferguson drilled a nice hit to centre-field and McClean picked his second walk.

Ferguson crossed home on Chuck's sacrifice fly, also to centre-field, while McClean followed soon after when he stole home.

Final runs for the game came in the even seventh inning when McClean hit safely to left-field, Meinck picked his second walk and they were both batted in again by Chuck to give Central the 6-2 win.

Chuck pitched the whole nine digs, picking up 12 strikeouts along with giving up just two safe-hits, with the team making just one error.

Federal used two pitchers, picking up just a single strikeout, but giving up seven base-on-ball and seven safe-hits.

South breaks through with strong victory

SOUTH Indians recorded its first win of the Mount Gambier and District baseball season in Friday nights Division 1 game against Tigers.

Tigers lead-off batter in the top of the first inning, Ben Marcus, hit cleanly to right field and was batted in by Matt Thompson.

Clean-up batter, Ryan Walter, then batted in the first two when his hit to centre-field landed safe.

Balshaw crossed on a wild throw.

In the top of the third again Marcus' twobagger to right-field saw him safe at second and he again was batted in by Thompson.

However, not to be outdone, South also doubled its score in the third.

Walter succeeded in hitting safely to centre-field again, while both Deklin Joyce and Ben Nash drew walks to load the bases.

Deegan Habner stepped to the plate and blasted the ball to right-field, scoring Walter and Joyce, while Nash scored on the subsequent error by the right-fielder.

Tigers returned fire in the fourth, as Luke Powell tripled to left-field and Harrison Elletson picked a walk.

Powell scored on Scott Cameron's hit into a fielder's choice and Elletson followed on Marcus' safe-hit to centre-field.

He was batted in by Karl Ransom.

Again the Indians came up with the goods, as Balshaw walked, Walter was on board again due to a fielder's choice play, with Joyce on on an error to again load the bases.

Nash, on safely hitting to centre-field, scored Balshaw, followed by Habner whose big hit to centre-field scored both Walter and Joyce.

Nash scored the fourth run of the inning when Habner's hit was then errored by the centre-fielder.

Tigers scored single runs in the fifth and sixth digs, but South put the game to bed in the bottom of the seventh.

Branden Horrigan and Tarkyn Morale both found themselves on base after fielding errors by the Tigers defence.

Then with two out, Balshaw hit the ball to the fence at left-field to score both runners.

Balshaw scored on Walter's third hit of the game and he in turn scored on Joyce's two-bagger to left-field.

Tigers could only muster one more run in the eighth inning when Marcus' flyball to centre-field was grassed and he touched home plate on Ransom's safe-hit to centre-field.

South gave up two walks, two hit batters, 10 safe-hits, made three strikeouts and six errors.

Tigers gave up four walks, 15 safe-hits, made six strikeouts and seven errors.

A BYE for junior grades due to the Christmas Pagent had only senior tennis action on show on Saturday.

For Division 3 ladder leader Centrals it was a close result over Moorak, while both Mount Gambier and Glencoe had good wins.

The top team hosted now sixth-placed Moorak at Olympic Park for Round 6 and at the end of the day claimed a 7-5 set victory.

Moorak's Nathan Hammond was in impressive form to easily win the top men's rubber 6-1 over Mitchell Duryea, while Moorak also won the men's number three clash when Chris Tully defeated Sean Harrison 7-5.

Centrals' Mitchell van Riet had a close 7-5 win over Ryan Horrigan, while all three women's singles went the way of the hosts.

Katie Gaffney's 6-4 win over Brooke Hammond was the closest set, with Kirrilee Liebelt and Aimee Marshall winning their matches 6-3 and 6-0 respectively.

In the end the singles sets decided the day, with the doubles split evenly between the two teams.

The Moorak men won all three of their doubles sets, with the closest a 7-5 win to Nathan Hammond and Tully against Duryea and Harrison.

In contrast the Centrals' women were rock solid in the doubles as well and gave up only two games across the the three winning sets.

The result leaves Centrals comfortable at the top of the ladder, with five wins and a draw from six games.

Over at Mount Gambier the hosts defeated Suttontown eight sets to four.

Gambier was fairly dominant in the singles and won four of the six sets.

The top men's sets had Suttontown in a good place, as Christian McCombe and Liam Agnew won 6-2 and 6-1 respectively.

Andrew Le Cornu chipped one back for Gambier with his 6-2 win over Cameron Pritchard.

In contrast the women's singles all went to the Gambier women, as Melissa Attiwill, Lucy Clarke and Haylie Gregor prevailed 6-4, 6-0 and 6-2 respectively.

In the doubles Gambier also had the upper hand to win four of the six sets.

There were two tiebreakers required, with McCombe and Pritchard getting over the line against Tim Benny and Le Cornu, while Clarke and Gregor defeated Eleanor Doyle and Kimberly Murrell also 7-6.

Despite good patches from Suttontown, Gambier proved too strong in the end and remains comfortable in second place on the ladder.

Meanwhile Suttontown had been relegated to the bottom rung, with just one win so far.

Mil Lel look at easy points

TREVOR JACKSON
trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

SOUTH GAMBIER 10/138 MIL LEL 4/88
THE opening day of Round 4 of Barber Shield cricket was not kind to South Gambier, as Mil Lel now sit in the box seat to claim first-innings points when play resumes this coming week-end.

Mil Lel won the toss and sent the Demons in to bat on a tidy Frew Park wicket.

They then began to apply the pressure through dot balls and in just the fourth over Dave Somerfield was sent back to the shed with just five runs next to his name.

It was the ideal start and when Jakob Opie was gone just six balls later, caught off Jack Miller for a 12-ball duck, the alarm bells began to ring.

Stephen Easterbrook seemed to settle at the crease with James Miller, but that was also short-lived, as Miller faced 22 balls for his four runs before being removed by Mil Lel's Jack Miller.

The dot balls continued to frustrate, with the occasional boundary thrown in to break the monotony.

However, with Easterbrook set on 28 from just 32 balls, thanks largely to six boundaries, he was caught off the bowling of Dale Bachmann.

Adam Kuhl continued to find runs at a reasonable rate, but before he could chalk up a half-century he was caught off the bowling of Mitchell Little for 40 runs.

Just a few balls later Jaggar Geary was caught-and-bowled by Harry Hicks and the Demons were in trouble.

From there only Noah Maxwell could reach double figures, remaining unbeaten on 19 as the wickets tumbled.

South was bundled out for just 138 runs in the 48th over, leaving Mil Lel with plenty of time to chase down the target.

Little was the best of the bowlers with figures of 4/33.

Mil Lel headed into the middle with the hope to chase the total down without too many dramas, but it did not pan out that way.

Darren Whitehorn looked in fine touch with the willow, cracking two boundaries in the opening two overs.

However, with just nine to his name he was clean bowled by Opie and the task soon became a bit tougher.

In the next over Ty Dinnison was caught off the bowling of Bryce Whicker for just three and Mil Lel looked out of sorts.

William Rowland made a quick-fire 15 runs off just 12 balls before Opie again disturbed

When Darcy Williamson was out just a few overs later for nine runs, Mil Lel needed something special to settle the innings.

That came through Toby Grigg and Dale Bachmann, who dug in and saw the day out, both facing plenty of balls for their 23 and 22 runs respectively.

By stumps Opie had cause all kinds of drama, with three wickets to his name.

Mil Lel is in a good position to claim first innings points, but will need to withstand a tough South bowling attack and survive long enough to make it a reality this coming week-end.

Roos dig in at crease to post credible total

TREVOR JACKSON
trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

WEST GAMBIER 10/190 EAST GAMBIER 0/2
EAST Gambier won the toss in the first two-day game of the Barber Shield cricket season and sent West into bat at Alan Scott Park on Saturday.

The decision paid dividends early, with Nuwan Gunawardana caught by Alex Hentschke off the bowling of Liam Turley for just nine runs.

However, Jayden Prior joined Justin Dejong at the crease and the pair dug in, with Prior facing plenty of deliveries as he began to build his innings.

Dejong was next to go after getting a solid start, with another catch to Hentschke, this time off the bowling of Connor Little, with Dejong on 31.

Bray Stephenson strode to the middle and again a partnership began to form, but with dot balls a regular occurrence.

With 37 runs to his name off a steady 86 deliveries, Prior was judged lbw to Ben Hentschke.

Sijith Nikethana's stay was not lengthy, as he managed to face nine deliveries for two runs before he was caught off the bowling of Ben Hentschke.

However, the middle order for the Roos dug in, with Sam Willis taking 14 runs from 24 balls, but from there the run-rate

Sam Coxon took 94 balls to reach just 22, Jack Geddes needed 81 deliveries for his 24 and at a bit faster clip, Shane Dejong took 34 balls to remain unbeaten on 22.

The 190-run total was a decent target for West to defend, but the Roos fell short in the over department, facing just 74.5 in the innings.

With the ball, Alex Hentschke, Liam Turley, Emerson Marks, Connor Little and Ben Hentschke all claimed two wickets.

The Bulldogs faced two overs before stumps, with James Sullivan and Aiden Creasey unbeaten on the first day.

Eagles have Tigers on toast

TREVOR JACKSON
trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

PENOLA 10/179
NORTH SPORTSMAN'S 4/25
Penola put faith in its home deck at McCorquindale Park in Round 4 of Barber Shield cricket on Saturday, winning the toss and electing to face the North Sportsman's bowling attack.
The Eagles amassed plenty of runs, but the Tigers had them all back in the shed after just 62.4 overs.
A half-century to Michael Waters at number three helped the Eagles along after opener Lewis March was out in the fourth over for just five runs. Joining forces with Jack Mullan, Waters found touch and the pair put on a match-saving partnership early to give the Eagles some breathing room.

After a classy knock, which included six boundaries, Mullan was judged lbw to Matthew Robinson for 42 runs off a steady 79 deliveries.
Waters was gone soon after, caught-and-bowled by Elliott Fisher, but not before he contributed 61 runs off 82 deliveries, which included 10 boundaries.
It was a timely partnership, with only Jacob Robbie (33) and Ned Skeer (14) reaching double figures from there.

Robbie's knock was equally important as those up the order, which included five boundaries, but was controlled, coming off 65 balls.
Likewise, Skeer took 51 deliveries to reach his total, trying to hang on and give the Eagles more balls to face.
In the end Penola succumbed in the 63rd over, leaving North plenty of time to chase the runs.
Fisher was in fine form with the ball in hand, claiming four scalps for North.
However, if the Tigers thought the task would be achievable, they would be having second thoughts overnight, after the Eagles sent the top four batsmen back to the shed for little return.

In the third over Matthew Robinson was gone for a four-ball duck, with Alex Hutton bowled by Josh Doyle in the next over for just six.
The Tigers dug in for a few overs before Fisher became Doyle's second victim with just one run next to his name.
If that was not a bad enough start to the chase, March clean bowled Brad Robinson soon after for four runs off a tardy 29 deliveries and the Tigers were in real trouble.
At stumps North sat at 4/25 after just 14 overs, with Nick McInerney and Nicolas Brown at the crease.

Entertainment aplenty as Roos maintain record

TREVOR JACKSON
trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

LUCINDALE ROOS 8/164 d
ROBE ROOSTERS 10/154
Lucindale Roos kept their winning record in tact after Round 5 of Millicent Naracoorte cricket on Saturday.
The Roos won the toss and elected to bowl, but found the Robe Roosters in good form with the willow in hand.
However, some solid bowling from captain Nathan James helped to dismiss the Roosters for 154 runs in the 39th over.
No details were registered for the Roosters, but the Roos bowled good line and length.
James finished with figures of 3/14 off his eight overs, with Brandon Nicholle (2/29), Daniel Lane (2/24) and Josh Smith (2/14) also tidy.
With the bat in hand, the Roos were pushed to the limit, as the Roosters took the game deep in the hope of an upset victory.

Shane McGurk helped set the Roos run chase up with a handy 44-run opening stand.
James was out for just four, but Tom Fisher came in and held up his end, adding 19 runs to the cause.
McGurk was next to go with 44 runs next to his name, followed by Fisher.
Nick Cane also came and went cheaply, with just three runs to his name and the Roos were in a tough position at 4/90.
However, Will Graetz joined Smith in the middle and the pair put on a handy partnership, before the former was dismissed for 17.
As it panned out, Smith was the last wicket to fall with the score at 164 and victory in hand.
MILLICENT BLACK HATS 4/168 d
NARACOORTE WARRIORS 8/167
Millicent Black Hats claimed the win in their clash against Naracoorte Warriors, reaching the required target in the 37th over with plenty of wickets in hand.
The Warriors won the toss and elected to bat, then put on a credible 167 runs.

A big chunk of that came from the middle and lower order, after an average start at the top of the roster.
Remi Brown was out for a golden duck, while Jason McClure put up more of a fight to be caught off the bowling of Ashton Lindner for 21.
Mitchell Hateley (16) and Brad Redding (10) got a start but did not go on with the job.
Loren Bald then found form in the middle order to smash a half-century, 59 off just 38 balls, which included six boundaries and three maximums.
Further down the order Nicolas Bald joined in the run-fest to finish unbeaten on 35 off 46 deliveries.
With the ball, Sam Hunt did some of the damage, with figures of 3/33, while Michael Gibson finished with 2/19.
Chasing the runs, the Black Hats were well served by the opening pair, with Jacob Todd and Hunt putting on a half-century opening stand.

Todd was first to go, caught off the bowling of Hateley for 42 off just 32 balls with the total at 1/54.
Lindner rejoined Hunt in the middle and the pair pushed the score along to 95 before he was clean bowled by Caleb Johnston for 19.
Mitchell Nitschke then joined the run chase and took the score along to 124 before hunt fell for 40.
Nitschke went onto reach his half-century, unbeaten on 54 runs off just 45 balls.
Josh Mason was the last wicket to fall, but with the score then 167 and four overs remaining, the win was a given.
Wickets were shared evenly by the Warriors.

Disappointing round for Millicent women

JAMES MURPHY
james.murphy@tbwtoday.com.au

A TOUGH weekend for the Magic women has them sitting in third place ahead of a five-round bye.

Millicent's Country Basketball League women's team was forced to forfeit Saturday night's game against Warrnambool, before a tough clash at home against Colac dealt the side its third loss of the season.

The forfeit occurred due to a lack of players available, with state training, schoolies and injuries all contributing to the lack of personnel.

Looking to bounce back on Sunday, the Magic took to the court against the visiting Kookas.

However, a strong start by the guests had Millicent playing catch up ball for the rest of the game.

The Kookas scored 28 points in the opening term and at the first break led by nine.

The following quarters were all close, with the Magic dropping only four points for the rest of the clash.

However, the damage had already been done.

The second term was won by Colac by three points, before a high-scoring third quarter had both teams shoot 25.

The final stanza was another close contest and at the final buzzer the Magic lost the term by one point for a 76-89 point loss.

Millicent relied on the trio of Poppy Venn, Madison Haggett and Mia Gysbers for the bulk of the scoring.

Venn topped the sheets with 23 points, while Haggett and Gysbers scored 19 and 17 respectively.

Collectively they outscored Colac's top three contributors, but with a bigger output down the order and more depth to call on, the Kookas came out on top.

As it stands Millicent's women have played the most games of any team in the competition, with eight matches.

As a result they now face a lengthy hiatus with byes in the next five rounds.

Offence dominates night

OFFENCE dominated in the Round 5 games of the South East Coast Basketball League last Wednesday.

Under the leadership of Pioneers' captain Kane deWit, Cougars' men finished with a team tally of 109 points, but the main highlight of the night was squarely in Bulldogs women's corner, who also saw their final score tick over the century against a depleted Cats.

The emergence of several junior players at senior level is also an intriguing prospect for the future of SECBL.

MEN

• BULLDOGS 88 (D. Reid 23, Shaun Lock 19, Sam Lock 13). d PANTHERS 84 (T. Brumby 28, B. Jachmann 18, J. Ryan 12).

The clash between traditional rivals was judged the best contest of the night.

Both teams were without their respective star players and on court leaders, Simon Berkefeld and Kyle Tipene.

Three pointers were the staple diet of the night as Bulldogs' top scorer Duncan Reid recorded five and State junior Taj Brumby bagged six from the perimeter to lead the scoring for Panthers.

One point separated the two sides at half time, then Bulldogs managed to stretch the margin to six in the next period.

Despite digging deep, Panthers could not close the gap by the final siren.

• COUGARS 109 (K. deWit 29, O. Pohlner 26, B. Ousey 17) d ROOS 96 (T. Daly 32, J. Collins 26, B. Noble 18).

The standards bar of the men's SECBL competition went up a notch or two when former Pioneers' captain, Tom Daly suited up for Roos.

His presence had an immediate positive impact on the game.

A mini captains' contest unfolded between Kane deWit and Daly within the team contest, with the outcome being big scores were recorded.

Another encouraging observation is the development of promising juniors Jonty Collins, Bailey Noble and Ollie Pohlner, who have grabbed the opportunity to play senior basketball with both hands and have made the most of it.

Saints had the Bye.

WOMEN

• BULLDOGS 103 (A. Collins 37, K. Egan 20, T. Human 20) d CATS 26 (L. van Eeden 8, T. Rowe 8, M. Lynch 6).

A common factor in Bulldogs' continuing successes is the consistently outstanding performances of Ava Collins, who chalked up her highest score for the season, 37 points.

Cats could not find the answer to curbing Bulldogs' avalanche of baskets as they sorely missed the experience and leadership of Alana Berkefeld.

• COUGARS 69 (M. Wormald 22, M. Horrigan 19, S. Russell 19) def ROOS 52 (E. Bouchier 19, C. Nulty 15, M. Griffith 10).

A stronger line-up set the foundation for Cougars comfortable win over Roos, who are currently playing well in patches.

A lift in consistency could see Roos challenge opponents to a level reflective of their undoubted abilities.

The performances of experienced Maddy Wormald and Mikaela Horrigan, along with state junior, Shayden Russell, proved crucial in the outcome.

Saints had the Bye.

Change of venue and format

THE Mount Gambier Cycling Club ventured to the Glenburnie Karting Complex on the weekend for a Criterium Come and Try session on the tight track.

Criterium racing is a popular form of cycling, with the short track and tight turns providing a good workout for the cyclists and excellent viewing opportunities for spectators.

Riders were given the opportunity to ride a few laps to familiarise themselves with the layout of the circuit and to begin to understand the importance of correct cornering technique, before beginning the race.

Unfortunately for Chris Neave, his ride ended after two tubes popped.

The rest of the riders gathered around commissaire John Cranwell as he set out the way the race was going to be run.

The 10 riders were to begin with a neutral lap, race from the first whistle for 30 minutes and then a further two laps of the circuit.

After the first whistle, riders got into their rhythm and groups began to form.

Out in front it was Patrick Langsmith, Ethan McKenny, Xavier Farmilo and Craig Andrae.

Next it was Colin Weatherill and Lachlan Becker, with Michael Dethmore and Mike Baker working together.

Finally Martin Farmilo joined up with Spek Peake.

The constant cornering, braking and accelerating had some of the riders fatiguing and as the minutes ticked down Xavier Farmilo lost contact with the lead riders and was starting to be caught by Weatherill.

As the whistle sounded to signify two laps remaining, Langsmith accelerated strongly out of a corner to make a short gap to McKenny and Andrae.

In his haste to try and bridge the gap, McKenny went into another corner a little too tightly and his pedal caught the tar, bucking the bike and sending him over the handlebars.

Langsmith finished the race ahead of Andrae, with Xavier Farmilo just ahead of the fast-finishing Weatherill.

Spinnakers fly in ideal conditions for regatta

THE second instalment of the Western Regions regatta attracted 16 boats took to the waters of Port MacDonnell on the weekend, with sailors from Warrnambool, Derrinalum and Portland arriving to sail the two-day event.

There were almost as many classes of boat as there were boats on the water, with crews ranging from just the one person up to three people, with monohulls and catamarans both represented.

In weather unlike the Port MacDonnell norm, the fleet was graced with flat seas and gentle seven-knot winds on Saturday.

There was a rolling start with the first division of faster boats such as catamarans beginning first and the slower boats starting five minutes after.

They sailed a simple course of a triangle and then a run back to shore past the ID flag and across the finishing line.

The fleet spread out as they raced, with the two fireballs and Sharpie proving to be the fastest boats on the water.

Sharpie, Gin and Tonic, skippered by Don Allen from Warrnambool, took line honours, with Rod Barker's Fireball, Cop You Later crossing the line in second place.

The crew of Gin and Tonic enjoy their day on the water.

There was a delay between race one and two so the buoys could be moved and the wind held steady, with conditions much the same for the next race.

The second race saw most boats cross the line from the starboard, but three of the monohulls chose to do something different and start from the port side instead.

This tactical choice did not make much of a difference, as the first boat across the line was Portland Tasar, Dreadnought, sailed by father-and-son team Andrew and Reuben Hays, who started on the starboard side of the line.

This time Gin and Tonic was the second boat across the start time.

Sundance, Billy 2, skippered by Nick Watson, changed from the first division to the second one which worked better as they were able to finish race two.

The committee boat moved the ID flag between races two and three to ensure that the larger boats did not hit the reef as they approached the finishing line.

With that done, the third race could then be undertaken in slightly stronger wind conditions.

One boat jumped the start line and did not undertake the penalty, therefore they were subsequently.

The increased wind conditions favoured the catamarans which sped around the course.

It was a colourful finish to the race, with boats approaching the finish with spinnakers up.

Even with the stronger, catamaran-favouring winds, Gin and Tonic with its single hull was once more first boat across the line and Cop You Later came in close behind.

There was a three-course meal put on by the Port MacDonnell Sailing Club for all sailors at the end of the day's racing, followed by a trivia night which showed sailors are just as competitive off the water as they are on it.

The second day of the regatta had to be called off as there was large swell and very light winds which made it dangerous for the smaller boats to launch from the beach.

The Port MacDonnell Sailing Club thanked all sailors who travelled to attend the regatta.

Mixed results for Magic

JAMES MURPHY

james.murphy@tbwtoday.com.au

IT was a split weekend for the Millicent Magic men when they faced yet another double header in Round 7 of the Country Basketball League.

A trip to Warrnambool on Saturday produced a tough night with a slightly understaffed Millicent unable to best the Seahawks.

Profits were higher on Sunday when the Magic hosted the Colac Kookas, with a solid win at Peter Seebohm Stadium ensuring they remain in fourth position on the ladder.

Despite a close opening quarter on Saturday night, Warrnambool was able to take control in the second period and get the game on its terms.

Just four points separated the sides at the first change before a 24-11 point second quarter put the Magic down by 17 at half time.

Jack Haggett was again the focal point under the basket for Millicent and he continued to find plenty of the ball throughout the game.

However, Warrnambool went on to win the third quarter as well and heading into the final stanza the Magic faced an impossible 25-point deficit.

The guests did manage to win the last term, but were forced to settle for a 22-point loss.

Haggett's 35 points was the top score of the night, while Matt Black was the only other Magic player to break into double figures with his 10 points.

Warrnambool's Riley Nicholson and Matt Rea led the scoring for the home side with 14 points each, while a well-spread performance down the list ensured the Seahawks always had an option under the hoop.

Millicent backed up on Sunday on its home court and put in a solid performance to defeat Colac by 33 points.

A consistent three quarters kept the margin growing throughout the game, before a huge finish sealed the deal.

The first term was relatively even and at the break the Magic were up 23-19.

Millicent kept the scoreboard ticking over with a 22-point second quarter, while the Kookas added just 15 to drop behind.

A 21-point return followed in the third and with Colac held to a slim 12 points, the hosts entered the fourth quarter with a 20-point buffer.

Not taking any chances, the Magic ran away with the game in the last with an impressive 32 points to win the quarter by 13 and the game by 33.

Haggett remained on the frontlines of Millicent's attack, scoring 29 points for the match.

He was bested by only Colac's Liam McInerney who had 30, but Haggett was well supported by his team with a list of double-figure scorers.

Frazer and Kade Bradley were both prolific with 18 and 16 points respectively, while Aidan Schultz (13) and Jackson Dean (12) also shot double figures.

After a busy start to the season, playing 11 games in seven rounds, Millicent's men now enter a prolonged bye.

They will miss the next four rounds and will not return to the court until the new year, with a Round 12 meeting against Hamilton Hurricanes on January 6.
